Gorillas Can Be A Barrel Of Fun;

IT WAS a case of love at first sight when Phil Will and Judy met a few months ago. Like all little chimps, she is so much like a baby that the firm which imported Judy recommends that a pediatrician instead of a veterinarian be called in case of illness. However, Will reports that he is fortunate enough to have found a vet thoroughly versed in chimpanzee care.

Judy Will in Canal Winchester has something in common with Linus of Peanuts fame.

She's insecure.

BUT, FORTUNATELY for her emotional stability, she (like Linus) has found a source of comfort against a world she doesn't quite understand — a blanket from which she is inseparable unless she is in the arms of her master or is preoccupied with the serious business of eating.

Insecurity isn't the only human characteristic the year-old chimp owned by Phil Will, 30 West-st, shares with human youngsters.

Actually she's 14 pounds of paradox, alternately hopelessly shy and boldly inquisitive, gently affectionate and raucously independent, a day-dreaming introvert and a swinging '- from - the - ceilin' show-off.

ALTHOUGH THE little chimp's insecurity is easy to understand, (the trauma of capture, and the subsequent hardships of handling before arriving in this country is hard on any jungle infant) it was a lucky day for Judy when Phil Will brought her to his "Monkey Jungle."

After raising monkeys for a number of years (for pleasure and for sale) Will decided to add a chimp to the menagerie he's established in the basement of his home.

So when the little member of the ape family arrived, she came to the protection of a man who thoroughly understood her species.

HE KNEW the same tender loving care prescribed for babies in any hospital nursery is as vital to the survival of a simian as its shelter from cold and he was aware she would come equipped with her own individual personality to which he would have to key his training efforts by ear.

Judy's homecoming marked the beginning of a now firmly-entrenched mutual admiration society, evident as she clings to Will's ankle as a toddler to her mother's skirt as Will discusses her potential.

He isn't quite ready to go out on a limb predicting that she will learn to imitate speech (some chimps have) or even to be housebroken to conventional toilet facilities (not too uncommon).

BUT SO WHAT? Who needs chimps that can orate when we have our hairy draft-card burners and diaper service is cheap?

Will is confident that Judy will develop decent table manners, learn to play a musical instrument or two, take to acrobatics as easily as her African mother did to a tree, and even possibly give up her habits of dishabille before he changes her name to Gypsy. (Judy thoroughly enjoys being dressed and the attention she commands as she struts around in her rompers, but sometimes emerges from behind the nearest couch looking as if she were the low man in a rousing game of strip poker).

WHEN JUDY was first introduced to "Monkey Jungle" the "old-timers" watched hre with the distrust they would have held for a tiger with an empty belly "back home."

But soon she was "one of the boys."

(Although being one of the guys involves comaraderie and reciprocal grooming alliances it doesn't include sharing of food or toys. A tidy little hoard of uneaten food represents security to a simian who can't even spell "unselfish." More than one chimp has been seen sitting on his collection of treasures, guarding them as Uncle Sam does the portals to Fort Knox.)

IT IS DIFFICULT to fully appreciate Judy's charms (or those of any other chimp) until you've met her.

But in describing the appeal of a "chimpy" she'd raised since several days old, a psychologist put into words what many owners feel.

"HER HAIRY BODY, her big ears and eyebrow ridges seemed like some elaborate farce. I knew that this was my baby by her response to me, by the things she did with her hands; but someone had dressed my baby in a monkey costume. Several days elapsed before there was no more embarrassment between us. In that time I was constantly experiencing moments of shock over her athletic contortions and her furriness."

See what I mean?

Judy is "people."

AS FAR as Judy is concerned, the other gals can have diamonds. Her best friend is her blanket. Her owner is sympathetic but wishes she would evidence her regard in a more lady-like fashion. Her faithful chewing on her "security symbol" soon delegates it to premature retirement.

YOU NAME it; a chimp will eat it—fresh fruits and vegetables, toast, jelly, cereal, eggs, nuts, dog food, sunflower seeds or ice cream with a succulent grasshopper or cricket thrown in for good measure. Their thirsts are as easily satisfied, guzzling orange juice, milk and pop with equal relish. Some, after being given a few drops of whiskey medically, have been known to habitually feign illness in hope of a renewal of the "prescription."

A Barrel Of Monkeys Always Are

ALTHOUGH CONSISTENCY is not a Capuchin's greatest virtue, Will has come to realize they are born kleptomaniacs. One character, known as Maggie, loves to engage his attention with excited chatter and, while innocently staring him straight in the eye will use her prehensile tail to swipe anything that is not literally tied down. Coins are always attractive as anything that glitters but with equal glee will attempt to hoard a cigarette lighter, ball point pen or someone's reading glasses.

JOE THE SPIDER, who habitually looks as if he could use a good barber, is one of the breeds that has done a great deal to make the monkey accepted in the United States as a household pet during the last 10 years. According to Howard Pyle, 3531 Lockbourne-rd, member of the board of directors of the Simian Society of America, Inc., the behavior patterns of baby monkeys so closely resembles those of human infants that some must be urged not to suck their thumbs.

WILL IS MAKING several of his monkeys and Judy available for exhibitions at shopping centers, civic and fraternal banquets and benefits and for store promotions which need to book entertainment. In their traveling cages are shown, from left, a Capuchin, a Spider monkey, Judy, a Wooly and an African Green. Will, talking from his home, 30 West-st, Canal Winchester, explained that temperament varies from breed to breed and those those considering a monkey for a pet should attempt to team up with an animal with which they will be congenial. For example, the Wooly and the Spider are very affectionate and thrive on love and attention, while the average Capuchin is mischievous and will lead its owner a merry chase down the monkey trail.

JUNGLE-BORN monkeys never unlearn their penchant for climbing. Naturally active, any monkey that is not going to be given the run of the house must be provided with a large cage. Their water supply must also be copious as they are inveterate dunkers, washing most of their food before sampling it. Instinctively mechanically inclined, monkeys quickly master water faucets, light switches and ordinary locks, challenging their owners to keep one jump ahead of the ingenuity the pets employ to satisfy each personal whim.

Easter Comes Early To Central

Anyone who says school is all work and no play has never been in one of Miss Betty H. Ley's classes at Central High School.

Miss Ley is the home economics teacher at Central. As a sideline to her cake decorating course, each year around Easter time she teaches her students how to make Easter decorations from cake icing.

In a relaxed but orderly classroom, the girls make white and pastel-colored eggs.

The eggs are made from a mixture of sugar and egg whites. This is packed into plastic egg molds which are divided in half. The open side of each half is covered with aluminum foil to prevent the entire egg from solidifying.

The eggs are then placed with the foil-covered side down on pieces of cardboard and the mold is lifted off. A small window is cut in one end of the egg, about one-quarter of an inch deep. The hole is covered with foil and the egg is dried for two and one-half hours.

The inside is scooped out leaving a half of an egg "shell," one-quarter of an inch thick. These are left standing one day before being decorated.

Before the halves are cemented together, one inch tall farm animals, which are made of icing, are placed in the bottom half.

The top half is then cemented to the bottom with icing, and the entire egg is decorated with brightly colored flowers made of cake icing.

The classes are also making an Easter hat tree. An old tree branch is placed in a styrofoam base. Doll hats, which have been decorated with icing, are hung from the branch.

For the edible portion of the course, the girls are making fruit-filled chocolate eggs which are also decorated with icing flowers.

The girls in the classes will have a tea March 15 to show their mothers the work they have been doing. The girls will also invite one teacher.

Miss Ley said that she has the girls do "lots of handwork because some of them don't even know what their hands are for."

Most of the girls say they will never be able to make the decorations, she said, but after they relax, it comes natural.

FOR THE PAST three years Miss Ley has been teaching her students to make these Easter eggs as a sideline to her course on cake decorating. The eggs are made from a sugar and egg whites mixture.

Fans Flock To See TV-4's Bob Braun

By CLAUDIA ELKINS
Spectator Theater Editor

When you are late, you are late. The time can't be made up. The fatalness of this was evident as Bob Braun, host of the "50-50 Club," reluctantly left his fans at Lazarus' second floor record shop for a prearranged schedule on Monday's promotion tour of Columbus.

For 20 minutes Bob signed his name to his albums, answered questions, talked and conversed with such zealous energy and love of his work that obviously this promotion trip was more rewarding than work.

Old and young alike chatted with Bob as if he were a son or a friend with the admiration and devotion that Bob has justly earned through his 10 years with Ruth Lyons, charity benefits, recordings and his work for young people.

With each hand shake and smile Bob seemed as genuinely elated and pleased as his audience. A mutual understanding prevailed — he was enjoying and receiving as equally as he was giving.

Bob and AVCO Broadcasting hope to maintain the standards of the "50-50 Club" yet adapt to his personality.

The Christmas Fund will be continued in Ruth Lyons' name.

As for guests on the show—some big names have been signed, but in keeping with policy most days are open for those entertainers that are entertaining in the Cincinnati area.

Bob is anxious to know if he will be at the Ohio State Fair. He worked there this past year and had such a good time he really hopes to get back.

A bi-product of his new job as host is that Bob has more time in the evenings to be home with his wife and three children.

Sixth Graders SET For 1967-68

Several thousand sixth graders are all SET for school next year.

They are the students involved in the Student and Educator Team program to be introduced at the seventh grade level in Columbus Public Schools next fall.

THE SET-PLAN is designed to allow coordinated instruction of seventh grade students by an educator team consisting of an English teacher, a social studies teacher, a math teacher and a counselor.

A secondary goal is to provide assistance to youngsters with their personal problems including those of adjustment to a junior high environment which is recognized as a big jump from the self-contained classrooms of the elementary school.

Although some junior highs will involve all seventh graders in the program in 1967-68 each school will form at least two SETS, usually made up of three sections with a total of about 90 pupils.

THE BASIC PATTERN will place the students with the English and math teacher one period apiece each day and with the social studies teacher during a double period with the counselor providing group and individual guidance activities.

For modified sections, the English teachers will have pupils for two periods a day, emphasizing improvement of basic learning skills.

While English and math instruction will conform closely to conventional curriculums, the social studies study plan is broader than usually found in a single classroom.

IT INCLUDES geography, Ohio history, state and local government, science by television, group guidance and unit study such as "adjustment to junior high school," "how to study," "getting along with others," "developing responsibility" and "acts of patriotism."

Foreign language will be taught two periods a week on an elective basis by teachers not involved in the structure of SET.

THE INDIANS had a little more difficult time in handling quick Pleasant and the super berth which C-W stashed away on its 66-64 win.

Bill Miles' leaping lay-in with 15 seconds remaining capped the comeback that Vic Argobright and Dick Whitmer started with 2.51 remaining in the third period.

At that point Pleasant looked like a powerhouse in doing nothing wrong and rarely missing. Canal's endurance proved to be the winning blow as the 10-point Pleasant lead gradually slipped away.

"PLEASANT HAS been wearing out in the third and fourth quarters and I felt that if we were to catch them it would be then," said a beaming Miller after his Indians had won their second Regional berth in the school's history. The first one was in 1923, almost forgotten until last Friday night.

Miller lifted Miles with 6:42 remaining in the game for Harry Rickman, who bagged a pair of free throws in the time he played.

"We wanted to talk to him (Miles) and get him moving a little more," Miller said.

MILES MANEUVERED for six points in the last four minutes including the game winning bucket.

"He has certainly played a couple of good tournament games for us," Bob added, maintaining that when "Bill starts moving inside it helps us all over."

Tiny Co-Op Fights High Food Costs

Want to beat the high cost of living?

You might as well forget it—the odds are against you.

BUT IF YOU can round up a 50-man team, you can put up a good fight.

Mrs. Frank Young of 2833 Harrisburg-pk is quarterbacking such an effort and reports her team is in enemy territory.

The method of attack is called "co-operative buying."

IT ALL STARTED last December when the four neighborhood centers funded by the Columbus Metropolitan Area Community Action Program initiated consumer demonstration projects.

Shares were sold at $1 each and miniature co-ops set up.

Taking advantage of the holiday buying habits of the members, the pilot program confined its purchases to fruits and nuts.

MERCHANDISE was purchased wholesale and made available to those participating at slightly less than retail cost on a cash-and-carry basis.

After the first of the year, overall expenses were tallied, and it was learned that in addition to their original savings each "customer" was entitled to a 21 cent rebate on every dollar spent.

The refunds were made and here the program stopped — except with the members associated with the County Center located at Urbancrest where Mrs. Young is a community organizer.

THERE SHAREHOLDERS in the closely-knit neighborhood believed they "had a winner" and refused to disband.

Proceeding cautiously, the buying committee next made eggs and produce available to its members.

Each Monday orders were taken (preferably with cash on the barrelhead) because of yet limited capital at a realistic price.

LATER IN the week, the orders were filled at the best available wholesale price and distribution made immediately.

Stockholders soon saw they were getting top quality food for bottom dollars and enthusiasm grew.

This month, the "self-help buying club" is ready to go into big time — the purchase of meat.

BIDS HAVE been secured on roasts, ground chuck, sausage and slab and sliced bacon.

This step is regarded as a major break-through in stretching food dollars as every housewife well knows meat prices are the bugaboo that has fractured her grocery budget in recent months.

With the theory that one must learn to walk before learning to run, Mrs. Young explained that, eager as the shareholders may be, it will take time before the co-op can develop to the point that the bulk of food purchases can be made through it.

HOWEVER, that is the eventual goal and already members are talking about building a small warehouse. (Mrs. Young's basement is now serving as a receiving center where bulk purchases are packaged into consumer units).

According to a stockholder survey, a great deal of current interest lies in expanding the program to include non-food items such as children's shoes and men's socks.

ALTHOUGH MEMBERS may buy as many shares of the stock (which provides working capital and upon which a modest return is paid) each member has only one vote.

Thus, Mrs. Young pointed out, control of the co-op always remains with the majority.

Realizing that savings are more easily counted when jingling in a pocket than when merely shown as a bookkeeping item, the buying group intends to put rebates on a once-a-month basis.

ASKED TO explain why the program is going over so well at Urbancrest when it died out in other neighborhoods, Mrs. Young said, "The people here want it."

That is a simple way of expressing the CMACAO guideline for such a project which states that "a cooperative spirit and genuine interest in mutual self-help" are musts.

It all boils down to "I can get it for you wholesale" has a pleasant ring when the buyer knows he isn't getting "taken."

Style Show, Buffet To Be Sponsored By Altar Society

Tickets are $3.75 and can be obtained from ticket chairman Mrs. James Lloyd (866-8869) and Mrs. Paul Jones (866-3962). Door prizes and a mink-collared cashmere sweater will be given away as prizes.

General co-chairmen are Mrs. C. W. Smith and Mrs. Gary McCaw. Other persons assisting with the preparation are:

Mrs. William Haight, Mrs. Andre Cousasnon, Mrs. George Orth, Mrs. Gerald Spiers, Mrs. W. Lee Breck, Mrs. John Richardson, Mrs. Richard Lineberry, Mrs. Dwight Keller, Mrs. Robert Doherty, Mrs. Austin Guirlinger, Miss Linda Guirlinger and Mrs. Paul Kunkemoeller.

Buckeye Federal Advances Among Savings & Loans

Buckeye Federal Savings and Loan Association advanced its position among the nation's savings and loan associations by two different measures during 1966, according to Buckeye Federal President William S. Guthrie.

The American Banker publication reported Buckeye moved from 137th to 135th place among the more than 6,000 savings and loans in the nation in savings account volume.

A survey by the research department of the U. S. Savings and Loan League showed Buckeye Federal ranked 141st in assets at the end of 1966, up one position from the previous year.

Buckeye had assets of $142.5 million and savings capital of more than $124 million as of Dec. 31, 1966.

SPECTATOR CIRCULATION MANAGER Jack Schluep presents a check to St. Cecilia Elementary School Principal Sister Andrea as the school's share in a recent Spectator subscription drive on the West Side. The two beaming youngsters in the front are Mary Anne Fadley and Tommy Elias who have just been given transistor radios for selling five subscriptions apiece. St. Cecilia made over $100 in less than three weeks. Anyone interested in conducting a similar drive to raise funds for his school, club or organization can make arrangements with The Spectator Circulation Department.

Early American Furniture Traced

By NANCY LUCKS, NSID

When looking at a piece of furniture have you ever wondered just how the styling came about and why certain woods were used? Today we shall turn back the pages of time to the early American period which started about 1608 to 1720.

When the small ships sailed from England to the new continent called America, they were very crowded. The people could not bring much with them, especially their furniture. There were a few pieces but not many. However, they did bring chests which were used as traveler's trunks today.

After landing in America, the carpenters were called upon to reproduce the furniture that came on the ships, but much of the furniture they had known in England had to be made strictly from memory. These early pieces were crude in detail and proportion as the tools and facilities were not as complete as in England. It was more convenient to use the native woods such as cherry, maple, pine, beech, ash, cedar, elm and cypress. Many times several kinds of wood were used on one piece of furniture and the wood was generally left raw.

Colonial homes were small with low ceilings. Therefore, the furniture was small and had more than one function. The chest was the most important piece in the home. It was used as a container or a seat. The lid was hinged and usually had one or more drawers at the bottom. As the years passed, the chests were built higher and it became a chest of drawers or a bureau. Later the legs became higher and thus evolved the cupboard; it was richly carved and decorated.

The tables had turned legs with wide overhangs, molded stretchers connecting the legs and pine tops. The chairs had straight lines with slats, turned spindles and stretchers to give more strength to the legs. Plain wood boards or rush were used for the seat.

As the century progressed, the individual parts became lighter with upholstered chairs coming during the latter half of the 17th century. These chairs had both comfort and design.

At the turn of the century, trained cabinet-makers began making more refined furniture. The forms of the William and Mary style appeared with their bell turnings, bun feet and flat stretchers. Veneering and cross-banding walnut and butternut were used during this period. Trading with the West Indies brought about the use of mahogany. It was probably first used in America about 1700.

Next week we will look at some of the other important American periods.

From Mrs. L.H., Columbus: What are the typical decorative treatments for Early American decor?

Answer: Distinctive points in Early American interiors: small casement-type windows, simple sill-length cotton or linen draw curtains, sometimes with a simple valance. Fabrics should look homespun, wools, worsteds, also cottons, linens and chintz; English damask, brocade or needlework.

Accessories: pewter for cups, tankards, candlesticks, etc., also silver. Wrought iron for andirons, hanging lanterns, stands, hinges, etc. Copper cooking utensils. Light fixtures: oil lamps, simple but primitive. Floors: wide planks with wooden pegs, small rugs, braided, hooked or handwoven; some wood paneling or plain plaster; ceilings low, with exposed beams.

Cap Stampeded

Capital University's College Bowl team got caught in a Longhorn stampede Sunday as rampaging Texas racked up its fifth win in a row with a 235-175 victory over Capital. For their efforts, the Cap quizzers brought home a $500 scholarship grant from sponsor General Electric. The Standard Oil Co. (Ohio) will provide an additional $500 in a matching grant. Cap led at the half but Texas put on a tremendous second half performance to become only the third team this season to win five consecutive matches.

New Church Named

Gahanna's newest church has been named Good Samaritan by the Reformed Church in America. The church's pastor, Rev. Harold De Roo, said the name was chosen "because it is descriptive of the mission of today's church." Services of the church will begin the first Sunday in April at Stygler Road Junior High School. Services will be at 10:45 a.m. with Sunday School at 9:30 a.m. The Reformed Church is America's oldest Protestant denomination with a continuing ministry.

ATHENS STRIKE JUST A PRELUDE

OSU Next Target For AFSCME

By ROBERT TENENBAUM
Managing Editor

Ohio State University will be the next target for the state employes' union whose strike has forced the temporary closing of Ohio University in Athens.

A spokesman for the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes (AFSCME) revealed that about 500 of OSU's 3,000 non-teaching employes have already signed cards indicating their desire to form a local union.

Hershel M. Sigall, attorney for the union, said "It's coming —Ohio State will be the next university to be organized." Sigall said the exact timing of the organization drive is yet to be determined.

THE REQUEST made to Ohio State will be similar to the request which precipitated the strike at Ohio U. — that the union be recognized and that dues be deducted from employes' paychecks. Workers in Athens took to the picket lines when President Vernon R. Alden refused to allow the payroll check-off.

Sigall said no formal presentation had been made to OSU President Novice Fawcett but the subject was broached to the university personnel director.

L. C. Stephens, personnel director for OSU, admitted he had been contacted by the union several months ago but refused to comment on the possibility of payroll deductions for union dues "until we're actually faced with the situation."

SIGALL SAID Stephens told him when first contacted that his computer systems would not handle deductions. Stephens denied making a flat statement, but admitted he had some concern that if the university began deducting dues for employe organizations, "it could cause some problems."

Stephens agreed with Sigall that such deductions were legal but not mandatory. "It's up to the appointing authority, or in this case the university," Stephens said.

Alden had originally been quoted as stating he felt such deductions were illegal but spokesmen for the Attorney General's office confirm the law does provide for voluntary check-off.

Sigall said no concerted effort has as yet been made to organize OSU workers. He said some OSU workers approached the union on the possibility of forming a local and 500 signatures were obtained without really even trying.

He also indicated he felt the strike at Athens would stimulate interest in the union among OSU employes.

Spectator's Total Assets Acquired By Ohio Radio

Total assets of The Spectator Printing and Publishing Co. have been acquired by Ohio Radio, Inc., it was announced today.

The announcement was made jointly by Ohio Radio Board Chairman Michael V. DiSalle of Washington, D.C. and President Robert W. Reider of Port Clinton, Ohio.

In May of 1965, Ohio Radio acquired an 80 per cent interest in The Spectator Newspapers from C. Carlton Hartley, former publisher of the Columbus area group. Negotiations completed this week included acquisition by Ohio Radio of the remaining 20 per cent of stock in the newspapers plus retirement of all notes and obligations due Hartley.

Named to the reorganized Spectator board were Robert Burdock, publisher, and Richard H. Rogers, business manager.

In addition to the six Spectator Newspapers, Ohio Radio operates radio stations in Port Clinton, Norwalk, Kenton and Bowling Green, and has interests in CATV and television.

DiSalle is a former governor of Ohio and Reider has served both in the Ohio House and on the public utilities commission of Ohio. Reider is also the former owner and publisher of the Port Clinton Daily News.

If one revenge is sweet — two must be divine.

Linden-McKinley will get a chance at such a feat Friday night at 7:30 when the Panthers of Vincent Chickerella and three others of the state's top schoolboy quintets meet in the plush St. John Arena for the 45th renewal of the State Championship classic.

SLICK CHICK'S supercharged Panthers will open the Class AA evening section against Canton Lincoln (21-3) in a battle between a pair of first-timers with tourney-wise veteran Cleveland East Tech (22-2) meeting Cinderella Cincinnati LaSalle (14-11) in the 9:30 game.

Linden, who took perfect care of a second chance last Saturday night with a 43-34 surprise of Columbus East, will get a like chance against Lincoln, who handled them 56-53 early in the season in Canton's ball park.

CHICKERELLA, contemplating another rematch, labels Canton a big, strong team that plays a fairly deliberate style.

"They will, however, fast break some," Vince said.

LINCOLN, who is currently riding on a 10-game win streak, earner its first crack at State's Class AA schoolboy crown with a 65-51 win over Cuyahoga Falls in the Kent Regional last Saturday evening.

Vince dispatched scout Art Thompson to the fray, and conceded that Art was impressed with Ken Newlon's well-trained legions.

"WE PLAYED them and Art saw them Saturday," Vince said, "so we know that they are physically strong, and like to play a match-up zone defense."

"They press a little but not all the time like we do, and they have a couple of real good boys," Vince continued.

LINCOLN LISTS all five starters over the six foot mark with 6-5 Larry Skeels the tallest. Chuck Fowler (6-4) is a strong boy on the boards and a trio of six-footers round out the Lincoln line-up.

The six-footers include all-Ohio candidate Jeff Todd who has hit nearly 25 points a game with his pivot work on the 1-3-1 offense. Bob Johnson is the playmaker on the point and Ted Best maneuvers on the side.

LINDEN WILL counter such an attack with the 6-3 balanced starters of Rodney Kent, Chris Brown and Jim Cleamons along with 6-1 Ed Young and 5-10 James Clark.

Brown came through with his best performance of the year against East Saturday as he packed away 13 rebounds to go with his 12 points in a game in which Vince elected to go with only his starters.

SINCE INSERTING Kent into the starting line-up, the Panthers have ripped off 10

Saturday's Regional finale match between East and Linden belonged to Columbus but it was also a "family affair." "Beautiful baby!"

Smiling, soaking and not really caring about a pinched back nerve and bothersome kidney stones, Linden-McKinley's brilliant basketball tutor Vincent Chickerella was summing up his feelings of a revenge win over East and a trip to St. John Arena for the first time in his successful 11 year coaching career.

THERE WAS a certain quality of attitude that prevailed just minutes before in the hot, packed Fairgrounds Coliseum as a cool Linden team kept the faith in themselves and rode unbeaten and number one rated East out of the Regional III tournament.

Vince perhaps summed up the 32 minutes better than anyone when he stated the real game plan. "We came to win and we believed we could win and that is more important."

TO PROVE Chick's unabiding faith in the slick Panthers he reached into his pocket and removed his car keys telling a manager to "go in the trunk and bring my suit, that is how confident I was."

"East is a heckuva good team, but we were just a little bit better—at least tonight," he added.

"THIS WIN has to be the greatest moment of my life," Chickerella told the 6472 gath-

Get 'Em, Panthers

On the sturdy shoulders of Linden-McKinley High's Panthers ride Columbus' hopes for a state high school basketball championship.

Linden pulled the upset of the year Saturday night when it knocked off previously-unbeaten and top-rated East—but it was no fluke. It did it in convincing fashion and thus became one of the Class AA "Fabulous Four" which will compete this weekend for the title.

We can't think of a more worthy coach than Linden's Vince Chickerella to attempt to give Columbus its third state championship in just five years. The Spectator Newspapers join the rest of Columbus in wishing "Chick" and his Panthers the best of luck.

And to East and coach Bob Hart and Canal Winchester and coach Bob Miller we also offer our congratulations for their fine showings in the regionals. East, of course, made it to the regional finals and Canal fooled everyone by making it to the regional semi-finals.

Tournament week in Columbus is perhaps the most exciting week of the year for sports fans. It's a chance for the city to show off for the visiting firemen.

The Spectator extends its best wishes to all eight of the finalists—but if we add a wish or two for Linden, we hope we'll be excused.

Older And Wiser?

Councilman James Baumann recently took his foot out of his mouth long enough to announce that he was planning to revive efforts to add fluorides to the Columbus water supply.

As most literate adults know, the simple addition of small amounts of this inexpensive chemical to drinking water allows a growing child to develop strong, hard, healthy teeth. Dentists heartily endorse the practice.

It seems almost ridiculous that every water supply in the nation does not have artificially induced fluorides in it.

Yet when it is proposed in some areas, a great hue is raised that socialized medicine is in the offing and the kooks take to the battlements. As a result of the misunderstanding that is created, such issues often get beaten at the polls.

It was less than 10 years ago, on May 6, 1958, that Columbus voters turned down a similar proposal by a two to one vote.

Let's hope Columbus is wiser by now.

One Week To Register

Franklin County voters have only until next Wednesday to register to vote in the May primary.

According to the League of Women Voters, some 73,000 eligible voters will find themselves disenfranchised unless they register. These are the voters who haven't been to the polls in two years.

That 73,000 figure doesn't include all of the thousands of eligible voters who have never voted.

Every time a voter fails to exercise his right, he further erodes the fabric of American democracy. And the old excuse about "my vote wouldn't count much, anyway," is a poor one, indeed.

The Board of Elections is open daily from 8:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m. and Saturday from 8:30 a.m. to noon. The Spectator Newspapers urge all those who must register to do so by March 22 and preserve their vote in the May primary.

Sweeping Reform

The Shell Game

By ROBERT BURDOCK
EDITOR AND PUBLISHER

BURDOCK

The biggest budgetary shell game in the history of Ohio government is going on right now under the statehouse rotunda.

And the chief pea pusher is Governor James A. Rhodes.

With a real pitchman's spiel Rhodes set up the suckers with his budget message. Statehouse newsmen were forced to run with the script because Rhodes arrogantly refused to hold the customary budget briefing for the press.

Rhodes, who has developed a Charlie McCarthy-like ability to talk out of both sides of Finance Director Richard Krabach's mouth, insisted his was a "balanced" budget and that "education remains the number one priority of this administration."

Let's peek under the shells one at a time.

Rhodes' budget is only balanced if you use the phrase "to balance" in the same sense as "to juggle."

Rhodes' own figures show a beginning general fund balance for the biennium of $43 million and an ending balance of $500,000.

Thus, for the two year period Rhodes expects to spend $42.5 million more than the state takes in. That's like maintaining a $15,000 a year standard of living on a $10,000 a year salary by using $5000 you have in the bank.

Rhodes' "all funds" summary shows a beginning balance of $41.8 million and an end balance of $84.1 million. However, $451.9 million of the "revenues" included here are actually borrowed bond issue funds, which means the budget really has a deficit of $409.6 million for the two year period.

Let's take the second shell — education's number one priority.

Rhodes' budget provides for an increase in school foundation subsidies of 4 per cent over the present rate. That's hardly a number one priority when you take a closer peek at the 60 per cent increase in appropriations for the governor's office.

Now you know the pea has to be under the third shell. Don't bet on it. The third shell is the Ohio Bond Commission. Rhodes told everyone how great it was going to be but he didn't mention how much it would cost.

However, his budget contains a clue. During the next two years it will cost Ohioans $179,203,627 for principal and interest on funds already borrowed. The OBC could make that amount look small.

The budget contains $178 million for higher education and $179 million for debt service. You guess under which shell the pea is hidden.

Defends Whitehall

To The Editor:

This is in regard to the letter written by a Whitehall Newcomer who is disappointed in the city's services.

Seven inches of snow, dumped on any city during the night, is no easy task to eliminate to everyone's satisfaction. I have lived in many cities where sidewalks are more prevalent than here and it's never been the city's responsibility to clear residential sidewalks of snow, nor is it their privilege to demand homeowners to clear their own sidewalks. A property owner has a free choice here — to shovel or not to shovel snow. It all depends on whether or not they are completely insured.

I lived in a Columbus suburb for nine years and never saw snow removal equipment in our area — and we didn't have sidewalks. Try walking to a bus stop — or to school under those conditions.

Whitehall has its share of problems, as every city has problems. What it doesn't need is a self-appointed, Newcomer Fault Finding Committee. Critics are a dime a dozen. Citizens with a community spirit who are willing to cooperate and participate are in demand, but rare. I wonder what Newcomer's summer complaint will be.

barry goldwater ★ Fighting The Coy War ★

GOLDWATER

You can't be coy about war.

But everywhere you look these days somebody seems to be trying.

Take the President. Newsmen recently tried to get him to say whether such action as mining the rivers in Vietnam constitute an "escalation" of the war. The President said strongly, firmly and without equivocation that what such actions constituted could be accurately described as "some action" in Vietnam. How's that for meeting an issue head-on?

If the President would meet this issue squarely, level with the American people and the world and put the Vietnamese war into perspective as a war instead of an exercise in on-again-off-again diplomatic double talk, the word escalation would hold no fear.

In any dispute there is a step-by-step escalation: of arguments if it is a debate, of pressures if it is a war.

Rather than nagging at the President over whether he is or is not escalating the war by this or that definition, Americans should be most deeply concerned with why he hasn't escalated it in the most sensible, least costly and most hopeful way possible — that is, by closing the harbor at Haiphong and by bombing the airfields around Hanoi.

Those actions would be the quick way to convince the enemy that the only way out is to halt the aggression and mind their own business — just as we wish we could get back to minding ours.

Another type of coy approach to the war is the attempt to avoid any position on it at all.

Several reasons are advanced for taking this non-stance. One is that all the facts are not known.

It is true that all the facts of President Johnson's position are not known. It is not true that the hard facts of the battlefield, and the world struggle of which it is a part, are not known.

This is perhaps the best-covered war in history. The cold war has been going on for so long that it would be difficult not to have perceived at least its outlines by now.

Every man you meet on the street has a position, one way or the other, on Vietnam. Every member of the Congress has a position. Most other public officials have. So do all learned men of whom I have heard in our colleges and universities.

To not take a position by now is in itself the most difficult of all positions to explain.

Finally, there is the form of coyness about the war in which a man will actually support the goals of the Communists, but do it under the mealy-mouthed guise of just wanting peace.

This happens whenever a man takes the position that we should gladly give, and even force, a place in the South Vietnamese government for the Viet Cong or their local delegates, the National Liberation Front.

Such a role is precisely what started the war in the first place. It is what the Communists have been fighting for. To give them what they want, under any pretense, is to lose the war. There is no other way to define it.

WHITE

Field reports from highly professional American intelligence agents in Vietnam — "raw" dispatches intended solely to tell the bald facts to United States government leaders and not to cheer them up — plainly show the Communist Vietcong in South Vietnam to be in deep trouble.

The aseptic objectivity of these messages cannot be rationally questioned, for wherever the truth is not palatable to our side, this, too, is laconically included.

The following is an authoritative summary of the factual position as to the internal Communist assailants — the indigenous Vietcong — of the government of South Vietnam, though it reflects no important information about the external assailants from North Vietnam:

According to a document captured from a Vietcong official, its military plan requires for this year a total guerrilla force of 300,000 against the 180,000 in service as this year began — but Vietcong recruitment is actually falling rather than rising.

More North Vietnamese, as distinguished from South Vietnamese, guerrilla leaders are being infiltrated into the cities. The formation of "assassination teams" to kill South Vietnamese who obstruct the Vietcong has been urgently stepped up. And because of improved Allied ability to identify Vietcong military units, the Vietcong has dropped the terms "regiment" and "battalion" for the terms "regional work site" and "local work site."

The Vietcong leaders have ordered all guerrillas to make "special efforts" to obtain the names — and addresses — of the wives of captured South Vietnamese officers, for reasons that can be imagined.

For the first time, Vietcong district committees are passing up without question to higher echelons demonstrably overoptimistic intelligence reports in fear of being called defeatist by their superiors. The American First Division, parenthetically, ran into precisely this situation after entering the edge of Germany in 1944.

The chaos in Communist China caused by the Red Guards is having a bad effect on Vietcong morale, not for any very precise reason, but simply on the general notion that whatever this thing in China may mean, it is not going to do the Vietcong any good.

Vietcong propaganda that American troops are foreigners who don't belong in the country is undeniably having some success. This, however, is offset by the failure of a second Vietcong propaganda line—that the Americans are not good combat troops. This is failing simply because of the effectiveness of our artillery and air actions.

The Vietcong has set up far tougher "discipline committees" now empowered to execute not simply South Vietnamese civilians who may in any way obstruct them, but also simply "those who may weaken the fighting spirit of other individuals."

At certain Vietcong provincial meetings whose locale cannot be identified here without possible danger to American sources of information, the principal speakers said that the war would end in June, 1967, "as a result of an unconditional halt of bombing by the United States of North Vietnam."

All this suggests not that we are going to win tomorrow or next month or perhaps even next year. But it shows that the internal threat to South Vietnam, as distinguished from that from North Vietnam, is diminishing both in relative and in absolute terms and that North Vietnam is going to be forced to make a far heavier investment both in its own assaults from the North and in replacing, and in some cases killing, many of its heretofore reliable guerrillas living in South Vietnam.

marquis childs ★ Solving India's Hunger Problem ★

CHILDS

The arithmetic of India's hunger is written large on the Eastern sky. It is an old, old story, so old, so repetitive in the annals of man's inhumanity to man that there is today a sense of frustration and impatience at this latest replay.

If several million Indians die of starvation before a new crop can be harvested—and this seems probable at the present writing—the blame will be widely shared. The consequences of the political shock effect here and abroad are incalculable. It will be another massive blow for the second largest Asian nation posed as a model of democracy and freedom.

President Johnson made a deeply emotional commitment — no Indian would starve so long as America had wheat available. That commitment was reinforced when Mrs. Indira Gandhi visited Washington a year ago. The President was deeply touched by this frail, charming woman struggling to hold together a country of incredible diversity always in some area or another at the point of breakdown.

But as with other emotional commitments, notably Vietnam, the hard facts of life have a way of catching up. The resolution the President is requesting from Congress authorizing an additional shipment of 3,000,000 tons of wheat to India is compared to the Gulf of Tonkin resolution in 1964 on the Vietnam war. It will take the President off the hook. The resolution, as the White House acknowledged, was unnecessary, since the Chief Executive already has authority to ship whatever amount of food he deems necessary.

The hard reality is that both in Congress and among the rich nations in the consortium supplying aid to India patience has run out. While it is possible to show substantial gains in production out of the massive infusion of help over the past 15 years the painful truth is that per-capita income—hovering somewhere under $100 a year—has not increased.

What this means is that India has been producing more babies than food and consumer needs. At the same time a whole series of health measures—the virtual elimination of malaria—raised the average life expectancy by at least 15 years. The present annual rate of population increase is 12,000,000. Thousands of birth-control clinics are operating but the hour is late and the effort, expanded though it is, may still be too little.

The hopes, visions, dreams of the past today cloud the future. Part of Nehru's heritage was neutralism, nonalignment, a moral righteousness that the West has often found infuriating and baffling. At a critical time in the food crisis, as a second year of drouth threatened more suffering, Mrs. Gandhi received President Nasser of Egypt and Tito of Yugoslavia in New Delhi for a conference that concluded with a call for ending the war in Vietnam. Johnson was reported greatly angered. India's Ambassador in Washington, B. K. Nehru, has said that for a three-week interval at that crucial period he was unable to get word to the President on the urgency of India's needs.

Those long wrestling with the Indian problem believe that the hope today—perhaps the last hope—is for India to come together with her neighbor Pakistan first to put an end to the Kashmir dispute and then to proceed with all-out economic cooperation. Both the Soviet Union, which at Tashkent promoted the end of the armed conflict over Kashmir, and the United States have a stake in such an outcome.

But in the nationwide election just held—more than 200 million voters going to the polls with only a few incidents of violence—one sign was a rising nationalism. That is another cloud over the vast subcontinent with its 700 million people.

Here's Girl Talk's Gal

By CLAUDIA ELKINS
Theater Editor

Electric, immaculate and enthusiastic Virginia Graham is —not surprisingly, the same off camera as she is on camera.

For five years her extreme honesty and complete understanding of her life has made her the leading and most talked about lady of daytime television.

Appearing as the hostess of her own show which matches three female guests from three different walks of life, Virginia usually senses and then creates which must be television's only literate women's show.

"Girl Talk" is for women, the homemakers (Virginia deplores the word housewife), the alert woman.

Virginia's remarkable personality relates why her show is a success. Primarily she states, "I'm sorta' the turn-the-other-cheekish type." She takes her guests as they come. But, if a problem arises she has the ability to take care of it. This is why most women admire her. She stands up for her rights and beliefs.

According to Virginia it was woman who invented the supermarket — Eve, in the Garden of Eden.

Any and all subjects are interesting to Virginia and undoubtedly she will know something about everything—she is keenly aware of people at all times.

Her husband, who travels with her and is with her constantly, reflects that Virginia, no matter what she is outside of their home, has the know-how to make him the star of their home.

For 15 years of their 32 years of marriage Virginia was a devoted homemaker.

She will readily admit her age, 52, with no reservations. People automatically add another five years because she is a woman, but this one is a rare one.

Virginia has a once-a-week date with the hairdresser, the other nights she does her own hair. She has two weaknesses—clothes and jewelry.

Asked if she had any problems on "Girl Talk" Virginia replied, "A few logs that are really drips."

The show draws an age group from eight to 80. Virginia feels there is no such thing as a geographic or a sophisticated woman.

As she folded her napkin she quite frankly related, "Women really do like women."

As for the future, Virginia is now writing a book to be entitled "Last Day Of The World" which will be the dish or food that the forever-dieting woman would want if she knew tomorrow was the last day of the world.

"Girl Talk" will be changed to "Virginia Graham's Girl Talk," obvious change as Girl Talk wouldn't be without Virginia Graham.

Color is the next step in her program. "I have some of the world's best dressed women on my show, can you imagine the style show we will have?"

A nighttime show is something in the far off future, but with no reservations from Virginia it all seems possible.

"Girl Talk" is seen over Channel 10 at 1 p.m. daily.

Wealth Brought Decorating Change

By NANCY M. LUCKS, NSID

Last week we discussed the Early American period and as we turn the pages of history, we come to the American Georgian period which began around 1720-1780.

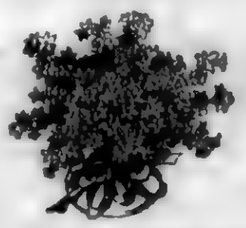
During the early 18th century many new immigrants came to America. Some of them were craftsmen from England who had made the luxurious furnishings from homes built in the Renaissance style. People started to become more style-conscious. They not only bought furniture for its use but for the design. These new ideas came when England started social tea and coffee drinking, parlor games, etc. The colonies were very eager to adopt these ideas.

For the first time, pieces of furniture matched other pieces. Sofas, daybeds, desks, secretaries with slant tops, and couches with loose cushions came into being, Knee-hole desks, tilt-top Pie Crust tables, oriental lacquer and Japan finishes, were introduced. The Cabriole Leg with Club Foot was followed by the Claw-and-Ball form. Curved lines dominated the designs of many pieces.

One of the principal reasons for the changes that took place were books on interior design and architecture, books on furniture design published by Chippendale and Manwaring and others. These individuals in the Colonial communities who could afford to were eager to follow the fashions. Soon the cabinetmakers were able to reproduce very well, the Queen Anne, Early Georgian, Chippenddale, and other types of English furniture.

A group of the cabinetmakers got together and called themselves "The Philadelphia School of Cabinetmakers." William Savery was among these men. Pieces designed between 1742 and 1796 are the finest examples of Colonial craftsmanship. The men that followed continued in the English fashion, producing Hepplewhite and Sheraton types.

John Goddard produced American Originals. He used the blockfront design which consisted of dividing the front. The two outside panels were convex while the middle one was concave; at the top of each was placed a shell motif. The bracket foot was used on most pieces.



The Rococo influences could be seen in furniture of the Philadelphia and Newport types. Just before the revolution, the Adams influence was noticeable. During this time, a change had taken place in the architecture of homes. The ceiling became higher, some had delicate molded plaster designs, windows became larger —some were recessed in the wall and window seats were used.

Finer homes had parquet floors, sometimes marble floors in the halls. In these homes, draperies were floor length, straight or swag, using imported fabrics, shaped valances, elaborate fringes, tassels, and tiebacks. Brass, silver, oriental porcelains, English ware, etc. were used. Clocks were very important — tall case clocks especially. The fabrics were velvets, brocades, brocatelles, imported demasks, etc.

Let us not forget that those people still living in the country homes could not afford these finer things, therefore much of their furniture and decor was still Early American.

Next week we will go into the American Federal period.

Bo Brickels Quits P-V

Robert "Bo" Brickels, varsity basketball coach at Pleasant View High School for the past six seasons, has resigned his position, The Spectator learned this week from a South-Western City School official.

Brickels, awaiting approval of another coaching position at press time, Tuesday, authored an excellent 79-43 record at P-V.

The Panther mentor experienced only two losing campaigns at P-V—his first (7-11) and last (7-13).

His '65-'66 squad gained the most recognition, copping the South Suburban League title and advancing all the way to the "AA" Central District semi-finals before losing out to Linden-McKinley.

Administrators Face Hair(y) Problem

By NANCY LOGUE
Spectator Staff Writer

Columbus high school students will need more than Constitutional rights to let their hair down in this city — at least to the now-fashionable "Beatle" length.

The American Civil Liberties Union of Central Ohio has charged that the civil rights of male students are being violated by school officials who are "ordering the students to conform to so-called acceptable standards of hair length and style."

MOST COLUMBUS school administrators don't quite see it the same way.

Dick Coldren, a spokesman for the Columbus Board of Education, said that the question of a student's haircut, or rather the lack of one, is left to the principals of the individual schools.

He said that the only guideline handed to the schools from the Board of Education is that a student "should not dress or groom himself in a fashion that would attract a great amount of attention to himself and therefore disrupt class work."

"WE HAVE HAD no trouble recently with regard to the student hairstyles. Of course, at the beginning of the school year, after summer vacation, we received a number of calls and a group of high school boys even picketed the building. But, they just wanted to see how far it would go," Coldren said.

He explained that some of the schools have set up individudal dress and grooming codes.

David Randall, principal of West High School, said that he sent the student Samsons home if they did not go by the school's grooming standards.

"A male student should wear his hair so that it touches neither the eyebrows nor the ears. It should be tapered in the back and not touch the collar," he said.

GORDON HARRIS, Eastmoor High School principal, said that he has only two standards for judging the tresses of his students.

"As long as teaching doesn't stop and if learning doesn't stop, that's the only code we go by," he said. Harris explained that there has been no trouble over hair length mainly because of the cooperation of the parents.

"IF I EVER do see a student whose hair is too long, I just call him into the office and explain why it should be cut. I never have to order them. If you treat the students as adults, they will behave as adults," he said.

Marion-Franklin High School principal Mike Lower said that they also did not have a hard and fast grooming code.

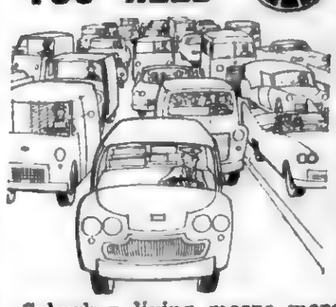
"We do not say that the boy's hair must be one-half inch above the eyebrows. We only ask they be groomed in normal school attire. Any extreme deviation from normal dress has the same effect as setting firecrackers off in class. The climate for learning is disrupted," he said.

SOUTH-WESTERN School District has had very little trouble with the students' hair lengths according to public information man Paul Noblett.

"About three years ago a group of about 150 parents from the schools' PTA groups got together to work on a teenage code which was sent back to the associations for approval. It covered many facets of school life," Noblett said.

"The reason it has worked out so well was because the parents were directly involved in setting up the standards," he added.

FATHER Frank Fortkamp, dean of boys at Bishop Ready High School, said that the hair length and style should be left up to the students and their parents.



"I think it is a matter of personal tastes and that the parents have far more rights in deciding their child's appearance than do school administrators," he said.

"It is just one more way that he can express his individuality," he said.

Although most of the school administrators say that there has been very little trouble, the ACLU has said it has received numerous complaints from both both parents and students.

I am constantly besieged with mail from knitters who would like to know the correct way to assemble a garment. Actually there is no right or wrong way, but usually the finished item tells tales!

Following are several methods of finishing. Use the one that is easiest for you. Do not be afraid to make a real seam.

1. This is, by the way, the method that I prefer. It is done looking at the outside of the pieces of the garment (or right side). Start one stitch in from either side. Use a tapestry needle and preferably the same yarn of the garment, always inserting your needle under two strands of yarn, working from side to side, and back into the space where the yarn comes out. With this method working from side to side and working from the outside, you can always be certain to stay one stitch in from the side edge (seam).

2. Back stitch; again using a tapestry needle with yarn or use a regular needle with sewing thread.

3. Slipstitch, making a chain with a crochet hook through the garment. If the yarn of the garment is too hard to work with or should it produce too bulky seam, then use a finer yarn in a matching color.

4. Use your sewing machine. Of course I must warn you, this takes a little practice and should be tried on an old piece of knitting first.

Lots of luck with your finishing. Remember, a finished hand knitted garment should look "handmade," but not "homemade."

Miss duBois welcomes mail from readers but cannot give a personal answer. She will discuss and pass on the most interesting questions and hints.

Mayor Previews Downtown Growth

Mayor REVIEWS Downtown

Downtown economic growth is expected to expand by more than $100 million each five years through 1985, according to Columbus Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner.

The mayor, speaking at a news conference yesterday, based his predictions on projections revealed when the first of five progress reports on the $200,000 downtown study were made public last week. The studies are being prepared by three national consultant firms.

"I AM SPEAKING essentially of construction projects in the downtown," Sensenbrenner explained, "and the precedent has been set with $109 million poured into some 36 new buildings and building expansions in the central business district since 1961."

Claiming that the ripples of downtown progress will be felt throughout all areas of the city during the next 19 years, he pointed out that Columbus will have two square miles of convention, tourist and shopping facilities comparing favorably to any city in the nation. It will all be in the heart of the city, the mayor said.

In his previous news conference, Sensenbrenner ticked off of downtown needs as 3800 hotel rooms in addition to the current 2,800 in operation, 8.5 million square feet of new office space, three million square feet of new retail and service space, two million square feet of space for industries of a nature demanding proximity to downtown transportation and 1600 more housing units.

IN ADDITION to land costs, Sensenbrenner believes a $427 million construction figure is a conservative estimate of downtown construction that will materialize by 1985. This figure is based on current per square foot building costs which run roughly $30 for office construction, $20 for residential and $10 for industrial construction.

Sensenbrenner also reported that he has instructed Development Director James R. Crozier to present "full speed ahead" on assembling data on the planned river front complex.

This proposal involves, at the least, a convention arena building and possibly will include a stadium, performing arts centers, riverfront bandshell, malls and fountains. The mayor has long pushed this plan as a drawing card to the city for both conventions and individuals.

DOWNTOWN campuses for the proposed Columbus Technical Institute and a relocated Franklin University are also goals of the man who best likes to be known as "The mayor of the 'All-American' City."

He concluded with the view that the strength and prosperity of downtown Columbus is essential to the suburban and satellite communities surrounding Columbus proper.

"WE NOW HAVE 1,000 manufacturing industries in Metropolitan Columbus and a strong downtown as well as good residential and shopping neighborhoods throughout the city are vital to these industries and the persons they employ—as well as the customers that they bring into town," he emphasized.

A GAS WATER HEATER IS GOOD TO THE LAST TOT.

Mom did a huge laundry, a couple sinkfuls of dishes and Sis used a tub-and-a-half of hot water for her bath. Then came baby's bath. After that, Dad and his shower. As Dad began his sixteenth chorus of The Road to Mandalay, Junior's hopes soared. This might be the night. The night they ran out of hot water!

Not a chance! Not with a Gas water heater.

But cheer up Junior. A Gas water heater isn't all bad. Since it does the job at about one-half the cost of heating water electrically, the money a Gas water heater saves in a single year could buy someone a brand new bicycle. Someone who takes his bath without a big fuss.

COLUMBIA GAS OF OHIO

THINK OF ALL THE THINGS YOU CAN DO WITH THE MONEY YOU SAVE. GAS MAKES THE BIG DIFFERENCE.

And So It Grows

Prepared By The Ohio Extension Service

Your lawn probably will look brown early this spring, if it's like most lawns across the state. With a lack of snow this winter, grass hasn't had the protection from cold, drying winds that cause the tops to be brown.

Your grass isn't dead, but it could use some attention the last of March or early April to speed up greening and to prevent a thatch problem. Ohio State University Extension turf specialists suggest you either go over the lawn with a thatch remover (also called a vertical mower) or set your lawn mower at a low level to remove some of the brown grass. You can rent a thatch remover from most garden and nursery stores.

Then rake up the browned grass and apply a moderate amount of fertilizer such as 10 pounds per 1000 square feet of 10-6-4 or equivalent.

With all the fruit varieties shown in catalogs and offered at stores, choosing what to plant if you'd like just a few varieties in the backyard is difficult. So, here's a list Extension horticulturists recommend for home gardeners.

- Strawberries — Sunrise, Midway, Surecrop, and Sparkle.
- Grapes—Concord and Fredonia, or try Romulus and Himrod, two seedless varieties.
- Raspberries — for black, try Bristol, and for red get Latham or Milton.
- Plums — Stanley Prune type or Green Gage type such as Reine Claude.
- Sour cherries — Montmorency.
- Peaches — from early to late maturing, choose from Sunhaven, Redhaven, Richhaven and Redskin.
- Apples — Lodi or Transparent for an early crop for applesauce; Red Melba, which matures in early to mid-August; Jonathan, Red Delicious or Golden Delicious for fall and winter varieties—or Melrose or Staymen for a late keeping apple.

When planting fruits, remember to plant two varieties of apples, pears and sweet cherries to get good cross pollination and therefore good fruit set. One variety is enough for small fruits as well as peaches and prune plums.

A soil test is a handy thing to have, but it's not the answer to all your gardening problems. If you had trouble with your plants last year and the soil test did not expose the cause of the trouble, better look elsewhere. Look for disease injury or insect damage. How's your drainage? Are you using recommended varieties? Are your crops too close to a shade tree? Are you over-watering? Are you planting at the right time?

Ohio Seed Law prohibits the sale of any seed which carries a test date of more than nine months, not counting the month in which the test was made. Gardeners should not buy seed which has a test date longer than that.

You'll save yourself a peck of trouble this summer by making sure the bulbs, seeds and plants you buy are healthy and disease-free. You can check bulbs for bruises or soft spots. Sellers of seeds and plants often include a written guarantee.

Saddle Club Plans Program At P-V High

The Midwestern Saddle Club will present another in its "Spotlight in Youth" programs May 19, at 8: p.m. at Pleasant View High School in the South-Western City School District.

The club, composed of members from the Columbus area, is designed to create and stimulate interest in horsemanship and horseback riding as recreational activity.

Plans for the Pleasant View program will be discussed March 23 at a dinner meeting of the organization at the Everglades.

Jerry V. Vernon, 231 Lawrence, is program chairman. Officers of the group are Groveport Police Chief Al Whipple, president; Deputy Sheriff Malcolm Coogan, secretary, and Marvin Mann, director.

Speech Defects To Be Discussed

Robert D. Stimpert, 171 W. Granville-rd, Worthington, a speech pathologist, will be the guest speaker for the Parents' Group of the Franklin Society for Crippled Children tonight at 7:30.

Stimpert will speak on "Speech and Hearing Defects in Handicapped Children and Their Correction." The meeting will be held at the Treatment Center, 555 S. Monroe-av, and is open to the public.

St. Joseph Academy Mothers Plan Luncheon, Fashion Show

Mrs. John Crawford, 816 Plum Tree-dr, in Worthington, is chairman of the luncheon and fashion show March 29 in the Neil House Ballroom.

Co-chairman of the event which is the only major fund-raising project sponsored annually by the St. Joseph Academy Mothers' Club and will follow the theme "Step Into Spring as Fresh as a Daisy" is Mrs. D. Bruce Bishoff, 9379 Vinewood-ct. Mrs. Thomas Brosmer, 1196 Northmoor-pl, and Mrs. Robert McQuade, 2221 Glenmoor, are serving as reservation chairmen.

DURING THE fashion show presented by the Union Company, a $500 Savings Bond, a $250 portrait by Ivan Pusecker, German Village artist, and a wig from the Michael Anthony Beauty shop will be given away.

Money raised at the luncheon is earmarked for the building program of the 92-year-old academy at Rich and Grant-av.

Staffed by the Sisters of Notre Dame de Namur, the only private Catholic school in Columbus has acquired land in the adjacent urban-renewal area bordering Grant and E. Main where a new elementary building will be constructed. It will replace the one now in use which was erected as a convent for the Sisters in 1863.

THE PROPOSED elementary will house, in addition to classrooms for girls enrolled in kindergarten through the eighth grade, will include primary classes for boys and the facilities and equipment for the first Montessori school to be established in the city. (Such a school, named for its originator, permits students to advance in each subject at a pace commensurate with their ability in a particular field).

The master plan for the school which has traditionally served both Catholic and Protestant families of the community will also expand the high school facilities with new emphasis on preparation for college.

Spruce in their chocolate brown slacks and blazers coordinated with the uniforms worn by the girls enrolled at St. Joseph are these young men, members of the first class for boys, Shown with Sister Margaret Joseph of the Order of Notre Dame whose Sisters came to Columbus 12 years before the Columbus Diocese was formed are, from the foreground, Eric Wilson, Timmy Haddow, Drayton Mayers and Jim Cannon.

Executive Forum Ready To Join Ohio Effort To Court Industry

The Executive Forum will kick off its endeavors to promote Columbus and Ohio as good places to do business and to attract new business and industry at a dinner at the Fort Hayes Hotel tonight.

Formed by the Columbus Business University, the Forum enrolls the top 25 percent of CBU students and leading businessmen throughout the state.

ACCORDING TO Thomas Pinstrill, Forum president who is an accounting major from Bucyrus, the principal project for 1967 already initiated by the 200 student members is compiling of a detailed list of 200 companies that may be enticed to come to Columbus.

Ronald Klein, industrial sales manager of the Ohio Department of Development, will speak before the group at its first formal meeting. Klein who leaves for Belgium shortly to open up Ohio's first European trade office will review the efforts that brought Ohio recognition last year as the first state ever to acquire $2 billion worth of new business and industry in a single year.

MORE THAN 100 of the business membership of the Forum which includes G. Keith Funston, president of the New York Stock Exchange; Richard Nixon, former vice-president and Mayor Sensenbrenner are expected.

The part of the adult leaders in the Forum will be to acquaint the business students with the products, business trends and opportunities in the individual industries they represent.

In turn, the student members will, through monthly field trips in the area, verse themselves in the operation of local companies, and, through quarterly trips to New York, Chicago and Washington D. C., learn first hand the functions of such bodies as Congress, the New York Stock Exchange and the Chicago Board of Trade.

WITH TWO - THIRDS of CBU graduates remaining in the Columbus Metropolitan area, the business know-how and familiarity with private enterprise acquired by the Forum members is viewed as a direct asset to the community.

ICE Meets Today

An opening meeting of the Council on Intercultural Education will be held this afternoon in the Board Room of the Columbus Board of Education Building, 270 E. State-st. The group, appointed by the Board last year and chaired by Dr. Richard Mall, has already taken the position that racial imbalance is a factor effecting quality of education in Columbus public schools.

C-W Bows Proudly To Tough Ross

By BOB WHITMAN
Spectator Staff Writer

There they were . . . dressed in flashy new warm-ups and standing one of the best 16 teams in Class A Ohio.

And then, there they were . . . being run ragged by a faster, surer, sharper contender from Ross County, and losing not because they were so bad but because for that one Friday night Southeastern was so superb.

Nothing Canal Winchester could do—and they tried several wrinkles in the 32 minutes they were in front of 6,700 Fairgrounds Coliseum customers — could dent Southeastern's slick shooting handicraft.

AND IF anything can be said in C-W's favor after an 81-48 Regional semi-final loss, it has to be the grace with which the steamed up Indians took defeat, which was inevitable for 25 minutes. And added to that, the honorable fact that they never threw in the towel.

"This was our best game by far all year," said a victorious 27-year-old Dave Augspurger, "and I was certainly pleased with our defense because they kept at us."

AUGSPURGER blamed himself for the four Panther losses early in the season this year with a veteran team back from the Class A State semi-finals. "I expected too much from them, I guess, and we just didn't get started until midseason."

The Ross Countians have rung up 13 straight wins since falling to Huntington 77-74 and have done so mostly with the same awesome shooting they used to dismantle Winchester Friday.

AUGSPURGER'S quintet used shooting alone in the first period in handing Canal its fifth loss of the season against 18 wins under Bob Miller, now in his 13th year at his Alma Mater.

Peppery guard Doug Hill hit five straight in widening a 22-8 first period gap which Canal could never close on the 13 points of Vic Argobright and the 12 points of Dick Whitmer.

HILL FINISHED with 22 tallies on 10 buckets in 14 attempts and two for two at the foul line. Other Southeastern starters were as sharp from the floor in leading the Panthers to a 35 of 70 shooting evening for an even 50 percent.

Southeastern game plan was to move its zone out, forcing Argobright, Whitmer and forward Kim Black to shoot out of accustomed position. That was accomplished as the deadly trio was made to fire from past 25 feet, causing many shots to go awry.

THE SLENDER Augspurger did concede the fact that the Indians might elect to fire high to 6-5½ center Bill Miles, who finished his junior year with a nine point night.

"I thought they might try it a few times and our back men were alert," he said, "but the bulk of their attack this season has come from out front and on the side."

MORGUES have been noisier than C-W's dressing den after the game as dejected Indians wore bewildered expressions.

"We really didn't think they were htat good," said co-captain Argobright. "I don't believe they shot that well."

JUNIOR BILL Miles figured that the Panthers were "a little rougher (physically) than our other opponents and that might have had something to do with it."

But the man who led the Indians this far just shook his head. "Well, if you are going to get beat, it's best to get beat by a good one," was Miller optimism.

"They took us outside and forced us to shoot," he continued, "and they had pressure out front so we couldn't work the ball in very well."

"They were a good, aggressive ball team and a lot better than we thought from watching them play," he concluded.

Southeastern was a good aggressive ball club Saturday afternoon also. The Panthers brought down the State's top Class A cage squad — Ames Bern (25-0)—by a 62-47 mark.

That puts Augspurger's dandies in the Semi-final round in the State tournament Friday at 1:30 against unbeaten Strasburg (25-0), with the winner meeting either Kalida (17-8) or Arcancum (23-2), who play at 3:30.

Linden—

straight as the 6-3 jumping jack dandy joined Brown and Cleamons Saturday to beat East at its own game of rebounding. Linden grabbed 23 bounds to the Tigers' 17.

In the second game Friday evening jet-quick Cleveland East Tech, who has never been beaten on the floor (the Scarabs owe their two losses to an ineligible player who participated in the first two games) battles unheralded LaSalle, who opened tourney firing with a 7-11 record.

THE TALL Scarabs will have to fight off the brawn and defense of the Lancers, but come into the "last roundup" with plenty of fuel power necessary to perform that feat.

Up front for East Tech, coached by John Chavers who owns a 68-15 coaching log in his fourth season at the Vocational school, will be a 6-8 pivot ace Ray Reynolds with 6-6 forward Bill Lucas alongside of him for help. Tom Brister, hot-shot Myron Rogers and Marv Morris round out the Scarab five.

LaSalle, who will be vying for the first crown for a Cincinnati school in the history of the tourney, bases its offense on Chuck Kromer and Terry Sillies. Jim Ruwe, Tom Schwegman and Mark Poppe fill out the Lancer combination.

Cinder Title Encores Loom For Vet-Rich Lions, Rams

THE SPECTATOR SPORTS

By JACK WITTENMEIER
Spectator Sports Editor

It might seem strange that one adjoining section of Eastern Franklin County should envelop such an abundance of track talent this spring.

But the quality of strangeness wears off when you zero focus down to magnify Gahanna-Lincoln and Whitehall-Yearling.

FOR BOTH Ed Rarey's Lions and Pat McMillen's Rams look equal to the task of defending respective Mid-Eight and Metropolitan League titles this spring.

WITH 16 returning vets, Gahanna's push toward a fifth straight loop title seems a bit smoother.

The Lions vaulted all the way to a third place District finish (behind winner Arlington and Hilliard) last spring, adding to a dual and triangular treasure chest which straddles two unbeaten seasons and includes only one setback in the past four campaigns.

Despite the heavy letterman return, Gahanna doesn't return everyone.

FOR STARTERS, Mike Bokros (high and low hurdles) District champ last spring, fourth in state in both events, holds school mark in highs (:14.4) and lows (:19.6) is missing.

Also taken by graduation was Mid-Eight champ and Lion shot put record holder (55' 11") Nelson Bobb plus top-notch high jumper John Marsch and outstanding distance men Tim Horn and Mike Haninger.

Three of the quartet are now performing in college—Bokros at Miami (of Ohio), Marsch at Maryland U., and Hanninger at OSU.

RAREY, who joyfully pointed out that his '66 Lions were basically a junior-sophomore squad, figures depth to be Gahanna's selling point this spring.

"We don't have an exceptional number of boys out but those we do have are quality performers," the Lion Mentor added.

Possible high-point of the '67 season could come as early as April 11 when Gahanna journeys to Upper Arlington for a dual test with the District champs.

"WE'RE REALLY looking forward to it," Rarey states. "It's a big step for us."

The 16 returning vets are: seniors—Clark Coleman (pole vault), Doug Young (long jump), Chuck Bosse (high jump), Larry Barth (long jump), and Tim Sullivan (PV); juniors — Bob Bay (sprints), Ron Doran (sprints), Fred Browning (discus-shot), Dan Pullen (sprints), Ron Goldhardt (hurdles), Charlie Freeman (sprints), Bruce Baker (hurdles, sprints) and Alan Strickling (miler); sophomores —Tony Leek (sprints), Bill Price (distances) and Mike Browning (shot put, discus).

THE PRIMARY keys should be field men Fred Browning (holds school discus mark, 159' 11½") and Bosse (school HJ mark, 6'2" went 6'4" in Jr. Olympics last summer), miler Strickling (holds school mark of 4:34:6) and sprinters Doran and Leek.

Doran gained All-Ohio recognition last spring, won the Mid-Eight title and holds the school 440 mark of :49.5.

But the real sleeper in Rarey's estimation could well be sophomore Leek whose '67 indoor effort (:52.3 in 440, 22.5 in 220) show evidence of an ability to duplicate or better Doran's best efforts to date.

WITH 13 returning vets, a minimum of departees (two) from a good '66 squad and six "sure-fire" varsity candidates moving up, Pat McMillen can afford to be nearly as optimistic at Whitehall.

"Depth will have to do it for us again this spring," the Ram mentor suggests. "We didn't score a lot of firsts last year "WE'RE REALLY looking hanna's top selling point this but our depth got us a lot of places."

Only big setbacks from that '66 squad were pole vaulter Steve Beery (age ineligibility) and 440 standout Perry Linn, one-fourth of the Rams' record-breaking (3:31 flat) mile relay quartet, who has moved to Virginia.

HEADING THE returnees are co-captains Scott Graeler (shot, discus man) and Count Fuller (440, long jump) and a pair of defending Metro League Meet champs — Dave Mowrer (shot put) and Randy Nichols (both high and low hurdles). All are seniors.

McMillen figures Fuller should develop into one of the area's finer long jumpers, the Ram co-captain reaching the 21 ft. mark last spring.

Other returning vets include seniors—Jim Cooper (shot, discus), Lew Anderson (440, hurdles), Gayle Flynn (distances) and Gary Hunter (sprints); juniors—Gary Turner (distances), Pete Maxfield (pole vault), Mike Gillespie (high jump, hurdles), Vando Rogers (distances) and Dan Reid (distances).

BUT PERHAPS the greatest lift for continuing Ram cinder success is the arrival of six graduates from Rosemore's excellent thin squad of last spring.

Moving up to the varsity are standouts Butch Sark (pole vault, high jump), Steve Southworth (440), Clay Fuller (sprints), Alan Francis (sprints), Glenn Foltz (hurdles) and George Heaton (shot, discus).

McMillan sees his squad's strongest events likely to be the quarter and half mile in the track events and shot put in the field line-up.

THE RAM cinder boss lists Franklin Heights and Reynoldsburg as Whitehall's chief roadblocks in a run for repeat Metro League laurels.

It's Cougars Vs Colts For City Title Berth

The Cougars face the Colts tomorrow evening to decide the American Division playoff spot in the Whitehall boys' basketball program.

The winner will battle the undisputed National Division champion—the Hawks — in a best-of-three series opening Saturday to settle the City championship.

THE COUGARS earned playoff advancement by downing the American Division tri-champ Bobcats, 43-28, Monday.

Randy Foster and Don Norris (23 and 12 pts. respectively) paced the Cougar victory which saw the winners limit the 'Cats to a bare two points in the second half.

Bob Eicher led the losers' scoring attack with 16 markers while teammate Bob Winegardner added eight points.

CITY championship play opens Saturday (10 a.m.) at Kae Avenue school with the second game scheduled a week from today (7 p.m.) at the same site.

The third game (if necessary) is slated for Saturday, Mar. 25 (10 a.m.) at the East Main Street school gymnasium.

In the league All-Star game last week, American Leaguers downed their National League counterparts, 42-33, behind Bob Eicher's 16 and Randy Foster's 13-point performances.

ALUMNI EXEC CONTENDS

School To Lose 40 Acres To Road

By WALTER TAYLOR
Spectator Staff Writer

An officer of the Ohio School for the Deaf Alumni Association has charged that the northern alignment or "ravine route" of the Morse Road extension now being studied by Columbus and the Ohio General Assembly would sever nearly 40 acres of valuable land from the School for the Deaf.

Dr. James T. Flood, executive secretary for the Association, said the route through the school would also create an extremely hazardous situation and completely destroy the beauty of the area.

The deaf school stands to lose 17.4 acres to the road itself. In addition, Flood said, an alignment would cut off an additional 22 acres from the central school area making that land southwest of the road "practically useless."

Flood said engineers also report that the school will lose an additional acre for accesses to and from the school grounds.

Among the facilities Flood said would be lost to the school are areas designated as future construction sites for student dormitories and school additions, scenic areas now utilized for the recreation of the students and existing athletic fields for track, football and baseball.

Flood said the road which engineering reports say will run 20 feet below grade level will create untold dangers for students. "Twenty feet is a pretty big hole for a child to fall into," Flood says. "A fence around the road will just enhance the challenge for young explorers."

The main consideration lies with the 22 acres that will be cut off by this road, Flood said. "When the school gets the funds to proceed, it had planned to expand its dormitory system and build a pre-school in that area," Flood said. He said that unlike a college campus, the school could not have buildings and dormitories scattered about the grounds.

"All other buildings are situated around the administration building. New buildings should be constructed the same way," he said.

Flood also had a few words to say about contentions of the "ravine route" proponents that a southern routing would destroy valuable Old Beechwold homes.

"In the first place, the homes in question are not even in Old Beechwold," Flood said. "In the second place, most of these 'valuable' homes are very unattractive 'doll houses' with no real value at all."

Flood said the alignment running just south of Graceland Shopping Center "would do little more than claim a trailer court and homes that now face either back yards of 'legitimate' Beechwold homes or the parking lot of the Woolco Department Store."

The executive secretary called these houses "far from beautiful."

One of the claims put forth by opponents to routing through the area behind Graceland is that areas on both sides of the road wou'd soon be open for commercial development.

Flood says that such an alignment would "in all probability" create a natural barrier to stop just such development.

But Flood's main concern is not where the road should be built. He is concerned where it shouldn't be constructed—specifically through the State School for the Deaf.

"I just wonder what Ohio Senator (Robert) Shaw (strong supporter of the northern alignment) will have to say when the new road becomes obsolete in 10 or 15 years, and the city decides it wants to add two or three more lanes. Then we'll have to give up more land. It may never end," Flood said.

Teen Bands To Audition

With more combos signed up to participate in the "Battle of the Bands" tenatively scheduled March 25 at the Groveport Civic Center than can be accommodated at one time, Pete Franks, board chairman, has announced a revision of plans.

Auditions will be held at Saturday afternoon dances, and the bands surviving these preliminaries will be matched with the winning groups meeting new challengers at evening dances.

Franks said he anticipates that the first of the daylight dances will be held between 2 and 4 p.m. this Saturday, with admission by membership card only. (The actual play-offs will be open to the public and admission charged.)

He stated that notice of the dance will be posted in the Center window as soon as plans are jelled.

Franks also reports that folk singers will meet on Tuesday evenings under the supervision of Terry Hollinger, Groveport-Madison Junior High math teacher with whom folk singing is a hobby. The first session is slated for April 4.

Do your part to help another less fortunate than yourself by wearing a lily on March 18 and giving a contribution to a Y-Teen.

UCC To Step Up Welfare Fight

Welfare mothers, welfare workers and community leaders will spotlight the public welfare problem Tuesday when the United Community Council holds a special membership meeting at 8 p.m. at the Beasley-Deshler ballroom.

The public meeting is another part of UCC's efforts to raise payments for Aid to Dependent Children to 100 percent of minimum requirements.

Among the participants will be Dean Phillips, 3923 Chevington-rd, president of the Ohio Citizens Council; Mrs. Robert Lazarus, 2094 Park Hill-dr, chairman of UCC's Public Welfare Education Committee; attorney Sol Morton Isaac, 222 Ashbourne-rd; businessman Patrick J. Kirwin,, 5730 Sandalwood-bl, and Richard J. Murphey, 2591 Haveford, chairman of UCC's Legislative Committee.

UCC PRESIDENT O. A. Donnenwirth said the session is "vital in light of the recent state address by Gov. James A. Rhodes."

Donnenwirth said that UCC's efforts, combined with those of other groups in the state, have resulted in the governor's statement that further increases in payments are needed.

But Donnenwirth said the proposed budget for AFDC includes matching funds to help counties bring their AFDC payments to 100 percent of minimum standards, making it necessary for drives to be started in each of the state's 88 counties.

"THE WAY in which all minimum standards are reached must be clearly defined before we can think of realizing our effort in behalf of the 17,000 Franklin County and 140,000 Ohio children now on AFDC," he said.

"Our elected legislators, who now must act favorably on the governor's proposal before 100 percent can be reached, need to know that our community is supporting the principle of increasing the grants from the present 73 cents per person per day to the $1.18 minimum set by the State Department of Welfare," Donnenwirth said.

He said attendance at the March 21 meeting "by representatives of the more than 100 civic, professional, labor and religious groups who have endorsed the principle of full time minimum standards for AFDC . . . will 'bear witness' to our support."

NINE MORE organizations this week joined the list of groups endorsing the 100 percent principle.

The 1,000 member Ohio Division of the American Association for Maternal and Child Health pledged full support, as did the Lutheran Welfare Council of Ohio.

Other groups joining the UCC effort were the East Side Branch of the Y.M.C.A. board of management, the Commission of Christian Social Concerns of North Broadway Methodist Church, the Methodist Children's Home, the Rosary Altar Society of Immaculate Conception Church, Women's Auxiliary to Goodwill Industries, Local 927 of the United Auto Workers, Local 98 of the Sheet Metal Workers and the Ohio Conference of Painters.

Church To Present 3 One-Act Plays

The Drama Club of the First Unitarian Church, 93 W. Weisheimer, will present three one-act plays by Jean-Paul Sartre and George Bernard Shaw March 17 and 18 at 8:30 p.m.

Sartre's "No Exit" is an exploration of the essence of Hell, and Shaw's "Overruled" and "A Village Wooing" are comedies of marriage, morals and mores.

The cast includes Gracie Beach, Carol Brody, Joe Colucci, Sandra Grote, Paul Heins, Justin Jones, Liselette Sherwood, Ann Shibliq, Joel Snodgrass and Clint Wallbank.

All presentations are under direction of Joe Colluci. Tickets are available at the door on the nights of production.

Who's For Montreal?

Do you know any juniors and seniors who want to see the world without joining the Navy?

Well, Don Forquer, librarian at Teays Valley High School, has at least a partial cure for their wanderlust.

As usual, he has organized a June excursion and as a few seats on the chartered bus that will wend its way to the Montreal Fair are still unspoken for, he is accepting reservations from students from other schools.

The group, which will take off on June 3 and return June 10, plans overnight stops at Niagara Falls, Ottawa, Montreal and a New York State resort known as "Hidden Valley."

The few seats available will be sold on a first-come, first-served basis.

Forquer has all the details and can be reached at 28 Wright-st, Ashville, or by calling 983-2643.

UA Is Favored To Win 'Preview'

Defending District champion Upper Arlington, who almost doubled the margin on its nearest competitor enroute to its '66 title, is the "critic's choice" for honors at Saturday's annual Indoor Track Meet at OSU French Field House.

'66 District runnerup Hilliard, returning a pair of District champions in shot puter Bruce Adams and discus flinger Peter Miller, and always-tough Gahanna (16 lettermen returning this spring) are expected to give the Golden Bears their strongest competition — along with perennial strong boys East and Worthington.

THE INDOOR Meet, the Central District's "sneak preview" for the spring sport, will get underway at 9:30 a.m. with qualifications for the high and low hurdles, 60-yd dash and 880 relay events.

Class A finals will begin at approximately 12:30 p.m. with AA finals slated for 2:30.

MAVERICK

With Muddy Shoes

RICHARD L. PAUGH

I just got word an old friend is coming to town. If you readers are anything like me, the second and third telling of a hunting or fishing adventure is as much fun as the happening turned out to be.

So it is with Ebb Warren. He seems to re-enjoy the immediacy and the thrill of wildlife encounter during the telling as much as in the living.

EBB WARREN is part of the Wally Taber Shows that tour these United States, bringing with them the love of the outdoors and the thrill of personal accomplishment. Ebb is scarcely five feet tall, with a healthy grin and a boyish attitude toward the world. I first met him four years ago when he first visited Columbus with his excellent photography coupled with his eager lecture.

PAUGH

After hobnobbing with Wally Taber himself, I was prepared to put up with something less. Was I surprised! Ebb Warren turned out to be one of the most knowledgeable outdoorsmen and expert cinematographer I could imagine.

SO WHEN I learned he was going to be in town again, I got the details to pass on. This trip, Ebb will have not one but two lectures.

The first is TRANS-CANADA SAFARI and I understand it includes hunting moose, grizzlies, mountain sheep, caribou and deer from Newfoundland to Alaska. He ought to do another fine job, since he lived for many years in the North country.

The second feature is entitled TANGANYIKA TROPHIES and is the story of how Ebb along with Pat Hemingway, son of the famous author, scored on the "big five" of Africa—not once but twice.

THE BIG FIVE of Africa are rhino, elephant, buffalo, lion and leopard. To score in the win column with all five on one trip is like totaling 900 in three games at the bowling alley.

There is no doubt that all large game is getting scarce in Africa. Since home rule took over, the word "conservation" is seldom heard. The once abundant veldt is now mighty sparse in game. It is quite possible no one will ever again take Africa's "big five" in one trip.

Thanks to Ebb Warren, the record of his accomplishments is recorded for you to see. Having the son of the world's best author on Africa along is a big bonus for those who are in attendance.

EBB WILL hold forth only once in Central Ohio this year. He will appear at Veterans Memorial in Columbus at 8 p.m. Sunday, March 19.

I strongly advise you to circle your calendar for that date. Treat the whole family. It's the kind of family fun we seldom get these days.

If you or yours are involved in scouting, this is a prime time to troop up to Vets' Memorial. I guarantee those youngsters will go out of there with their eyeballs bugged out. The final treat of the night is getting to shake Ebb's hand in the lobby afterward.

HE'S NEVER too busy to stop and shoot the bull with just "folks." He'll answer any and all questions thrown at him. When you leave, you'll feel like I do about Ebb Warren — you'll be glad you know him.

One last thing: Ebb is being brought to Columbus by the Allied Conservation Clubs, a group of independent clubs which will put your entertainment dollars to work in the outdoors.

I'll see you there Sunday night.

Checkers Wrap Up Home Season With 'Irish Special'

The Columbus Checkers will honor the Irish on St. Patrick's Day (Friday), when they battle the Dayton Gems at 8 p.m. at the Fairgrounds Coliseum.

All persons whose names begin with O', like O'Brien, O'Day, or O'Leary, will get a $1 discount on regular $3.50, $3, or $2.50 reserved seats if they purchase their tickets in advance.

TICKETS MAY be pucrhased at Central Ticket Office, 37 N. High-st, Sears Northland or Town and Country, or Discount Records, 1956 N. High-st.

There will be two Irishmen whom the Checkers will not honor. They are Gems' General Manager Lefty McFadden and Bob Bailey, Dayton's star center.

The Checkers have played some of their toughest battles against first-place Dayton. Many of the hockey games have erupted into fistfights.

THE GEMS' Bailey cut up Checkers' rookie Garry MacMillan on Sunday, Mar. 5, and sent defenseman Jim Graham to the hospital with a sprained back, after checking him violently into the boards.

Friday's game will mark the second-last home contest of Columbus' maiden hockey season. The Chex close out their 36-game home schedule Sunday at 3 p.m. when they host the Des Moines Oak Leafs.

Lt. Col. Miccacchion Gives Vietnam Talk

Lt. Col. Richard Micacchion, 2405 Steiner-rd, presented a talk and slide show of Vietnam to the Reynoldsburg Kiwanis Club March 7, Col. Micacchion was stationed in Vietnam during 1962 and 1963.

Micacchion said he feels the people of Vietnam are anxious to become educated and that this is their key to the future.

The Kiwanis Club of Carbonear, Canada, has been assigned the "Brother Club" to the Reynoldsburg club. The two clubs plan to exchange correspondence.

Reynoldsburg Jaycees Against Consular Treaty

The Reynoldsburg Jaycees passed a resolution against the Soviet Consular Treaty at a meeting held March 9.

"It is our firm belief that while our friends, relatives and fellow Americans' blood is being shed in Vietnam by Soviet weapons, it would be sheer folly to embrace the Soviet Union here at home by ratifying a treaty to open Soviet Consulates in our cities," the resolution reads.

It further states that copies of the resolution will be mailed to representatives in the United States Senate.

The proposed treaty would permit the United States and the Soviet Union to open consulates in major cities of both countries.

THREE EAST SIDERS WIN SCIENCE FAIR MEDALS

Three area students grabbed a share of the honors Saturday at the annual Central Ohio Regional Science Fair held on the Otterbein College Campus.

Area winners were Sharon Elaine Nicholson, 16, a Whitehall-Yearling High School senior; Stan N. Finkelstein, 17, also a Whitehall senior and David William Drake, 18, a senior at Walnut Ridge High School.

MISS NICHOLSON, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Nicholson of 483 Beaver-av, was one of two first place winners in the fair. She became the first student in the fair's six-year history to win a top award three consecutive years.

She and her co-winner, Jeff Hill of Whetstone High School, received first-place medals and will receive all-expense paid trips to the international Science Fair in May in San Francisco.

Her high school advisor, Robert D. Doe of 64 E. Beechwold-bl, will make the trip with her.

Sharon's winning exhibit was entitled "Microbial Bleaching of Ceramic Material," with the purpose of removing red iron coloration from clay by using bacteria.

FINKELSTEIN, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Finkelstein of 4059 Etna-st, and Drake, son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Drake of 5107 Justin-dr, were named Medal Award winners and received honorable mention medals.

Finkelstein's exhibit, "Hemoglobin Oxygenation Studies," also earned him a $25 award from the London High Science Club for outstanding physical science project. Drake's exhibit was entitled "Antibacterial Substances Discovered in Seeds as Possible Blastokolin Effect Agents." His adviser is Thomas O. Kramer of 687 S. Cassingham-rd.

A total of 67 students from 34 Central Ohio high schools competed in the fair, co-sponsored by Otterbein College and Battelle Memorial Institute.

Sharon Elaine Nicholson of Whitehall-Yearling High School receives her first place medal in the Central Ohio Regional Science Fair from David C. Minton, Jr., director of the Columbus laboratories of Battelle Memorial Institute. It was Sharon's third consecutive win in the competition, co-sponsored by Battelle and Otterbein College.

Twyford Plans To Push For Own Muny Tax Rebate Plan

Reynoldsburg Mayor George W. Twyford is so dissatisfied over the present tax rebate bills before the legislature that he's planning to promote his own.

"None of the bills presently pending before the legislature are satisfactory in my judgment," Twyford said. "They don't resolve the problem in a fair and equitable manner."

HE ADDED that he will promote a fourth bill which will "better meet the needs of suburbs and at the same time understand the problems of the core city. It will not be a bill to increase the present rate but rather a better distribution of this money."

Twyford said that a 25 percent rebate of city-income tax money collected from residents of the suburbs is more realistic than the present bills because it takes into account the interest of both the core cities and the suburbs.

"Any sharing of tax money which approaches 50 percent is unrealistic," Twyford said. "But a 25 percent rebate on tax money collected from suburbs is more realistic and fair for all concerned."

IN REPLY to Columbus Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner's statement for suburbs to annex to the core city, Twyford said, "Mayor Sensenbrenner's attitude is an unrealistic evaluation of the problem. The cities and suburbs are interdependent. Industry couldn't be attracted to Columbus unless suburbs provided places for people to live.

"We should be neighbors and work together on our problem. It would be a detriment to Columbus to not work out a fair program. Mayor Sensenbrenner could avoid having legislature act in a manner contrary to interests of the core cities. He doesn't want to hurt the City of Columbus in any way and it wouldn't be hurt under any of the proposals I have made.

"It is unfortunate that he won't be realistic and understand that other people have problems as well as Columbus," Twyford added.

EVHS Open To Parochial Students

By JANE ROBINSON
Spectator Staff Writer

Students of parochial schools of the Eastland Joint Vocational School District will be "counted in" according to David B. Martin, superintendent.

Although in some similar schools (the Penta County school near Toledo, for example) only parochial students transferring to a participating school district have been eligible for enrollment, the Eastland policy will be much broader.

Definite guidelines will not be established until after conferring with Msgr. Bennett Applegate who heads up the diocesan schools, but Martin is certain parochial students interested in Eastland will have three choices.

In addition to entering the school by transfer they can also enter directly from the church school which they have attended on the same basis as students from public schools. (This involves full schedules at Eastland with extra curricular activities only based at the home school.)

The third alternative to be offered, and probably the most attractive to those dedicated to secular type of education is one through which the parochial student will attend Eastland only for vocational courses of his choice while attending his private school for academic classes.

CONCEDING THAT such a set-up will provide some problems in scheduling, Martin believes that with a spirit of mutual cooperation between all schools affected, the intricacies can be resolved.

Agreement to rename the district to Eastland from Eastern Franklin County Joint Vocational School District was not an earth-shaking matter when the board met this month.

However, the decision, according to Martin, was a welcome one, as there was considerable confusion with the high school bearing the one tag and the district another.

ALTHOUGH UNTIL construction bids are in the board is uncertain what funds will be left over for equipment, it is believed that "loose" equipment and furniture (as opposed to stationary, "built in items") should cost about $500,000.

GRR-EAT Panthers Wreck Tech

A SMALL-FRY SPY BECOMES . . .

What's this — a junior-sized James Bond tuning in on game strategy during Linden's AA state basketball championship battle against Cleveland East Tech Saturday night? Wonder if Panther coach Vince Chickerella is aware of this huddle intruder, peering for light between a forest of Linden cagers

'Chic(k)' Defense Earns Linden State Title, 88-56

By BOB WHITMAN
Spectator Staff Writer

The brash and unorganized battler, recklessly shooting basketballs and committing countless turnovers, was finessed out of the Class AA State Tournament in year 1967 by a beautifully controlled outfit which in 32 emotion-packed minutes dominated the 45th renewal of the schoolboy classic.

It was Vince Chickerella's demanding standard of excellence and his five boys' driving will to win that was most important in Linden-McKinley making a rambling wreck out of Cleveland East Tech Saturday night to give the school its first State Championship and the proud City it represented its third such charm in five years.

. . . THE PROUDEST PANTHER!

This spy thriller has a happy ending since Linden won the state title with an 88-56 rout of Tech and the pint-sized spy turned out to be coach Chickerella's nine-year-old son Jimmy. Indoor Meet Saturday Tests Improvement On '66 Timetable

Area track coaches are forecasting that Saturday's Central District Indoor Track Meet at OSU's French Field House could well be the "best ever."

The mentors base their optimism on U.S. Track and Field Federation Development Meets which has promoted competitive incentive and brought area schoolboy cindermen to better performances earlier this Spring than ever before.

THE HALF-MILE event is a prime example. Two area runners—East's Eugene Hadden (2:01) and Worthington's John Titus (2:01.3)—have already zipped under the 2:02 mark.

Three shot puters have cleared the 50 ft. mark—Hilliard's Bruce Adams (57'7"), Central's Larry Knight (53'9") and South's Tim Lynch (52'9").

In the 60-yd dash, check times like Whetstone's Bill Ismon's and Bruce Kaplan's and Central's Roger Coffey (all 6.6) and South's Rick Bolden (6.5).

FOUR INDIVIDUALS are already over the six-foot mark in the high jump: Ken Latham (South), Jim Roberts (Central), Chuck Bosse (Gahanna) and Tony Parkison (Newark).

In the 440 event, Whetstone's Randy Pfeiffer and Central's Coffey have both turned in sub-:53 efforts.

In the 70-yd high hurdles, both Central's Roberts and East's Dale McCampbell have been clocked in nine seconds flat while Gahanna's Bruce Baker and Hilliard's Mike Pullins are close behind at 9.1.

TOP LONG jumpers have been Brookhaven's Gene Erwin and East's Hadden—both over 21 ft.

Saturday's rely performances may be even better. Two-mile relay quartets from Worthington and East have each broken the 8:30 barrier.

Half-mile relay units from Eastmoor (1:35.8), South (1:-35.1) and Whetstone (1:33.6) have headed that event with Whetstone (3:32.4) and East (3:30 flat) pacing a number of

Diocesan Track Coaches To Set '67 Meet Plans

Columbus Diocesan high and grade school track coaches, principals and athletic directors will gather Monday (7 p.m.) at the Desert Inn to lay final plans for the 12th annual Diocesan Meet, scheduled Sunday, May 21, at Hartley.

The annual meet, sponsored by Marian Council 3864 and sanctioned by the OHSAA, will combine both grade and high competition at the same site and date this spring.

Distribution of entry blanks, records and schedule of events and the election of new officers of the Track Coaches Association will be the main items of business.

Matt Midea (Newark Catholic) and Dan Lyons (St. Philip) are current presidents of the high and grade school divisions respectively.

Individuals, as well as full teams, may compete at the meet with approval of their coach, pastor or principal.

When Someone Cares

Sometimes the difference between a job and unemployment is small — as small as bus fare.

This was dramatically demonstrated last week when the resourceful Columbus Metropolitan Area Community Action Organization opened two job centers right in the middle of the unemployment.

Hundreds showed up looking for work and are now being placed. Many complained they simply could not afford the bus fare or parking lot price to follow up on prospective employers who suggested they "come back next week."

By literally bringing the jobs to the unemployed CMACAO is pressing home the fight on poverty. CMACAO recognized the need and organized the action, proving again it can be done — when someone cares.

Hats Off To 'Chick'

Linden-McKinley Coach Vince Chickerella was asked after Saturday night's stunning triumph over Cleveland East Tech in the state basketball finals if he had a "premonition" his team might win because Columbus teams have won the past two odd-numbered years.

"I thought a long time ago we could win it," Vince said, and he made it clear he wasn't talking about "odd-year luck" or anything other than solid coaching and full-out desire on the part of his squad.

Linden's Panthers made a joke out of the Class AA finals. They ran East Tech off the floor in the first minute and never let them back on. And the reason was obvious — Linden wanted to win and wasn't going to be denied.

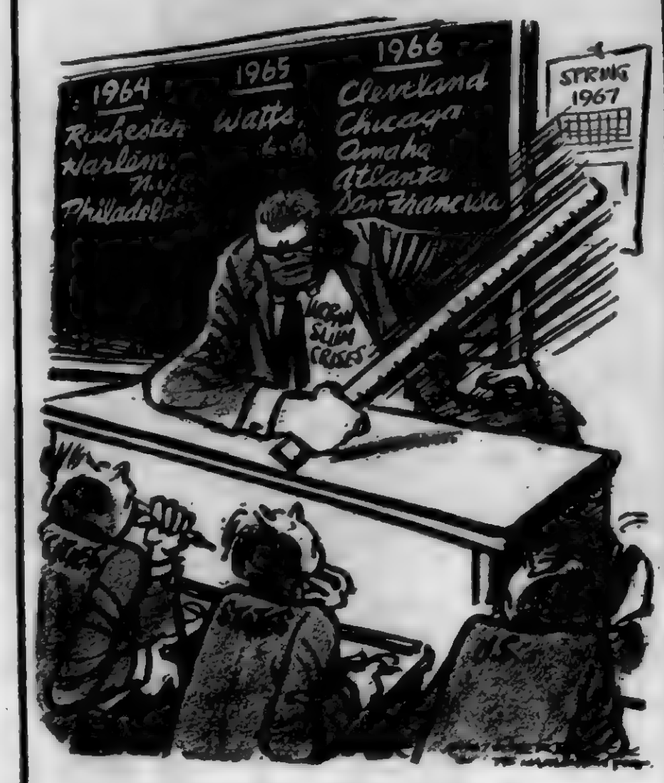
Much of the credit, of course, goes to the players themselves. But just as big a chunk must go to Chickerella himself, who ignored a painful injury and aggravating kidney troubles to push, cajole, taunt and teach his boys into the coveted title.

Our hats are off to you, Chick, and to your Panthers. You've made your city proud.

Gentleman Of The Press

Don E. Weaver, after a score of years at the helm of the old Columbus Citizen and later the Citizen-Journal, will retire next month.

While fellow journalists and fellow citizens may have had occasion to disagree with DEW over the years, there is one thing on which all will agree — that Don Weaver is truly a gentleman of the press.



He is not of that sophisticated, cynical school of journalism, nor is he a starry-eyed dreamer. During his tenure as editor here he earned the respect of the community and its leaders.

A true craftsman, he seldom picks up a piece of copy he does not improve. When he clinches that pipe in his teeth and peers over the top of his glasses, you can be pretty sure he knows the answer and is merely checking yours.

His accomplishments are too numerous to cite here. One only need to look around Columbus to find them.

Wherever Don Weaver goes he will take the devotion and gratitude of Columbus with him.

What Price Glory?

By ROBERT BURDOCK

BURDOCK

In an all-out effort to get the voters and future citizens of Ohio to bail him out on his extravagant promises, Governor Rhodes has pulled all stops to promote passage of the Ohio Bond Commission.

The Bond Commission embraces sweeping powers, heretofore unheard of in Ohio. It would strip voters of their constitutional right to pass on increased bonded debt at the polls.

It would create a fourth branch of government with massive powers to create debts with which future generations and administrations would be forced to grapple.

It is sheer deceit in that no one will know the price tag until after it is approved at a special election May 2 in which only a handful of special interest voters will participate.

The public is not being honestly informed as to what ends Rhodes will commit the hand-picked commission.

Rhodes has already plunged Ohio, with the generous support of the voters, into a billion dollars in bonded debt. And he still wants more — this time a blank check.

Rhodes is viciously and totally committed to duping Ohio into accepting this proposal. Nothing in Ohio politics approaches this plan in scope or the raw power being applied to gain its end.

Rhodes has suborned the legislature with threats to ramrod the issue onto a special election ballot.

He has summarily sent legislative members home for a "vacation" to quell tax talk and get them to campaign for the proposal.

He has subverted the press of Ohio by welcoming to the pork barrel those editors who in the past decried the practice in the legislature.

He is subverting the business and industrial community into putting up the campaign funds to promote the bond commission through implied threats of retaliation and carrot dangling on tax relief.

He has fouled the academic nest by coercing university administrators into pressing for the bond commission, "or else."

It is high time Ohioans stand up and shout back, "No! No! No!" Enough is enough! What price is Ohio willing to pay for political expediency?

. . . letters

Not Hungry?

To the Editor:

In response to "not hungry": According to your letter your income tax was $1,100 for 1966. This means your income after deductions was about $7,000 for that year. After subtracting $1,200 for your husband's schooling, your income is then $5,800 for living expenses for one year.

Consider this in relation to the maximum yearly ADCU allowance for a family of 4—$1,416 (not including medical expenses).

If, as you suggest, this family spends $70 per month for groceries their yearly food bill will be $840. Subtract from their yearly allowance $1,416 and this family will have $576 left for ALL expenses. Assuming a place to live is the most important item after food, divide the $576 left after groceries by 12 months and you will find that the family had $48 per month for housing with NO money left for clothing; personal expenses such as deodorant and toothpaste; the expenses of school such as notebooks, paper, pencils, not to mention extra curricular activities which enrich the lives of students; furniture; household items such as light bulbs and soaps and detergents and so on.

If you still assume, that with wise and careful spending, a family receiving welfare can achieve good eating, decent housing, good dress and personal necessities I challenge you to budget all these things for your family at $1,416 per year.

On Welfare

To the Editor:

On February 22, 1967, a Spectator staff writer, Jane Robinson, wrote a very sensitive article entitled "Visit to Welfare Home a Jolt." It is, indeed, accurate that welfare clients share the same types of problems with their most affluent neighbors — concern for children and health concerns.

It is important to remember that welfare has not caused the problems which lead to and perpetuate poverty. Complex conditions within our rapidly changing and increasingly mechanized society is the real culprits. Welfare is left to try to cure only the symptoms — curing the cause is more difficult.

Mrs. Robinson was correct: "It is easy to point an accusing finger at those on welfare."

robert tenenbaum ★ Law Enforcement Not In Danger ★

The Supreme Court's decision in the controversial Miranda case will not substantially jeopardize law enforcement.

That is the "other side" of the Miranda question, the answer to those law enforcement officers who are hiding behind the Miranda and Escobedo decisions to cover up their failure to use proper investigative procedures to get convictions in criminal cases.

The "other side" was spelled out bluntly and brilliantly by Ohio State Law Professor Larry Herman in a talk last week to the Columbus Bar Association weekly luncheon.

Herman doesn't pull punches. It is his feeling that Miranda and Escobedo merely call for more careful law enforcement procedures and that even if they do make it more difficult to get a conviction the decisions are justified in that they clearly uphold the constitutional rights granted by the Fourth, Fifth and Sixth Amendments to the Constitution.

Basically, the Escobedo decision prohibits the admission into evidence of a confession obtained when the defendant has asked for and been refused the right to consult with an attorney. Miranda enlarges that to preclude any confession obtained when the defendant has not consulted an attorney, whether or not he requests that right.

Both decisions are aimed at protecting suspects from long, brutal interrogations which often lead to a confession made more out of physical self-defense than genuine guilt.

Herman makes a strong case for non-secret interrogations. That, he says, would eliminate the traditional "swearing match" in court in which the defendant claims his rights were violated in interrogation and the prosecution says they weren't. In New York City, in fact, filmed records are made of all interrogation sessions and there has been no noticeable drop-off in the conviction rate.

He makes an even stronger case for the decisions themselves, and perhaps the most interesting of his arguments is that the only way to assure that the guilty are always convicted would be to convict everyone brought to trial — the innocent as well as the guilty.

Herman's point is that "we never wanted the most effective system of law enforcement in this country. The Bill of Rights is a compromise between unlimited freedom and unlimited law enforcement."

The Miranda and Escobedo decisions are in Herman's eye further proof that we have not yet figured out the cost of our constitutinal freedoms. In this case, one of those costs is the chance that a guilty party may go free because we must insure the protection of the innocent.

Herman, who was quoted liberally by justices on both sides of the Supreme Court, probably can't single-handedly put a stop to the crying by law enforcement officials and by misguided lawmakers who think they can overrule the Supreme Court and Constitution of the United States merely by passing a law and laughing at the court.

But perhaps enough of our police officials will figure out that they just aren't going to be allowed to circumvent the constitution any more and will get down to the real business of adjusting their methods to catch up with American society.

william s. white ★ The Hopeless Hash ★

WHITE

Rarely in political history have so many made so absurd and so hopeless a hash over so essentially little a man and matter as has now been made in the celebrated affair of Adam Clayton Powell.

The House of Representatives twice overruns both its own wisest leaders and plain common sense.

First, it votes to refuse a reseating to Powell on the extraordinary theory that having reached this verdict without trial or hearing, it will then "investigate" his conduct, which it has, of course, already condemned. Pausing for a moment's reflection — and in the original action there was neither time for real reflection nor real debate — it then sets up a first-rate committee supposedly to inquire into what Powell has done but actually to find some belated means to get the whole House off the hook from a spasm of non-thought.

This special committee comes in with a plan which would completely have destroyed such influence as Powell might have once had in office — in the meantime he had already been thrown out of the chairmanship of the Labor Committee — by simply censuring him and thus finishing him as disturber of the decorum and peace of the House of Representatives.

Again, however, the House instantly rejects this rational solution by now proclaiming not merely that Powell cannot sit in the current session of Congress, but that he cannot sit in the next session, either, no matter if he should again be re-elected in a special election in Harlem set for April 11.

There is, of course, the plainest doubt that under the Constitution the House can thus punish Powell both retrospectively and prospectively. And, of course, his lawyers are going to court and almost certainly will win.

Now, as though this ham-handed thing was not already out of hand enough, the Republican leaders of New York decided to run another widely publicized professional Negro, James Meredith, against Powell in the special election in April. That amounted to a public proclamation that this Congressional seat must be openly considered to be strictly racist — in theory as well as in fact. Meredith's withdrawal from the race did not change that theory.

The start of this whole business has by this point been lost in a ball of wax. The initial agitation for Powell's ouster was begun neither by Republicans nor Southern Democrats, though both sets later collaborated in it, but rather by ultra-liberal Democrats whose outrage at Powell's so-called "free wheeling" caused them to overlook the elementary fact that simply being a bad fellow or even a totally irresponsible fellow, as Powell has been, is not really grounds for the exclusion of a man duly elected to Congress.

It is plain, to those few who have been able to maintain some poise in this business, that the proper way to take care of the Powell case, both as in simple justice and in sane politics, has twice been rejected by a general House membership which has acted throughout in mass hysteria.

Obviously, he should have initially been seated provisionally, pending proper inquiry, and if and when evidence justifying his expulsion had been found, he should then have been expelled. This manifestly sensible course having been refused, the House should then have taken the alternative proposed by the special committee — to retain Powell nominally in the House but to cut him down to zero in influence or power.

This would have meant his end for all practical purposes; but the way matters now stand, Powell is only at the beginning, and this episode will have repercussions for years to come.

barry goldwater ★ CIA And The Left ★

GOLDWATER

Continuing revelations of the extent of Central Intelligence Agency financing private American organizations prompts me to elaborate on my original comments on this situation.

First, let me summarize what I feel to be the key factors:

There is no argument, so far as I am concerned, with the propriety of the CIA dealing with private persons or organizations in the furtherance of its delicate and vital national security mission.

The argument comes with the pattern of that support and with its effect on domestic politics and opinions, not on matters overseas.

It is fair to state, on the basis of the accumulating evidence, that the CIA's millions in "support" money have consciously and directly been spent to strengthen and expand the cause of socialism in this country and abroad.

It is true that the leftist, pro-socialist groups supported by the CIA are anti-Communist. They are well equipped to combat Communists or to provide sensitive information from the travels and studies of their members abroad.

It is also true that non-leftist groups could do the same, but so far there is not a peep of evidence that any significant section of pro-capitalist or even non-leftist groups got the support of the CIA's vast trove of secretly spent, unaudited tax moneys.

The non-Communist left, therefore, was obviously the conscious choice of the CIA, but these groups are bound to be pro-socialist. That, after all, is the essence of leftist politics.

It cannot be argued that the left provides the only practical base from which to fight communism. Non-leftist politicians, businessmen and philosophers have dealt communism substantial blows in every corner of the world.

Nor can it be argued that the leftist groups supported by the CIA represent the only responsible segment of private activity in this country. Socialism and its many tributary "isms" represent just a part of the spectrum. There are, the CIA's list of friends notwithstanding, a substantial number of Americans and American organizations still operating on non-leftist principles.

It cannot seriously be argued that the CIA took the only course open to it. Nor can it be argued that there was not a distinct left lean to the funds in view of the lengthening list of contributions.

On balance, some will say, the CIA also supported private foundations established by American businessmen. One such foundation was operated by a former member of Franklin Roosevelt's brain trust, which can hardly be said to break the philosophical mold of the CIA's contributions.

One foundation was established by a now deceased businessman who was an intimate friend of President Eisenhower. Even if this one foundation were non-leftist as could be, it would scarcely cause a ripple in the oceanic dimensions of the otherwise leftist nature of the CIA's contributions.

The question all Americans may wish to ask, and which Congress surely should ask, is how much of our tax money has been used to subsidize left-wing causes in this country under the guise of fighting communism abroad.

Fans Flock To See TV-4's Bob Braun

By CLAUDIA ELKINS
Spectator Theater Editor

When you are late, you are late. The time can't be made up. The fatalness of this was evident as Bob Braun, host of the "50-50 Club," reluctantly left his fans at Lazarus' second floor record shop for a prearrange promotion tour to Columbus.

For 20 minutes Bob signed his name to his albums, answered questions, talked and conversed with such zealous energy and love of his work that obviously this promotion trip was more rewarding than work.

Old and young alike chatted with Bob as if he were a son or a friend with the admiration and devotion that Bob has justly earned through his 10 years with Ruth Lyons, charity benefits, recordings and his work for young people.

With each hand shake and smile Bob seemed as genuinely elated and pleased as his audience. A mutual understanding prevailed — he was enjoying and receiving as equally as he was giving.

Bob and AVCO Broadcasting hope to maintain the standards of the "50-50 Club" yet adapt to his personality.

The Christmas Fund will be continued in Ruth Lyons' name.

As for guests on the show—some big names have been signed, but in keeping with policy most days are open for those entertainers that are entertaining in the Cincinnati area.

Bob is anxious to know if he will be at the Ohio State Fair. He worked there this past year and had such a good time he really hopes to get back.

A bi-product of his new job as host is that Bob has more time in the evenings to be home with his wife and three children.

Wilder Waits 14 Years To Pick Up Sheepskin

Charlie Wilder, 872 Linwood-av, received his sheepskin at Ohio State Mid-Winter Quarter Commencement.

The next day, armed with his brand new Bachelor of Science Degree in Finance and Accounting, he started to work as a state examiner in the Cleveland District office of the State Auditor.

IT IS NOT exactly a new—or a strange—job for Wilder.

Two years ago at 37 Wilder resigned as a junior examiner with the State Auditor, one of the several positions he had held since his education was interrupted in 1951.

After 14 years he had determined that only with a degree could he increase his earning power to the extent that he could provide the life he wished to give his wife Madalyne, their son and four daughters.

ACCORDING TO State Auditor Roger Cloud "his accomplishment was made under circumstances which would have discouraged anyone who did not have high ambition and will power." (While finishing college Wilder worked nights, weekends and holidays.

And So It Grows

Prepared By The Ohio Extension Service

No single general-purpose combination gives satisfactory control of all insects and diseases of backyard fruit plantings. You must provide fruits with thorough spray coverage at the right times, say Ohio State University Extension specialists.

To help you remember what to spray and when, the Ohio Co-operative Extension Service has published a newly revised edition of "Disease and Insect Control for Backyard Fruits." Ohio residents may get single copies free from their county extension agents.

Before you buy plants to set out this spring, examine them carefully to detect any disease. Leaves on evergreens should be green, not brown, and the bark of deciduous shrubs and other plants without leaves should not look dry or wrinkled. If you have any doubts, scrape a little bark from the smallest twigs. If they are healthy plants, they will be white to green beneath the outer bark. The same is true of roots.

Don't buy plants that have injury or sunken spots. These areas are ideal places for disease. Swellings or bumps on the crown or lower part of the stem suggest crown gall, a common bacterial disease of nursery stock such as peaches, apples, and rose bushes.

Planting diseased plants can infest the soil and create problems with surrounding plants.

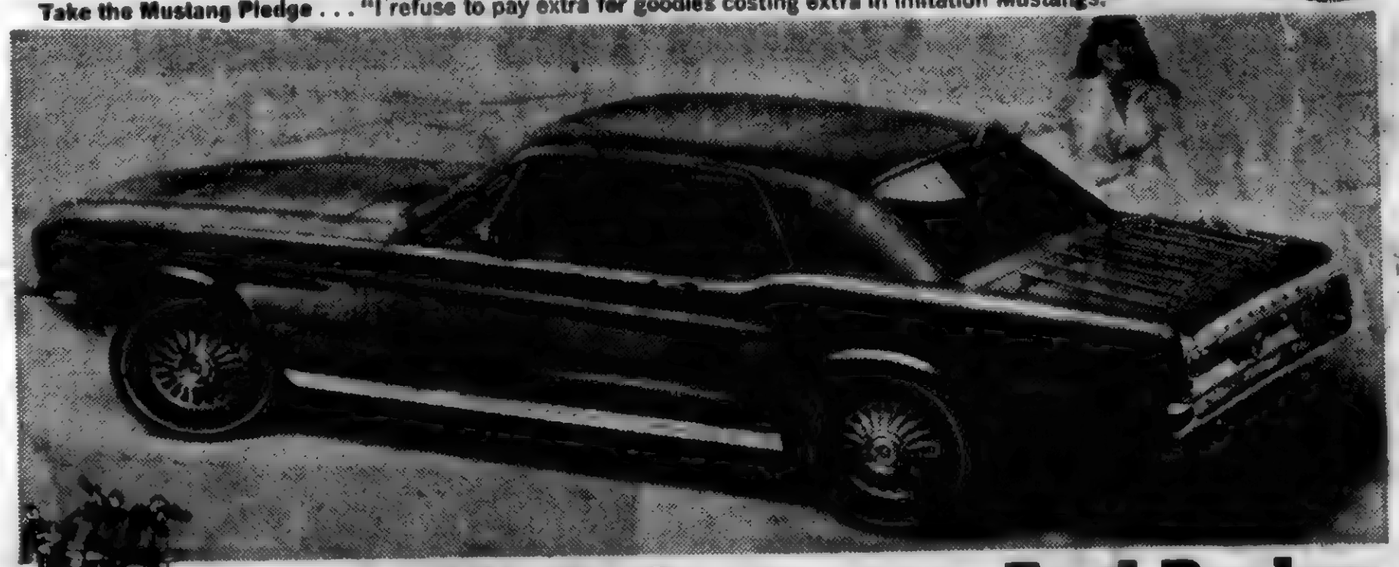
What's the difference between everbearing and June-bearing strawberry varieties? June-bearing plants bear one crop each year in late spring (normally late May and June in Ohio). Everbearing varieties produce one crop during the normal June season and then, if properly handled, will produce a second crop during the late summer and early fall. The fall crop normally ends with the first killing frost.

June-bearing varieties are the most popular for both home garden and commercial production. Included in this group is a special class of varieties which are resistant to the fungus disease, red stele. None of these resistant varieties is of the everbearing type.

If you plan to set out some bramble fruits such as raspberries or blackberries this spring do it in late March or April. However, if the soil is not dry enough by then, it's better to wait until it is. As the soil is prepared, a complete fertilizer may be disked in. On most sites eight to 10 pounds per 1000 square feet or 350 pounds per acre of 8-16-16 or similar analysis fertilizer will be beneficial. The soil should be worked to near "seedbed" condition.

Should you buy topsoil to improve your lawn? Extension specialists say this is expensive and much so-called topsoil isn't much letter than the soil you have. If you buy topsoil, insist on good loamy texture. It need not be black.

Also insist on getting soil with no quackgrass or Johnsongrass rhizomes. These perennial grass weeds cannot be killed in the lawn without killing all the lawn grass.



When adding good topsoil, the rule follows—the more the better. The specialists suggest from three to four up to six to eight inches.

First Federal Reports Rise In Mortgages

Total mortgage money of nearly $3 million was recorded by First Federal Savings and Loan Association in the first two months of 1967.

President Richard I. Eidson said the figure represents a 60 percent increase over the same period of 1966 and called the increase "especially significant in light of the present tight money market."

Eidson also reported assets of more than $81 million, an all-time high for First Federal's 40-year history.

Danger rides in many American school buses, according to a public Health Service study. The health agency said that most seats used in school buses are "grossly inadequate" for protection of passengers since the backs of the seats are too low.

Presbyterian Ohio Synod Joins In Project Equality

The Synod of Ohio of the United Presbyterian Church in the USA has joined Project Equality of Central Ohio, launched four and a half months ago by a group of local denominations to end discrimination in the churches' hiring practices.

Dr. Richard Plummer, executive director of the Synod of Ohio, said the Synod "has established policies that all operations of the Synod and its related agencies must be in accordance with equal opportunity in employment and the conduct of business."

Dr. Plummer said, "Today we are all aware of the tremendous handicap which has been imposed on millions of our fellow citizens through discrimination in employment practices. Not only is this legally wrong . . . but it is morally wrong as well."

A total of 48 separate religious jurisdictions now participate in the program, which is administered nationally by the National Catholic Conference for Interracial Justice.

Other local denominations which participate in the program are the Catholic Diocese of Columbus, the Central Southeast Ohio Association of the Ohio Conference of the United Church of Christ, the Episcopal Diocese of Southern Ohio's Columbus regional council, the Methodist Union of the Columbus district of the Methodist Church and the Columbus Presbytery of the United Presbyterian Church in the USA.

Under terms of the agreement, member churches may not discriminate in hiring and must require non-discrimination pledges from suppliers and contractors.

French Influence Followed War

By NANCY M. LUCKS, NSID

The American Federal Period began about 1780-1830. The Post-War furniture was influenced very strongly by the designs of Hepplewhite and particularly of Sheraton. Proportions became light and delicate, also fine veneering and inlay were used. Mahogany, Satinwood, Rosewood, Cherry, Maple, Pear and Apple were popular woods.

Most of the furniture after the Revolution and before 1820 was made by trained English craftsmen who had come to America just to make furniture. The true American furniture can be identified by the woods and the lines, which had a tendency to be a little clumsy.

By the end of the Revolution, the Colonial Period might be considered ended. After the war, there was enough resentment of English things that the opening of the 19th Century saw a prominent influence of French Empire. The scale of these American pieces was rather heavy. The detail and ornaments were simplified, but the construction was equal to the European. When ormolu mounts were used they were often pressed and gilded wrough iron rather than cast brass.

Duncan Phyfe is considered the outstanding American cabinetmaker of the early 19th century. His early works were almost always in mahogany. The lyre motif was frequently used for chair backs, sofa arms and sometimes table bases. He also used the cornucopia leg. Carvings of plumes, leaves and animal motifs were used after the Pompeiian example. Carved lines with fine reeding or flutings accentuated the lightness. In his later works he used Rosewood and Black Walnut as well as Mahogany. Metal surface ornaments, metal feet and roller casters were used. Toward 1830 his pieces were influenced by the French Empire and English Regency which is often referred to as the American Empire.

By 1840 his competition was machine-made furniture which caused him to produce massive and clumsy pieces. The only beauty was in the graining and color of the woodwork. Most of these pieces were made in his shop, under the direction of his son and it is said that Duncan Phyfe referred to this furniture as "butcher furniture."

The interior decorations for the American Federal Period are polished wide planks or parquet floors, some marble in the hallways, Oriental rugs, English Wiltons, Aubusson and Savonneri rugs, window treatment for the simpler rooms and homes, ruffled tie backs and chintz curtains. For the more formal rooms, elaborate trimmed draperies, in imported silks, boxed cornices, fabric valances, swag and jabot are used.

Fabrics that can be used are the velvets, silks, printed linens, French imported laces, brocades, satins, taffetas, moires, tapestries, stripes, etc.

The accessories were brass andirons, candlesticks, pitchers, etc. Silver tableware, fixtures and accessories; French, English and Chinese porcelains; Stiegel and Sandwich glass; Mirrors of the French or English design. Clocks to use are tallcase, shelf, wall, cuckoo and the banjo. Beautiful crystal and silver light fixtures with candle holder and drooping prisms, also scones, fix the period, as do European style urns, vases, and world-globes.

Local Singer Records Hit Broadway Tune

Four months of rehearsals and arrangements came to a climax Monday for Skip Balthesar and Dave Wheeler.

This four months was spent in fulfilling Skip's desire to "cut" a demonstration phonograph record.

"Mame" is on the feature side. The introduction, opera, leads into this popular Broadway hit tune.

A ballad, "Softly, As I Leave You," was selected for the "flip" side, the supposedly weaker of the two sides.

Musicians selected by Wheeler to accompany Balthesar were trumpet player Joe Susi, Joe Lord on saxophone and clarinet, Bernie Decker bass, John Tatgnhorst on drums.

Family worship on Easter is a fitting way to begin this day of great rejoicing. We, too, join with you in expressing a feeling of deep joy and thankfulness. And we extend to you and yours, at this most appropriate time, our best wishes for a truly happy and glorious Easter.

START YOUR OWN CIA

Sssh - Someone May Be Listening

By JACK WITTENMEIER
Spectator Staff Writer

Be the first in your neighborhood to organize and outfit your own personal CIA!

It's possible, you know.

YOU TOO can enjoy the exciting life of '007' with the myriad of super sleuth equipment for as little as $3.99 or as much as $700.

Despite what Congress decrees about coveting your neighbor's privacy, you can mail order the wildest array of snoop equipment today right here in the Capital City.

And like a lawyer friend of ours reports: "It's no crime to purchase these surveillance items, only to be caught using them."

CASE IN point: the local youngster who tuned in on a conversation between husband and wife a full three blocks away with a little snoop set he picked up at a local store for less than 20 bucks.

Result: a law suit for Mom and Dad and removal of the earphones from their overly-curious offspring.

Obviously, junior didn't have the extra $5 to buy the more subtle microphone fountain pen available.

A MORE diligent savings of his allowance could have secured for ($69.95) a mike and tape recorder concealed in an innocent looking attache case.

For those with more time and cash ($375 worth) on their hands, the wristwatch transmitter-receiver with accurate 17 jewel movement and up to 200 feet broadcasting range looks like a dandy.

Only 75 bucks and a little medical know-how can set the more discreet snooper up in business. This guy can listen, undetected, through walls with his electronic stethoscope.

WHITE HOSPITAL garb and a couple of years of careful attention to either "Ben Casey" or "Dr. Kildare" are suggested for those who fear discovery.

But, for the real "pro" who has a paltry $700 on hand, you can't hardly top the "infinity transmitter" for achieving the zenith in keeping tabs on your loved ones.

By installing your tiny, undetectable transmitter in telephone "A" in Columbus, you may dial from telephone "B" in San Francisco and — with no ring at your Columbus phone — listen in on conversations in the same room.

AS YOU may imagine, this raises all kinds of possibilities for those with the more suspicious mind.

Unfortunately, since all is fair in love, war and snooping, the same company can provide your victim with a "de-bugging" device to locate your costly infinity transmitter for a "you-can't-afford-not-to-have-one" price of only $450.

Now if that isn't a "spoil-sport" type of company, I've never heard of one.

HANG IN there, George Orwell. "Big Brother" is listening, but he isn't watching — yet.

Kites Can Be Dangerous, Electric Company Warns

Kite flying isn't all fun — it can be dangerous, warns the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co.

Safety Supervisor Gerald W. Thomas reports that "dangerous shorts can occur when kites are caught in the power lines and a pull on the string by the owner causes high lines to touch."

The Electric Company keeps crews on hand to remove kites caught on power lines. Last year, 118 kites were removed from lines by company service crews.

Thomas said other rules for kite flying include:

Use kites made of dry string, wood and paper, not wire or metal.

Fly kites only on days when there is no rain or moisture.

Fly kites in an open field, away from traffic and power lines.

Thomas said parents, teachers and youth leaders are especially valuable in teaching kite safety procedures.

The electric company also supplies books on kite safety and posters for elementary schools.

Businessmen Hear Delinquency Talk

Richard McCracken, master commissioner and chief referee of the Franklin County Common Pleas Court, spoke on juvenile delinquency to the Reynoldsburg Businessmen's Association at their March 15 meeting. McCracken cited some cases of delinquency and how they came to court. He said he felt most cases resulted from lack of concern from the parents or from broken homes.

Tyge Irsking, president of the association, said that group is interested in the welfare of Reynoldsburg's youth and is in favor of a teen center. Vice-president Gene Shivener was appointed to head a committee to aid planning of a center.

The next meeting of the association will be April 19 at Haft's Restaurant. Guest speaker will be the treasurer of the Ohio Planning Conference who will discuss city planning for growth and prosperity.

YWCA PLANS TEAS

Area teas and coffees are being held throughout Columbus during the 1967 YWCA Membership Campaign March 28 through April 18. Working on the membership drive are, left to right, Mrs. Joseph Larwa, tea hostess; Mrs. J. R. Williams, membership committee, and Mrs. H. L. Barneby, area chairman.

YWCA Opens Membership Drive

Next Tuesday has been designated YWCA Day by Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner and will mark the kickoff of the YWCA membership drive for 1967.

A full schedule of events will begin at 1 p.m. for the central YWCA at 65 S. Fourth-st. Fashions will be shown by Josephine Tetlow and followed by a card party and dessert. Tours of the YWCA will be conducted during the afternoon. There will be door prizes for the holders of lucky tickets. Admission is $1.

The drive will continue through April 18 as the YWCA attempts to reach its goal of doubling its membership. Small teas and coffees in each area of the city will be the means by which local committees of the YW will carry on their campaign for new members.

A membership costs of $3 per year and opens the door to the varied program of the YWCA. The program consists of everything from a play room for pre-schoolers to social clubs for persons with special social needs. There is a club for the deaf called the "Silenteers," one for the new Americans and the newest of the YWCA social clubs is WOMO (Wives of Men Overseas) which was formed just six months ago.

The YWCA boasts an enrollment of 900 women and "a few" men in their adult education classes.

Eastmoor Girl Tops In Writing Contest

Stephanie Schwartz of Eastmoor High School was named top winner of the 19th annual Ability Counts writing contest sponsored by the President's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped.

This year's contest, open to all 11th and 12 graders, was on the theme "Handicapped Workers—Community Assets." District winners are automatically entered in the state competition and state winners receive a free trip to Washington for the national contest.

Stephanie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Myron Schwartz, 2459 Stafford-pl. She received a $50 Savings Bond for her first-place entry.

Runners-up in the competition were Colin Bircumshaw of Kearns, Utah, and Dennis Ricker of Fort Jennings, Ohio, both students at Josephinum Academy in Worthington; Anne Lusch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Lusch, 625 Northview, representing Eastmoor High, and Evelyn E. White, daughter of Mrs. Vera White, 125 E. Norwich, representing North High School.

Prizes for the local contest were supplied by the Ohio Governor's Post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and United Auto Workers Local 969.

Judges for the contest were Ed Mahr of the counseling unit at Ohio State University Martha Scott and Paul Wiess, local high school counselors.

Businessmen Hear Delinquency Talk

Richard McCracken, master commissioner and chief referee of the Franklin County Common Pleas Court, spoke on juvenile delinquency to the Reynoldsburg Businessmen's Association at their March 15 meeting. McCracken cited some cases of delinquency and how they came to court. He said he felt most cases resulted from lack of concern from the parents or from broken homes.

Tyge Irskins, president of the association, said that group is interested in the welfare of Reynoldsburg's youth and is in favor of a teen center. Vice-president Gene Shivener was appointed to head a committee to aid planning of a center.

The next meeting of the association will be April 19 at Haft's Restaurant. Guest speaker will be the treasurer of the Ohio Planning Conference who will discuss city planning for growth and prosperity.

YWCA PLANS TEAS

Area teas and coffees are being held throughout Columbus during the 1967 YWCA Membership Campaign March 28 through April 18. Working on the membership drive are, left to right, Mrs. Joseph Larwa, tea hostess; Mrs. J. R. Williams, membership committee, and Mrs. H. L. Barneby, area chairman.

YWCA Opens Membership Drive

Next Tuesday has been designated YWCA Day by Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner and will mark the kickoff of the YWCA membership drive for 1967.

A full schedule of events will begin at 1 p.m. for the central YWCA at 65 S. Fourth-st. Fashions will be shown by Josephine Tetlow and followed by a card party and dessert. Tours of the YWCA will be conducted during the afternoon. There will be door prizes for the holders of lucky tickets. Admission is $1.

The drive will continue through April 18 as the YWCA attempts to reach its goal of doubling its membership. Small teas and coffees in each area of the city will be the means by which local committees of the YW will carry on their campaign for new members.

A membership costs of $3 per year and opens the door to the varied program of the YWCA. The program consists of everything from a play room for pre-schoolers to social clubs for persons with special social needs. There is a club for the deaf called the "Silenteers," one for the new Americans and the newest of the YWCA social clubs is WOMO (Wives of Men Overseas) which was formed just six months ago.

The YWCA boasts an enrollment of 900 women and "a few" men in their adult education classes.

Nominations Open For Academy Scholarship

A five-man committee has begun screening candidates for the Columbus Academy Alumni Memorial Scholarship Award, presented annually to a Franklin County eighth-grader.

The award is based on character, ability, intelligence and leadership. Size of the grant is based on family need, but all candidates must show that without the scholarship, they would not be able to attend the Academy.

Since the award was created, Holy Rosary School has had three winners, leading all other schools. Gahanna, St. Catharine's and St. Christopher's have had two apiece while one winner has come from Arlington, Bexley, Canal Winchester, Eastmoor, Franklin, Groveport, Mifflin, Roosevelt, Starling, Sunbury, Whitehall and Worthington junior highs. Last year's winner was Richard Maddox of Eastmoor.

Of the Academy's 384 students in all 12 grades, 29 currently receive some sort of scholarship aid. Most of the graduates holding the Alumni Scholarship have received sizeable college scholarships from such schools as Harvard, Cal Tech, Dartmouth, Haverford, Kenyon, MIT, Princeton, Wesleyan, Swarthmore, Wooster and Notre Dame.

Candidates will be screened by means of scholarship and aptitude tests and by personal interviews. All applications must be made by the last week in April to George D. Bown, Academy faculty representative.

On this year's scholarship committee are Academy alumni Ray G. Brown, chairman; and members E. Geoffrey Clapham, James O. Seymour, James M. Tobin and John F. Wolfe.

WINS AWARD

Chris Miller, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Keith L. Miller of 2025 Clermont, received the Eagle Scout award at a recent Court of Honor held at Brookwood Presbyterian Church. Chris, a junior assistant scoutmaster of Troop 135, is a ninth grader at Johnson Park Junior High School and is manager of the Johnson Park basketball team.

Class Of '42 Whistling For Missing Bulldogs

LUNCH BY MACHINE

By next fall students in at least one Akron high school will select the entire noonday lunch from push-button vending machines. The food is prepared by school cooks but is sold through the machines rather than from traditional cafeteria serving lines.

The search is on for "missing bulldogs" as the "Whizbang" South High Class of 1942 plans its 25th reunion, set for May 12.

CHAIRMEN OF the party for members of the classes of 1942 and 1917 are Mrs. Guy Van Doren, Zeta Urban Fenice, Rose Oszko Pinter and John Young.

Planning committee members from the January class include Harold Allen, Betty Morrison Bell, Dorothy Krick Fekete, Richard Fisher, Urlin Gould, William Hale, Henry Hatem, Harold Held and Edythe Goodman Komessar.

Saul Komessar, Jane Farrow Langley, Joe and Rosalie (Basil) McAtee, Evelyn Farr Roth, Mary Baker Saunders, Fred Schmeltzer, Richard Schumann, Connie Reckert Settig, Marilyn Eyerman Willis and Donald Wray.

INCREASE

School enrollment will jump about seven million in the next decade, according to U.S. Office of Education predictions. By 1975 about 63 million Americans will be in school. During the same period the national population will increase to about 220 million.

Doctor in the Kitchen

SPECIAL DIETETIC FOODS

From time to time, for various reasons, dietary restrictions become necessary. Special diets may be required for those who need to avoid roughage, those with allergies, those who must avoid salt, or sugar, or certain protein foods such as those concerned in gout.

Such diets should always be prescribed and supervised by the attending physician. Each instance of restricted diet poses a double problem. Not only must the patient be protected against a food which may be unsuitable for him temporarily or permanently; he must also be assured of maintaining good nutrition.

Less A Problem Now

Fortunately, this problem is not as serious as formerly, when all dietary modifications had to be carried out in the home kitchen, where the homemaker was often faced with preparing two meals, one for the family and one for the patient.

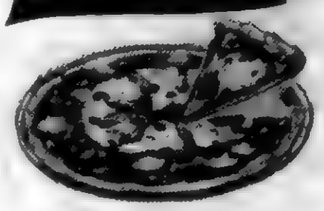
Industrial food technology has come to the aid of the homemaker with a wide variety of specially prepared foods for the principal dietary modifications.

But A Word Of Caution

Here a word of caution is in order about some carelessness in describing special diets, such as the use of terms like "salt-free" and "sugar-free." Even where salt or sugar are restricted, there can be no diets free of these essential food constituents. The proper terms are: "low sodium diet" or "sodium-restricted" instead of "salt-free," and "low sugar" or "calorie-restricted" in place of "sugar-free." The salt and sugar occuring naturally in many foodstuffs cannot be removed, and should not be. The food containing high percentages of these substances must be avoided.

Wide Variety Available

Foods commonly preserved in cans or glass jars are now available in wide variety in either water-packed or natural juice-packed form, and most of them are acceptably palatable despite the absence of usual sweet or salty flavor. The variety is great enough to satisfy any requirements. One manufacturer's listing alone includes 18 varieties of water-packed and 10 kinds of juice-packed fruits. There are 10 kinds of unsweetened or artificially sweetened fruit juices; 30 artificially sweetened fruits; four pie fillings; a dozen pudding-type desserts; 20 specialty foods, including candies, cookies, cake and waffle mixes, and a cheese spread.



Also Low Sodium

For the low sodium diet, there are 18 varieties of unsalted vegetables, 10 kinds of pureed vegetables, three low sodium dry milk and cheese preparations, six fish and meat choices, 10 canned soups, three "main dish meals" and more than 20 specialty foods, including cookies, cakes and other desserts. Low sodium milk also is available in various parts of the country as a canned or fresh product.

Low sodium and low sugar diets should cause no difficulty from the standpoint of nutritional balance and appetite appeal.

Naus Recall Their Wedding Day 65 Years Ago

In the early months of 1880 the William Nau family who lived on a big farm on South High Street near Frank Road gave the fine old-fashioned name of Francis Ambrose to their new-born son.

That fall, their neighbors, the Andrew Hahns, named their baby girl Carrie.

TWENTY-TWO years later on an exceptionally cold and blustery March day, scores of horses and buggies pulled into the Hahn's snow-covered lane as friends and relatives gathered for Frank and Carrie's wedding.

Saturday when they celebrated their 65th wedding anniversary there weren't too many of those wedding guests left to remember the picture made by Carrie in her hand-tucked wedding gown which she had made herself ("It didn't take too long—with my mother you stuck to things") and her towering, handsome groom.

Even their own memories of the day have faded with Carrie uncertain on the subject of a keg of beer her husband claims he opened at the "belling" that evening in their new home at Reese Station and his forgetting about the cookies they served.

BUT BOTH agree their wedding was no spur-of-the-moment affair.

Having always known each other, (literally from the cradle and through grade school at the old Marion Township schools located on what is now the Buckeye Steel parking lot and the present Scioto Trails Elementary site) their courtship had been a long one.

In those days, they explained, a man didn't ask a woman to be his wife until her mother and father sanctioned his proposal and until he had a home.

Thus the wedding bells had been postponed before Frank was able to use a $5,000 inheritance to purchase a 50-acre farm and house known as the Albert Herr property.

IT WAS THERE their oldest daughter, Mrs. Mary Fankhauser of El Paso, Tex., and their son Francis (who died six years ago) were born.

Their youngest daughter, Mrs. Ruth Marjorie Latham of Plain City was born on the original Nau farm in the large brick home in which Carrie and Frank still live.

And it is apparent today that the Nau's are one 87-year-old couple who live and are not merely sitting out the last act of a long and happy marriage.

ADMITTING they are something of "gallivanters" (they've recently dined at Shades in Canal Winchester, the Lindenhof in German Village and the Chinese restaurant in the Great Southern) they remain home long enough to frequently entertain dinner and weekend guests) enjoy the neighborhood children (a kite on the back porch is mute testimony to this) and pass the time with colored television.

Asked to explain how the years have treated them so kindly, Mrs. Nau laughed and said, "We've worked hard and live good-naturedly."

More soberly she added, "And I believe we're tried to think of others."

Town & Country Shopping Center 3858 E. Broad St.

Let's Take A Good Close Look At 'Beechwold A La Rathbone'

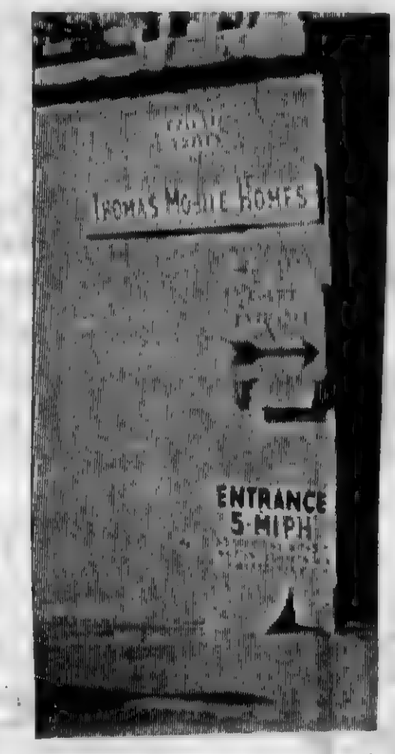
A certain state senator and few loosely organized citizens' groups have been for months protesting a Columbus engineering report that cites an alignment along the north side of Rathbone Avenue as the best site for the super-deluxe extension of Morse Road.

These people charge that many "fine 'Old Beechwold' homes" would be lost to progress unnecessarily if this alignment is used because a less destructive route lies to the northeast, through the State Schools for the Deaf and Blind.

Sen. Robert Shaw has in fact introduced a bill in the Ohio General Assembly seeking a right-of-way through the schools. The bill has already passed in the Senate where Shaw is a powerful figure.

The House vote is still pending.

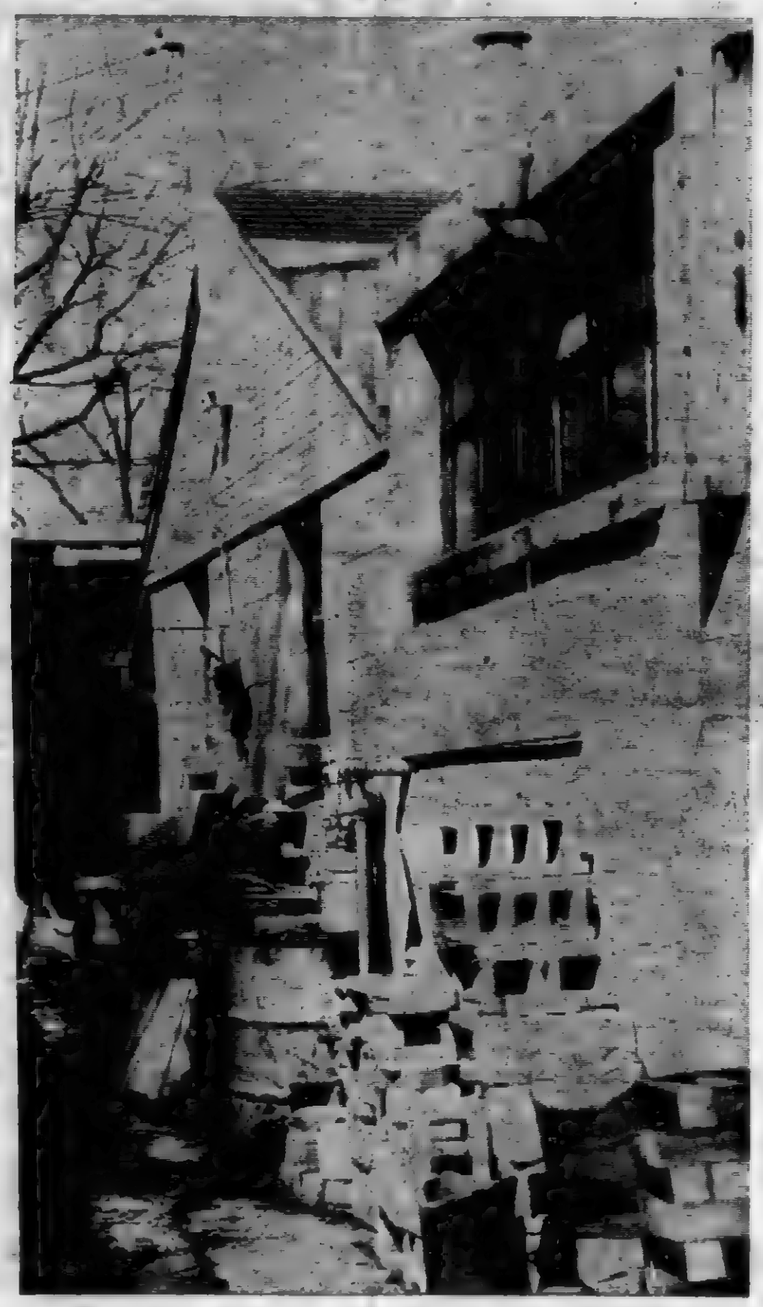
The pictures on this page were all taken in the Rathbone Avenue area just south of Graceland Shopping Center, the area in question.



It remains for you, the reader, to determine whether these "fine 'Old Beechwold' homes" are reall yworth all the hullabaloo they have created.

While there are Old Beechwold homes in the area, they can only be seen over their own back fences or through the patches of trees as in this picture taken from Rathbone and Delawanda Avenues. Broken branches and logs line the un-curbed and un-guttered street at this point.

This "quaint" little cottage is an example of the houses in the Rathbone area. The yard is untidy with bushes and trees alike in need of trimming. The house could use paint. The driveway which extends into the yard at spots is unpaved. A large tree grows within a few feet of the front of the building. An unsightly garage stood partially open.



Another scenic highlight of Thomas Trailer Court is this cluster of signs warning about speed and trespassing. Another set of signs, not in the picture say there is no outlet, urge patrons to crush their cardboard boxes before burning and point the way to the office.

A common view from Rathbone Avenue looking south is this Old Beechwold back fence. Every home on Rathbone fronts on a fence or garage or natural foliage barrier. In most cases, the street berm is unsightly. In all cases, it is uncurbed and unguttered.

Photos By

Walter Taylor

One of the more picturesque scenes in the trailer court just south of Graceland Shopping Center is this one located behind one of the concrete-block office buildings. Included in the pile of rubble are stacks of bricks, logs, sewer tile, boards, sawed-off beams and an old oil drum.

This house at the corner of Rathbone and Delawanda features an unpainted basketball backboard on its side. Cut or blown down branches clutter the yard. A boat, also badly in need of paint, is parked along side, for the most part completely exposed to the weather. A deserted wheelbarrow can be seen behind one pile of brush.

The trailer court abounds with older trailers like these. Many still have rotting old tires on them. Most have unpainted oil drums on wooden or metal stands standing in front of them. The streets of the court have no curbing, and the driveways are gravel. Most trailers, like the houses in the area, are within a few feet of their neighbors.

Jet Ticket Sale Goal Set At 70,000

The Columbus Jets Baseball Club kicked off their annual General Admission Book Ticket Drive Monday. The books contain 10 tickets and sell for $10, the same as in 1966. This preseason price gives the buyer a sivings of $5 on each book.

Books may be obtained from any luncheon, fraternal or social club, government agencies, industrial plants, most companies, shopping centers or at Jet Stadium. Many individuals also are helping the Jets with the sale of books all over Central Ohio.

Carl Graf, chairman of the 1967 drive has set the goal at 70,000 tickets.

The drive will end on Thursday, Apr. 25.

W-R Aims To Repeat With Note On Defense

By BOB WHITMAN
Spectator Staff Writer

What's next for Walnut Ridge's diamond dazzlers?

Whatever it is, it had better be worthy.

THE EASTSIDE surprisers baffled all last season with a Cinderella ride into the Regional tournament finale before being bumped, and now with eight returning letter winners from that team, a new season approaches.

This baseball campaign finds Don Wyncoop in the Scottie coaching office with Mike Hinkel, Terry McCray, Brent Beveridge, Joel Goldhammer, Phil Sachs, Roger McElroy, Ronnie Fish and Bob Davis all returning to make another stab at capturing fan attention.

OF THE returning letterwinners Goldhammer and Beveridge are being figured on for pitching, according to Wyncoop, along with sophomore potential Dave Meites and junior Keith Brown.

Mike Hinkel will be back in his old rightfield saddle but Sachs will probably be switched to first from third while McElroy (short), Fish (second) and Davis (catcher) will hold down their usual spots.

SACHS WAS one of the leading hitters last year with a .300 batting average that was good enough for an all-City berth.

Wyncoop feels that most of his prospects will be sophomores with Jeff Little at third, Rick Tiberi (second) and Chalfant (shortstop).

Juniors who look valuable are Ralph Richardson and pitcher Brown.

WYNCOOP figures "weaknesses will be in the inexperience of the young pitching staff," while major assets include: "We hit fairly well and should be pretty strong defensively."

W-R finished 4-6 in City League standings last year (second division), then went on to become District "Cinderella." Only South (champ) scored more runs in loop play than did W-R.

DON SEES Whetstone (didn't lose anyone off last year's team and won 16 games without loss in Summer League and Legion play), North (with pitcher Dave Leatherman) and Marion-Franklin (with a lot back, including pitcher Eddie Reeves, All-City Dana Zartman) as City League's top flag contenders this season.

Perry Smith has six letterwinners back at Bexley this spring as the Lions strive to improve last year's 3-10 mark.

JIM MORIARTY (pitcher and shortstop), Steve Wyman catcher), Mike Calif outfielder), Bob Kirk (outfielder and catcher), Jack Knauer (utility) and Marc Orr (third base) round out the returning veterans.

Orr and Knauer lettered as freshmen last season.

SMITH FEELS that the overall team spirit "is excellent and we will field a fairly competitive team."

The veteran Smith feels that Delaware should be the team to beat in the Buckeye Athletic Conference this fall.

Vet-Shy Raider 9 Pins Hopes On Shade-Spires Bats, Better Defense

(Editor's Note—This is the first installment in a series reviewing spring sports activities at Reynoldsburg High School. This week's subject: varsity baseball.)

By JACK WITTENMEIER
Spectator Sports Editor

With only three letter winners back off a fine 13-5 '66 squad, first term Raider diamond mentor Dan Brown admits he might be facing "one of our greener baseball years" at RHS.

Reynoldsburg captured the last of the Franklin County League flags last spring with a clean 7-0 slate and finished as the hottest item around the Metro circuit by checking off title pretender Franklin Heights twice in the last week of the season.

THOSE SWEET victories (both over Falcon tri-no-hit artist Mickey Pless) boosted the Raiders into a second-place tie with F-H (each 6-4) behind champion Whitehall.

But six starters and coach John Thompson (now heads City Recreation program) have since departed and it's up to Brown to collect the pieces and assemble a ball club.

Graduation, though unkind, wasn't completely unreasonable — leaving behind Reynoldsburg's most potent '66 batting duo in seniors Gary Shade and Denny Spires (both All-Leaguers) and slick-fielding third sacker Tim Wolfe.

BROWN WILL likely have to go some to replace regulars like pitcher-outfielder Dave Herrman and shortstop Bob Britt (both All-Leaguers and plus .300 hitters), pitcher Greg Murray, take-charge catcher Donnie Woods and infielders Roger Wilson and Kevin Turner.

Although Brown doesn't anticipate an equal amount of batting punch this spring, Shade and Spires—.400 and .360 hitters respectively last year—should keep opposition pitchers trembling with repeat efforts in the hitter's box.

Wolfe, who sticked .260 last spring, is at least 20 points better than that average this season, Brown believes.

FIELDING-WISE the Raider mentor look for brighter days Errors weren't exactly infrequent occurrences last spring in the Reynoldsburg scorebook.

"We're smaller but quicker afield this spring," Brown relates. "We probably won't be getting as many runs this spring so we'll have to count on a lot of defense and good pitching."

Despite the departure of Herrman and Murray, the mound corps should be adequate with Shade (was 6-0 last spring) back.

THE RIGHTHANDED curve ball specialist will have to carry the staff but might find some fine support in junior Steve Pinnick, a 5-2 graduate off Brown's reserve unit of last year.

Also available are junior Dave Merideth and "jack of all trades" Danny Spires—all four Raider pitchers serving from the right side.

Brown, who admittedly is "taking a long look at everybody out there," might be doing more shuffling than the neighborhood poker club, before the Raider opener March 30, at Gahanna.

WHEN NOT on the mound, Shade will be stationed at shortstop with Spires likely moving in from his old outfield position to catcher.

Completing the infield will be senior Phil Nolan or sophomore Randy Wolfe at second, and juniors Jeff Curtis or Jerry Milliron at first.

Junior Steve Snyder is likely at short when Shade's pitching with junior Ronnie Walters assuming catching duties when Spires' toes the mound.

SENIOR KENNY Buck, probably the most experienced of Brown's outfield prospects, looks ticketed for center with junior Eddie Wells, Nolan, Walters, orf Pinnick holding down the other two spots.

Another possibility is inserting John VanOver at either catcher or first base.

"We'll be very thin this spring," Brown warns. "An injury can really hurt us."

AS FAR AS the Metro League race shapes up, Brown envisions Teays Valley (returns most of '66 starters and veteran coach) as the early pennant favorite.

"After Teays it looks pretty even," Brown adds. "I'd say we've got as good a shot as anyone else at it (the title)."

(Next week: Sophomores hold the key for Raider coach Bill Hayes' cindermen.)

Burn Before Nesting

According to the Ohio Wildlife Division, the burning of grass, weeds, brush pile and fence rows eleminates potential nesting sites and destroys habitat used by many species of wildlife. If you must burn, do it now—before wildlife starts to nest, the Division suggests.

Everyone else has had a turn at bat on the proposed hunting and fishing license increases—so here goes my two cents.

The bill now waiting the light of day at the State House would increase both licenses from two to four dollars per year. In all the propaganda I've read concerning this raise, not one word has been printed about stocking of fish or a return to stocking small game.

PAUGH

NOT ONE word has been said about more hunting land or fishing waters.

What is waiting in the wings for its cue is a companion bill to raise the salaries of 45,000 state employees—among these will be the fish and wildlife people.

No one has been able or willing to advise me how recently these workers received their last raise. Nor is it easy to ascertain what the take-home pay is of any employee.

I AM SURE that the vast majority of the employees in the Division of Wildlife earn their money. There are also those who aren't worth a flea's eyelash.

This is probably true in any walk of life but in Ohio's Wildlife Division, some of the worthless are high in pay status now.

It do smart when I realize these same slackers will get a raise out of my pocket.

IF YOU aren't watching out the window these days for the wind and rain to lay, you aren't a fisherman. By now, the cabin fever would be reaching a crescendo in your noggin and your feet must really itch to be slithering down a mud bank to get at that pool.

Try first at the farm ponds. It is here that the water calms down and the temperature goes up. An early bass will put you in good spirits for a whole season and give you more stature around the house.

In my book it is not so important to be on the pond bank at dawn this first month or so. When it looks like there will be two or three days of warm sun, low wind and little rain, go out on the third day.

TRY THE baits that give plenty of flash but stay within a foot of the surface, I prefer spinning lures with shiny blades.

If you have never fished for trout, now is an excellent time to give it a try. They like cold water and the crowds are not out on the banks of the river yet. Later this spring, they'll be shoulder to shoulder.

A few walleyes have already been taken at Hoover Dam, north of Columbus. It should not be too long before Dillon Dam starts donating muskies to the patient souls who troll endlessly along the channels.

that goes around the wrist and has a piece of leather pointing right down to the thumb.

By watching the position of this leather piece you may accurately choose to roll a hook, curve, straight, or backup ball, as you like. Reminds you of every mistake you make in the ball position during the stance, arm swing, release, and follow-through.

IT WILL not guarantee perfect scores — but it will certainly help you roll a better ball.

The Ikettes, Auditing and No Strikers hold a three-way lead in Lazarus Women's Leagues — and Carpet Baggers, Five Aces and Carpet Workroom are three-waying the men's lead by only a half game. Quite an interesting race.

Bowling's most prestigious event is coming to St. Louis, "Bowling's home town," May 20-28 this year.

THE 26TH annual All-Star Tournament, sponsored by the Bowling Proprietors' Association of America which will be held at Skylark Lanes, is the number one showcase of all bowling tournaments, and BPAA is pulling out all stops to make it the best All-Star ever held.

This year's field of bowlers has been streamlined to a more manageable 288 men and 144 women, instead of 432 men and 216 women who participated last year.

Leading the list of entries are defending champions Dick Weber of Florissant, Mo., and Joy Abel of Lansing, Ill.

THEY WILL be competing with the other contestants for shares of the huge $65,000 prize fund. First place in the men's division will again pay a whopping $15,000 and the women will be shooting for top money of $5,000.

Tournament contestants this year will include men and women who have earned their All-Star berths through participation in local and state qualifying tournaments, as well as the top stars who have turned in outstanding performances in BPAA, ABC, WIBC, Professional Bowlers Association and Professional Women Bowlers Association events.

The automatically-qualified bowlers who have accepted their spots — 68 men and 31 women — represent practically all of the top stars of the game.

W. Jefferson, Dublin Join Metro League

West Jefferson and Dublin were officially accepted as members of the Metropolitan League Monday night.

The Rough Riders and Shamrocks joined with Hamilton Township, Franklin Heights and Teays Valley to boost the Metro membership to five, bringing the loop within one school of re-establishing the six-school line-up it enjoyed until late last year when Reynoldsburg, Pleasant View and Whitehall departed.

The departure of W-J and Dublin from the old Franklin County League completely evaporated that loop.

The pair and St. Mary had formed a three-team grid alignment last fall. St. Mary, in process of "phasing out," will not play football next fall.

The "new-look" Metro League still desiring to add three more mates, will begin loop play in September, 1968.

1967 Spectator Track Previews

(Editor's Note—This is the second installment of previews on area track squads for 1967. This week's subjects: Bexley, Hartley and Eastmoor.)

By JACK WITTENMEIER
Spectator Sports Editor

BEXLEY

"Hopeful but not optim'stic," is the way Lion coach Russ Owen sums up his feelings on Bexley's cinder prospectus on the threshhold of a new season.

With only seven letter winners back off a fine 9-2 (dual) squad of last spring, Owen will be basing a good share of his hopes on a Lion "youth movement."

"IT'S BEEN a rebuilding year for all sports here at Bexley this year," Russ relates. "We've got a lot of young prospects this spring and we're hopeful that they can develop into a fine squad by the end of the season."

Owen lost several outstanding performers to graduation last June, not the least of which was versatile Rick Weber, a frequent four-event winner for the Lions last season.

"He'll be the toughest to replace," says Owen of the departed Lion sprinter-broad jumper who's now performing at Muskingum.

SENIORS Paul Schultz (sprints, 440) and A. J. Myers, the former the Lion captain this spring, the latter the school mile record holder (4:39.5), pace the returning vets.

Seniors Tom Carr (880), Bill Reynolds (hurdles), Matt Ungar (sprints) and Tom Erwin (field events) and sophomore Carl Friedland (sprints) complete the Bexley letterman lineup.

The bulk of the Lions' leading prospects call field events "home." On that list are Dave Callif, Ralph Pariser and Dennis Maupin (discus), Colby Crall (shot put) and Larry Hamill and Jim Rosel (pole vault).

BEST LOOKING among Bexley's track prospects to date have been sophomore Steve Callif (sprints), quartermiler Jeff Ralph and Glenn McAlister (sprints, hurdles).

Owen figures that Bexley's strength will lie in the 880 and mile events with the Lions likely to field one of the area's better mile relay units (Schultz, Carr, Ungar and Myers).

The Lion mentor lists Grandview, which lost very little off a squad that missed the BAC Meet title by a narrow margin last spring, as "by far" the loop favorite.

THE '67 BAC Meet will be run May 5 at Ohio Wesleyan in Delaware — the Pacers defending league champions.

HARTLEY

Despite heavy losses from a largely senior '66 squad, Hartley's Jim Palmer looks for better things this spring.

The Hawks, who slid all the way from CCL champs in '65 to what Palmer listed as a "very poor season" last year do have 11 returning letter winners to back up their coach's hopes.

"I LOOK for a successful season," Palmer says. "We won't be getting a lot of firsts but we'll be trying to 'point' them to death."

With the cream of his vet crop returning in the 440 and up category, the Hawk mentor looks for his squad to more than hold its own in these departments.

Pacing the returnees are seniors Craig Wingo, Charlie Haag and Bob Thornton.

WINGO HOLDS both the school and CCL mark in the low hurdles (:21 flat), Haag is defending CCL half-mile champ and Thornton, sectional two-mile champion, holds the school mark (10:29.2) in that event.

Other returning lettermen include: seniors — Dan Davis (sprints) and Bob Fowle (hurdles); juniors — Alan Prenoveau (hurdles), Skip Herbert (distance events), Mike Filipi (sprints) and Lloyd Devine (440); sophomores — Mike Owens (880) and Paul Jones (sprints, 440).

Junior shot puter Dan French, picked as Hartley's "most improved sophomore" in track last season, heads the lineup of Hawk top prospects.

LEADING sprint prospects include juniors Mike Finks Kevin Astley and Brent Milburn, sophs Dan Malone and Pat Feeney and senior Joe Hayes.

Senior Jim Trapp and Junior George Schneider, middle distance and miler performers respectively, should bolster those areas.

Sophomore Chuck Fowle could fill the slot in the pole vault and high jump categories while senior transfer Frank Garowski, soph Jim Bobulski and freshman Chip Kane headline the weights prospect list.

PALMER envisions defending CCL champion DeSales as team to beat again this spring.

Hartley will be host to a new program initiated this spring—a CCL "round robin."

The loop schools (Hartley, DeSales, Ready and Wehrle — Watterson does not field a track squad) will compete in two simultaneous dual meets one night a week — the CCL champion decided by the league leader at the close of the schedule.

THE HAWKS open their outdoor season Thursday, Mar. 30, by hosting Hilliard's Wildcats.

EASTMOOR

WARRIOR coach Vince Cahill might not have the horses to vault all the way to a City Meet title this spring but, with 12 returning vets, E-M appears likely to move up a notch or two from a seventh place finish at the '66 showdown.

"I feel our relay teams will be as strong as anybody's (four runners under :53 mark in 440 already) but we're pretty sparsely populated in some of the other areas," claims Cahill whose '67 Warriors will tackle the roughest schedule in the school's history.

Breathers are few and far between on E-M's upcoming list of foes (Arlington, Gahanna, Central, West, several big relay events).

CAHILL'S '66 squad extended a five-year string of winning seasons and signaled the school's best-ever dual-triangular mark (5-1, only loss was to Worthington in opener).

Basically, Cahill feels his junior letter winners should provide the nucleus.

That quintet includes fleet sprinters Jack Storck and Steve Trout, distance specialist Dave Lewis, pole vaulter Chuck Petty (over 11 ft. mark as soph last spring) and versatile Jack Parry (hurdles, high jump, shot put, discus — has come within inches of school mark, 147'9", this spring in later event).

E-M'S SENIOR veterans are paced by school two-mile record holder Pete Pendergast, Joe VonEida (880), Tom Evans (880, mile, two-mile), Tom DeMolet (shot), Dwight Cartier (sprints), Gary Blumenthal (sprints, long jump) and Bob Bainter (hurdles).

Moving up from the reserves are prospects: seniors — Annual Collins (hurdles, relays), Mike Ijams (shot), Bill Wood and Bob Zelko (discus) and juniors — Harry Bowshier (shot), Bob Dull (pole vault), Bob Farney (distance), Jim Hunnicutt (hurdles), Chris Kosciuk (mile) and Bob VanCleve (pole vault).

Cahill also gained a big "bonus" in Junior High grads Carl Andrioff (long and high jumps) and Doug Solomon (sprints), "move-ins" Tony Coleman (hurdles, high jump, relays) and Dan Tice (high jump), cross country vets Bill Decker and Chuck Gambill and senior Phil Starks.

STARKS, who didn't compete last spring, has already cleared the 20'2" barrier in the long jump this spring and figures to be a vital cog on E-M's relay units.

The Warriors should be toughest in both 880 and mile relay events with Cahill currently seeking the best combination of Cartier, Blumenthal, Trout, Coleman, Collins and Starks in the former and Stork, Trout, Starks, Coleman, Collins and Cartier in the latter.

Records of those two events set last spring were 1:33.6 in the 880 and 3:29.6 in the mile.

BUT DEPARTEES like Buz Thomas and Greg Caldwell (off those two units) and hurdler Doug Rodibaugh (holds current City Meet high hurdles mark of :19.9) plus high jumper Wyman Hawkins and weights man Steve Gutridge will be missed this spring — despite an affuence of talent.

In that big City Meet this spring, Cahill pictures Whetstone, East, South and West battling for the crown presently worn by East.

"As for us, I didn't feel we'd have a chance for a winning season at first," Cahill related. "But, I've been impressed with our Indoor showings and might be changing my mind."

(Next week: The Spectator takes a detailed look at track squads at Walnut Ridge and Academy).

P-V's Mowery Resigns

Pleasant View High School has lost its second varsity coach in less than a week with the announcement of wrestling coach Bob Mowery's resignation.

Mowery, who guided P-V's mat squads to an overall 69–19-1 record in his eight years at the school, is currently awaiting appointment to another coaching position.

Mowery served as a past president of both State and District Wrestling Coaches' Associations and tutored six District grappling champions (Jerry Good, John Holloway, Ron Franks, Gary Memors, Chuck Dreisbach and Jerry Reibel) at Pleasant View.

No-Hit Club Is Renewed

Area high school hurlers who turn in hitless performances during seasonal competition this spring will once again be enrolled in The Spectator's "No Hit Club."

The club, which was initiated in 1965 with seven members, grew with the addition of nine hitless efforts last spring.

Only repeat member of the club is ex-Franklin Heights' hurler Mickey Fless, who fired three no-hitters last season.

No-hit authors receive a certificate from The Spectator, recording the score, opponent and date of their hitless feat.

Panthers—

Had this been a story of five boys and their ability to thread the cord with a leather ball it would have been short-lived indeed.

IT MIGHT have fooled the pretenders on the tournament trail but it couldn't trick Columbus East, Canton Lincoln and Cleveland East Tech. One maybe—but not all three.

This was a story of a brilliant 37-year-old coach and five determined boys who wanted to do something they couldn't articulate adequately until Saturday evening.

After an opening night victory this championship prize must have been the farthest thing from Vince's mind. Linden had beaten a fair DeSales team 59-52 in a most unpolished way.

But far beneath the gruff exterior the foundation had been laid.

JIMMY CLARK was in the starting line-up that night for the first time in his high school career. He had been dropped from the team the previous season because he missed a scrimmage without just cause.

"The coach doesn't take stuff like that," said Clark, whose smile in the championship locker room Saturday told he had learned a lesson of responsibility that he will be able to use the rest of his life.

He learned it from the game he played so well and the man who gave him a second chance.

In fact, at the outset of the 1966-67 cage campaign Linden was listed as challenger to the City throne only on the basis of standout super-stars Eddie Young and James Cleamons plus Chick's unusually remarkable coaching ability.

YOUNG LIVED up to favorable pre-season notice by garnering a first team All-Ohio berth plus All-Tournement honors.

Cleamons, too, answered above and beyond the call with a first team All-City selection and an All-Ohio honorable mention tab.

CHRIS BROWN was an opening night starter but by Chickerella's admission not a standout contributor until the tournament. He saved his best stuff for the yearly chase over heartbreak highway.

"He played a great tournament and gave us the needed board work that we had to have to rebound with East Tech, Lincoln and East," Chick said.

"He will be the only one back next year," Vince added.

BROWN SCRAPED clean the important boards with vacuum cleaner accuracy. The 6-3 leaper led Linden's surprising 34-23 board domination in the regional finals against Columbus East with 13.

He closed fast this past weekend with 11 in the 38-29 Linden board advantage over Canton Lincoln in the Panthers' 54-50 semi-final round win, and pulled down 12 to lead L-M in a 56-53 sweep of the gargantuan East Tech boards.

It was the 14th game of the Linden season that Rodney Kent came over to the starting L-M side. The 6-3 pivotman didn't make the team in his sophomore or junior years.

IT WASN'T an oversight, Kent just wasn't the ball player by Linden's standards.

But summers and winters on the Linden Park courts and the constant backing of brother Tony, a Linden cager during his prep school days, added both ability and confidence.

"HIS REBOUNDING hurt us the most," said Eastmoor's Red Courtney, who lost to the Panthers 79-62 in the latter part of the season.

Kent was making one of his first starts for Linden and added nine points and 16 rebounds to the total as the Panthers assured themselves of a second spot in the City League.

I REALLY wanted to make the team, because it was my senior year and I had to do something," Kent said. "My brother gave me a lot of help."

So it was more than a story of five and their ability to shoot and rebound; it was the story of their ability to grow and act.

And it was Chick's story: authored, edited and published after 10 years of losing key tournament games by slim margins.

VINCE was born and raised in Martins Ferry, graduated from Ohio State University and took the Linden job. "It has been my only coaching job," he said.

Over his spectacular 11 years, the oft-times fiery mentor has posted an enviable 178-55 record including first or second place City standing for the past seven years.

The last game that cast played was theirs.

It was Linden's from the opening tip to the showers.

In fact only a 1953 Middletown domination of Newark (73-35) was more overpowering than Saturday night's 88-56 sweep posted by Linden.

Linden outshot East Tech 47 percent to 31 percent.

Linden outrebounded East Tech 56-53.

Linden had fewer turnovers than East Tech 13-26.

It was all Linden.

"I wasn't sure if we were really ahead by that much," said an amazed Chickerella, "I had to have my assistants pinch me to see if it were a dream."

Chick credited his air-tight defense once again as he has all during the tournament. "The defense was the backbone of this club. They played it well."

But while the question hummed around him concerning tactics and game plans, he hopped on his favorite topic every chance he got. "These kids played beautiful ball. They are beautiful."

"They are not an emotional bunch and we have a real good relationship between them and the coaching staff," he added.

Chickerella and his Linden Panthers—played a great game of basketball.

The Batmobile will be the featured attraction at the Trotters Hot Rod Club's 10th annual Custom Car Show at the Fairgrounds Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

10th Annual Show Planned By Trotters Hot Rod Club

More than $2,000 in prizes will be up for grabs beginning Friday when the Trotters Hot Rod Club of Columbus sponsors its 10th annual custom car show running through Sunday at the Youth Center on the Ohio State Fairgrounds.

This year's show will feature custom built cars never before shown in the Columbus area and valued at up to $15,000.

Top feature of the show will be TV's famed Batmobile, styled and engineered by Barris Kustom City of Hollywood and insured for $1 million.

The Batmobile is basically a Ford prototype chassis powered with a 428 Thunderbird V-8 engine, a 129-inch wheelbase and a hand-formed Fiberglass body 48 inches high and 225 inches long.

The Batmobile is equipped with the standard safety package for road driving, but its crimefighting equipment would make James Bond slightly envious.

Included in the Caped Crusader's arsenal are twin 450-watt laser beams, hood scoops concealing hydraulically-operated steel chain and cable cutter blade, internally mounted rockets in the grille cavity, 84-inch fins of bullet-proof steel, bullet-proof wheel wells, radar wheels, rear-mounted triple rocket tubes and an automatic-theft control system that fires colored alarm rockets.

Those 360-degree turns at high speed are made possible by popping the twin parachutes.

The show will be open from 5 p.m. - midnight Friday, 10 a.m. - midnight Saturday and 10 a.m. - 8 p.m. Sunday. The show is sanctioned by the National Hot Rod Association.

Marty Rosen Obtains Control Of J-Mart Discount Stores

Marty Rosen, president of the J-Mart chain of discount centers, has completed the purchase of remaining stock held by James Friedenberg, founder and former secretary-treasurer of J-Mart.

Marty Rosen

Freidenberg, 41 N. Merkle-rd, listed health problems requiring less active participation as the reason for his sale of stock to Rosen, 2534 Scottwood-rd.

Freidenberg founded J-Mart with a tent location known as American Victory Stores on Westerville Road when he came out of the Army in 1947. From an $80,000 volume that year, the chain has grown to include four locations with a yearly volume of $4 million and an annual payroll of $400,000.

The name of the firm was changed to Surplus City in 1957 when Friendenberg and Rosen merged as 50 percent shareholders. On July 18, 1963, the name was again changed to J-Mart, a combination of the owners' first names.

The four Columbus J-Mart locations are at 2945 Westerville-rd, 6900 E. Main-st, 1770 S. High-st, and in the Central Point Shopping Center. The air-conditioned stores feature complete lines of clothing, hardware, housewares, shoes, jewelry, sporting goods, paint and camping equipment.

Norman Vincent Peale
Minister

March 27, 1967

To My Friends in Columbus:

Our denomination, the Reformed Church in America, is beginning a new church in Gahanna, under the leadership of one of our most attractive, capable, and dedicated young ministers, the Rev. Harold De Roo.

Services will begin on Sunday, April 2 at the Stygler Road Junior High School in Gahanna at 10:45 a.m.

I would like to join the Rev. De Roo in extending to you a cordial invitation to attend the opening services. If you have no definite church home, we invite you to become a part of the fellowship of the Reformed Church in Gahanna, where you will have the thrilling experience of developing a new worshiping communion in a new and attractive section of Columbus.

NVP:c

Cordially yours,

Another "guesestimate" was made concerning possible enrollment figures when the new building on Hamilton Road opens up in the fall of 1968. Claiming that the best educated guess might be wild as a March hare, and that he and the board disclaims any prowess with a crystal ball, Martin leans toward a figure between 700 and 800 from the public schools of the five participating districts. These include Gahanna, Madison, Canal Winchester, Whitehall and Reynoldsburg.

With no interest surveys made in the parochial schools on which to base any predictions, the superintendent states no one is even speculating on enrollment figures to include these potential students.

ANOTHER MATTER reviewed last week was the proposed table of organization for Eastland.

Tentatively it is seen with the director (a post now held by William Spadafore) the only administrator directly responsible to Martin who, of course, works under the direction of the board.

Divisions responsible to the director will include trades and industry, business, agriculture and adult education as well as the heads of the maintenance, secretarial and cafeteria staffs.

SPEAKING OF THE secretarial staff, Martin was reminded that an additional secretary is needed immediately.

Although shorthand is desirable, it is not demanded. The beginning salary range is from $3,600 to $4,200.

Applications are available at the new administrative office, 538 S. Yearling-rd, recently leased from the Oliver Taggert Co. for use until the new building is ready for occupancy.

MAKE EASTER BASKETS

FIRST PLACE

The Cleveland school system collection of library books and magazines will be boosted by $2,500 as a result of the system winning first place in a national award program. Encyclopedia Britannica, sponsor of the awards, said Cleveland had demonstrated "significant improvements in the elementary school library program."

STONEY CREEK SALE 'LOOKS VERY PROMISING'

Negotiations which would lead to a Metropolitan Park Board takeover of Stoney Creek Golf Course look "very promising," according to a spokesman for present owners of the financially-troubled course.

Benny Newpoff, owner of the course when it went into receivership, told The Spectator further negotiations between himself and a few holdout creditors were scheduled for later in the week.

The Columbus Metropolitan Park Board has already taken an option on the course itself and plans to move in immediately upon approval of the sale by the creditors and the Fairfield County courts.

Walter Tucker, director of the Park Board, said only the golf course is involved in its

UNDERCLASSMEN NOT AFFECTED

Cap Relaxes Senior Hours

Capital University's Administrative Council has lifted all restrictions on the weekend curfew hours of senior women but deferred action on changes in hours of underclass women.

The Council, acting on a recommendation from the Women's Residence Government (WRG) Council, agreed to make seniors responsible for their weekend hours provided they are in good standing, are 21 years old or older, have signed parental consent and complete a "responsibility card" kept on file in the Dean of Women's office.

At present, senior women at the Bexley university must be in their dormitories by midnight Sunday through Thursday and by 1 a.m. Friday and Saturday. No action was taken to change week-night hours.

The Council, however, deferred action on a WRG Council request that hours for freshman, sophomore and junior women be changed. President Harold L. Yochum said "further consideration" would be given to the proposal.

Yochum said the decision to lift weekend curfews for seniors "does not represent a trend toward permissiveness, but is a recognition that increasing maturity and demonstration of responsibility merit increasing freedom and self-determination."

He also said the change in policy "is consistent" with Capital's official philosophy, part of which states that the university "expects its students to govern their daily lives and conduct on and off campus in a manner consistent with Christian faith, necessitating only a minimum of supervision."

The Administrative Council is composed of Dr. Yochum and the university's four vice-presidents. The WRG Council is composed of representatives from all residence halls, annexes and off-campus housing.

Yochum said the effective date of the policy change would depend on procedures taken by the Dean of Women's office and the WRG Council to implement the changes. But, he added, it could take effect as early as this month.

Historical Tree Planted In Yorktown Courtyard

A slice of American history is growing in the courtyard of Columbus' newest junior high school.

The history is a flowering dogwood tree, shipped to Columbus from the famed Yorktown Battlefield in Virginia, site of both Revolutionary and Civil War battles.

School Superintendent Dr. Harold Eibling was on hand to toss the first spade of earth onto the sapling at the New Yorktown Junior High School, 5600 E. Livingston-av. Yorktown is scheduled to begin serving, the Far East Side next September.

George F. Jenny, the conservation and outdoor education specialist of the Columbus Public Schools, started the project in November when he requested a tree from the Virginia Division of Forestry.

The flowering dogwood was selected from the battlefield and arrived in Columbus, ironically, on March 6, the day of the year's biggest snowfall.

From now until school opens again in September, four future Sherwood students will tend to the tree. They are Michelle Blank, Jeffrey Hodgson, Richard Marylut and Beth Rowland.

Also attending the ceremonies were Board of Education President Robert A. Ramsey; Mrs. Norman Arnett, president of the Suburban Women's Club and Mrs. Norman Burch, Conservation Committee chairman. The club plans to erect a plaque dedicating the Yorktown Battlefield Tree planting.

Yorktown is best known as the site of Lord Cornwallis' surrended to Gen. George Washington to end the American Revolution, but was also the site of a Civil War battle.

BUT COUNTY SHOWS INCREASE

Ohio Losing, Not Gaining Residents

By ROBERT TENENBAUM
Managing Editor

More people are moving out of Ohio than into it, despite claims that the state's economic climate is attracting thousands of migrants a year.

Those are the results of a Battelle Memorial Institute study, headed by Harry M. Rosenberg, which reported that "growth in Ohio's population during the past 10 years has resulted entirely from the balance of births over deaths."

"Since 1955, more persons have left the state than entered," the report said. "This is in contrast to the period from 1950-55 when net in-migrants numbered more than 400,000."

The study showed the birth-over-death ratio was also a key factor in county population increases. Although 78 of the state's 88 counties showed increases during 1960-65, more than 30 of them actually had more people moving out than moving in. In the five-year period, 44 of the 88 counties showed net in-migration while the other 44 showed net out-migration.

Births in the state usually outnumber deaths by more than 2-1, the Battelle study showed. In 1965, there were 194,927 births in the state compared with only 98,232 deaths.

Development of industry within the state is having some effect on population shifts within the state itself. Battelle scientists noted a continued trend away from rural areas toward urban centers. Especially noticeable were shifts away from the mining areas of Eastern and Southeastern Ohio and toward the string of counties stretching from Cleveland southwest to Cincinnati.

The most striking population pattern is the trend called suburbanization, which shows up in the "phenominal growth of commuter 'bedroom' communities where people live and send their children to school while often they drive to work in another county." The trend showed heaviest in the Cleveland, Akron, Cincinnati and Dayton metropolitan areas.

In the Toledo and Youngstown areas, however, both the home city county and the surrounding counties showed net loss of migrants during the period.

But Columbus showed an entirely opposite trend, with growth showing up not only in neighboring Pickaway and Delaware counties but also in Franklin County itself. Approximately 30,000 more persons moved into the three-county area than left it during the five-year span.

Franklin County itself showed a net influx of 25,200 persons during the 1960-65 period. Coupled with the natural population increase, that brought the county's population up from 682,962 in 1960 to an estimated 778,600 last July 1.

Urbancrest Out To 'Find A Way'

Housing problems would be non-existent in Urbancrest if every home had the appearance of this immaculate bungalow where sparkling white paint and the well-kept yard almost scream "pride of ownership." Bun unfortunately, next door to this home is the dilapidated dwelling pictured on the left. Long abandoned it serves only as a shelter for vermin, an eye sore to its beholders and a drag on property values to its neighbors.

Chalmers P. Wylie was " pleased to meet" Thomas McPhearson, resident of Urbancrest. However, the story of a well contaminated by surface water, and drinking water hauled by gallon jugs from filling stations with attendants willing to look the other way brought home to Wylie that some of his constituents live in less than the generally-accepted "Amarican Way."

By JANE ROBINSON
Spectator Staff Writer

Residents of Urbancrest learned last week that if all municipal income for the next 10 years were diverted to "matching funds" they would still be short of the $300,000 demanded to receive the federal grants that can bring them water and sewers.

And yet they are not discouraged.

Listening quietly when their congressman, Chalmers P. Wylie, and their mayor, Kenneth Penn, told them "a way will be found," they rallied to the fervent plea of their councilwoman, Mrs. Lynda Mary McReynolds, who challenged them to put their trust in prayer.

Citing how her own prayers have recently been answered, Mrs. McReynolds drew spontaneous "amens" from the audience as she called upon them to remember that God actually controls "all the money in Washington."

Wylie who addressed the group after an eye-opening tour of the community told them that HUD (Housing and Urban Development) had assured him that the application for 90 percent of the cost of sewers and 50 percent of water costs is "in order and proper."

However, harking back to the monumental task ahead (raising $300,000), he compared the problem with that of which comes first — the chicken or the egg.

While indicating that Washington approval of the plan is dependent upon the local funds materializing, Wylie conceded it is doubly difficult for a community to raise money (through taxation or other means) without any assurance that federal aid is on the way.

One avenue he suggested is money provided by the state from the proposed bond issue on the Ohio ballot in May.

Penn who claims he has written "Help" to every appropriate official in the country (up to and including President Johnson) pointed out there is one step toward their goal that villagers can take immediately.

That is the one of clean-up.

"When officials come to look us over," he said, "at least we can show them we care enough to keep our homes and yards clean."

Although little has been done about securing utilities for Urbancrest before Penn and Miss Maryellen Meredith, director of the CMACAO funded County Service Center operated in the community, took the bit in their teeth a couple of months ago, evidence has long existed showing the need to raise housing standards in Urbancrest.

According to the 1960 census report, less than 21 percent of the 262 housing units in the village include all plumbing.

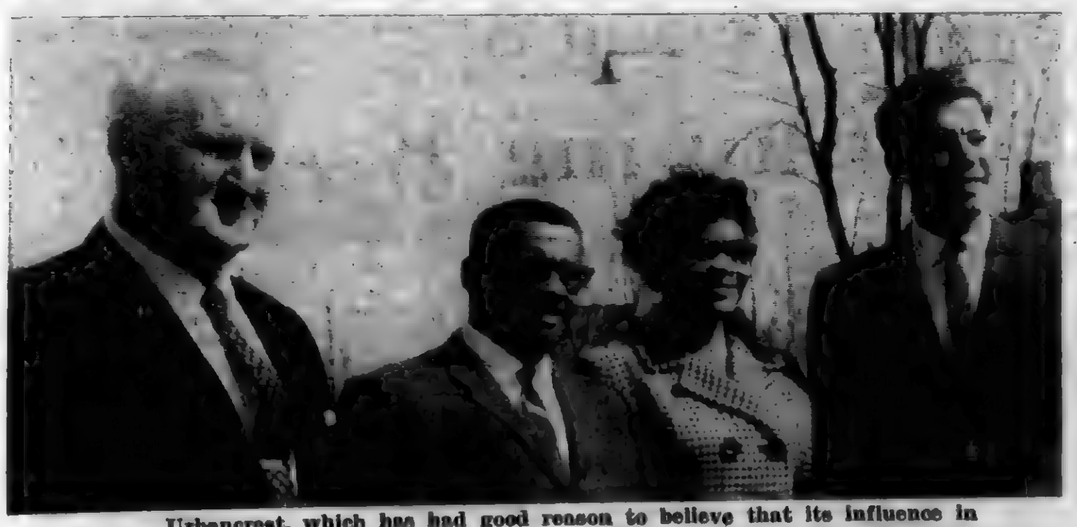
Such facilities are concentrated in 52 of the 139 homes described as sound, with only 12 of the 108 deteriorating houses and none of those classified as dilapidated (65) boasting flush toilets, and/or running water.

Miss Meredith, whose enthusiasm for help for the tiny corporation is contagious, sees sewer and water as only one step toward complete urban renewal.

"We are going to build a completely new city," she explained, "with new homes replacing the hopeless, and deteriorating homes rehabilitated before it's too late."

An answer to the obvious question arising when outsiders first look at the isolated poverty pocket — "Is it worth it?" was given by a Center staff member.

"Yes, it is worth it," he replied, "if only for one reason. We are working with more than houses and streets and sewers. We are working with people."



He added that it is a closely-knit community where roots are deep.

The same line of thinking was offered by a young matron who lived in Urbancrest until her marriage.

"It may not be a garden spot," she smiled, "but it's my home town and I want to see it saved."

It's dwifficult to "upstage" a politician but Congressman Wylie and Mayor Jenn learned it could be done last week when the latter's son, "Little K," took to the platform during a community meeting.

Urbancrest, which has had good reason to believe that its influence in Washington circles is nothing to brag about, rolled out the red carpet last week to its congressman, Chalmers P. Wylie, far right. It received, in return, a pledge of friendship and support from its congressman. From the left are John Kell mayor of Darbydale, a neighboring town which also has its share of economic woes; Urbancrest's Mayor Kenneth Penn and Miss Maryellen Meredith, director of the Neighborhood Service Center located within the village.

Comment And Criticism

The Opening Shot

The opening salvo has been fired in Republican Jerry Spears' campaign for election as mayor of Columbus — and it turned out to be a "short round."

Spears charged the Sensenbrenner administration was "cold and unfriendly" to business and industry and that the city has not attracted major industry in the last 10 years.

Spears' charge was promptly and properly shot down by the Columbus Area Chamber of Commerce, which cited "unusually high degree of cooperation from the administration" in areas of industrial development.

The Chamber also noted 66 new manufacturing plants have located in Columbus between 1964 and 1966 alone.

Spears has done himself and the city he seeks to lead a disservice. He may only be partially forgiven since his campaign appears to be directed from the State House.

It is a standard Rhodes technique to create "paper problems" which are easily solved later, but which serve to upstage the real issues.

Spears will have to come up with something better, or indeed be buried by Sensenbrenner.

Open Channel D

During recent visits to Columbus by former U.S. Senator Barry Goldwater and famed Washington correspondent Marquis Childs we noted no reference in the public prints to the effect that they were both "Spectator columnists."

Therefore we were somewhat amused Sunday when Richard L. Paugh, a comparatively obscure conservation writer who contributes a weekly piece to this newspaper, was cited twice on the front page as a "Spectator columnist."

Reporting of the arrest of Gordon Novel, wanted in Louisiana for alleged conspiracy in the death of President Kennedy, apparently was designed to leave the impression that The Spectator was part of the plot.

In some newspapers you don't have to wait until you get to the funny pages to get your laughs.

Moving Day

Battelle Memorial Institute has provided another chapter for that fast-growing book on Ohio's own credability gap.

Despite the claims that thousands of people are flocking yearly to the "Wonderful World of Ohio," a Battelle population study shows that the increase in Ohio's population over the last five years is due entirely to the vast difference between the death and birth rates.

In other words, more people are moving out of Ohio than into it.

In fact, the exodus has continued now for 11 years and is in stark contrast to the period from 1950-55 when more than 400,000 more people came into Ohio than moved out of the state.

The Battelle figures are enlightening. The Spectator hopes that the powers that be can see through their own curtain of publicity long enough to do something about reversing the trend.

Opportunism

By ROBERT BURDOCK
Editor and Publisher

BURDOCK

Former Democratic Congressman-at-large Robert Sweeney is a misguided political opportunist.

His recent grandstand endorsement of Governor Rhodes' Ohio Bond Commission proposal is completely at odds with the announced policy of opposition by the state Democratic organization.

Sweeney's position also puts him at cross purposes with his beleaguered hometown mayor, Democrat Ralph Locher of Cleveland, who has dubbed the Rhodes proposal "monstrous."

Opportunist Sweeney is either setting himself up to run for mayor of Cleveland or has the idea he can endear himself to Rhodes enough to swing an appointment to one of the two minority seats on the proposed bond commission.

It appears a foregone conclusion in capital circles that the other minority appointment to the five-member commission will go to another "Rhodes Democrat," Columbus attorney James W. Shocknessy.

Shocknessy traditionally served as chairman of the state Democratic platform committee until he was unceremoniously dumped by party leadership last year as his ties with Rhodes grew beyond his unsuccessful efforts to expedite construction of Interstate 71.

With Sweeney and Shocknessy on the commission Rhodes would hold unanimous sway, not just a majority vote.

Sweeney's determination to switch rather than fight won't influence many Democrats, but it will allow Rhodes to give his bond proposal a bi-partisan discoloration.

When the voters wake up to the fact that under Rhodes Ohio Bond Commission proposal they will lose their right to vote on the state debt limit, some Democrats are going to wish they had stayed under their own rocks.

On Stopping Crime

To The Editor:

In last week's Spectator Robert Tenenbaum's article titled, "Law Enforcement Not in Danger," and Herblock's cartoon with regard to riots of the previous three summers, together point out the slowness with which we have dealt with the major problems of our cities.

The alarming rise in crime and delinquency seriously bothers most people, but not enough to take action by dealing with some of the core causes of our high crime rate. And the causes are not the U.S. Supreme Court. Blaming the U.S. Supreme Court for our crime rate is like blaming the dentist for the toothache; or like blaming the newspapers for the high rate of highway accidents because they report the deaths and injuries on our highways.

Those who are seriously concerned about the crime rate should point their efforts at attacking the causes of most crime which are easily identified as unemployment (mainly among the annual million dropouts in this country); poor and segregated housing; ghetto living; inferior education; inadequate welfare grants; and the locking of people in poverty without hope of breaking out.

A teenager who is about to steal a car does not concern himself about the U.S. Supreme Court's ruling on his rights upon arrest.

More stringent laws and police enforcement again only hit at the symptoms of the problem—not the cause. This was illustrated vividly at the recent Inner-City Police-Citizens Training program conducted by the city's Community Relations Department and the Ohio State University School of Social Work.

At this program, both the residents of the high crime rate areas, and the Columbus police officers who attended the program, agreed that something had to be done to improve the lot of people living in these areas. In addition they agreed — and have started to work together toward a better communication system between the people who live in the high crime areas and the law enforcement officers.

They both need the support of the Columbus area leadership and the community in order to reduce crime. Attempting to deal with major social problems locally including the crime problem, and the anti-poverty offices (CMACAO and ECCO); most of our social service agencies; a great number of churches; the United Community Council particularly through its fight to raise welfare grants of the deprived; a great number of citizens, individually in groups and government offices.

It is time to stop blaming others for our troubles and to join together with all those in our community who wish to solve our local problems.

william s. white ★ Romney At Hartford ★

WHITE

The pressure is on George Romney of Michigan, a leading 1968 Republican Presidential aspirant, as it has never been before. Rarely has a prospective political speech been more intently awaited by friend and foe than the address on foreign policy which the Governor has promised for April 7 in Hartford, Conn.

In this appearance before the New England editors and publishers, Romney is expected at last to clear up his ambiguous opposition on the way in Vietnam. His persistent cloudiness on this, the greatest of all national issues, has already cost him the front-runnership within a G.O.P. which is actually more committed to all-out military resistance in Communist aggression in South Vietnam than are the Democrats themselves.

The latest Gallup Poll tells a stark story for the Romney backers—some of whom had been pleading with him for many weeks to come out loud and clear on Vietnam. Former Vice-President Richard Nixon once a second-place rival to Romney for the Presidential nomination, for the first time takes a clear and ominous lead in every possible measurement of Republican rank-and-file preference.

The reason for Nixon's ascension is perfectly plain. He is an unapologetic hawk on Vietnam, as indeed are former President Dwight Eisenhower, Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York, and the entire Republican leadership of both houses of Congress.

And not only has Romney been slipping with the party rank and file. He is also being pushed publicly now by certain powerful Republican leaders who have heretofore been markedly sympathetic to his candidacy. For illustration, there is Rockefeller. Twice in recent days he has sharply admonished American doves in general and, most of all, Romney himself.

In New York City, Rockefeller — thrusting too, at such men as Sen. Robert F. Kennedy on the Democratic side — pointedly advised politicians without access to all the intelligence open to the President not to rock the boat on Vietnam.

"I think," Rockefeller went on, "that the people feel that when their President is engaged in very delicate negotiations, they would rather back him up than listen to what any politician would have to say."

In truth, it is hardly too much to say that Hartford can surely break, is not necessarily make, Romney's whole campaign. All through the political community today there is the most intense speculation "What is George going to say in Hartford?"

What he is going to say in Hartford remains within the mind of Romney himself. Perhaps the most important clue is that Romney has now taken onto his staff a professional foreign policy adviser, Jonathan Moore. Moore has had experience in both the State and Defense Departments and is profoundly likely to advise the Governor that on Vietnam there is only one way to stand, that way being the way of practically the entire national G.O.P. leadership.

For the unalterable reality here is what it has always been: The Republican party could not nominate any man who stood unclear on Vietnam without repudiating that party's entire post-war foreign policy record. If, therefore, Romney is not cleared up on Vietnam when he leaves Hartford, the whole course of the intra-Republican struggle for the Presidency will have been altered by the next morning.

Already, Nixon's lead is dangerously wide, and there is, moreover, the important fact that two of the greatest of the new powers — Govs. Ronald Reagan of California and James Rhodes of Ohio — are unqualified hawks. Given a Romney still unclear or faintly doveish on Vietnam and the Eastern Republican Establishment which has heretofore been his chief backer would surely begin to turn instead toward Rockefeller.

barry goldwater ★ Handing The Shovel ★

GOLDWATER

When Nikita Khrushchev announced several years ago that communism would "bury" us, I publicly expressed hope that we would not hand them the shovel. But that is what we are now trying to do.

We are trying to do it through the administration's attempts to liberalize trade with Communist nations. Administration spokesmen and, let's face it, even some members of the opposition party say that increasing such trade will "build bridges" of friendship.

Further, they say there is no reason for free-world businessmen to miss out on the rich markets behind the Iron Curtain.

Ninety-day or, at most, one-year credit is the normal arrangement when free nations do business between themselves. But the Communists won't settle for that. They can't. Their economy is too shaky—from top to bottom and from motherland to the smallest captive nation. The Communists want credits that would extend for as long as 15 years.

Can you imagine what would happen if you wanted to buy a washing machine, for instance, and you asked your banker to spread the payments over 15 years? Well, that's what the Communists are doing — and confidently expecting they'll get away with it.

What it amounts to in the long run is government subsidy for trade with the very nations that have sworn to bury us and which are now supporting the war against us in Vietnam. Who pays for such a subsidy? You do.

As for the other argument, the one about building bridges, common sense knocks that one silly. Subsidizing trade with Communist nations would not build bridges. It would build, instead, new bars to reinforce the prison into which Communist aggression already has thrown about a third of the earth's population.

The greatest internal pressures against tyranny in the Communist nations have been built by the failures of dictatorships. The free world a higher standard of living for their conquered populations. The free world, meantime, has moved steadily ahead. Inevitably, the population becomes aware of this, and discontent grows. This is happening.

If it grows enough, there is some chance that Communist leaders would be forced to reform their system—or be overthrown. The only reform that would be significant and which would deliver a higher standard of living would be to abandon socialism and its total control of the people.

But if we subsidize that very socialism with long-term credits, the regime will be able to deliver new consumer goods, dampen the discontent and keep its political controls clamped on as tightly as ever.

marquis childs ★ Feud With State Department ★

CHILDS

The feud between the Senate Foreign Relations Committee — at least Chairman J. William Fulbright and perhaps a majority of the Democrats—and the State Department is reaching a state of private venom. The name-calling indulged in by officials fairly high up in the State Department hierarchy is inflaming an atmosphere already highly charged.

What are the rights and privileges of the Senate in shaping foreign policy? Does the executive have a free hand with the Congress following up with a stamp of approval and the funds to implement decisions taken by the White House and State? These questions are at the heart of what increasingly has the look of a crisis in the troubled relationship between the two powers.

It began with a fundamental difference over Vietnam policy. But the quarrel has long since spilled into other areas. The latest bicker was over the resolutions requested by the President approving a greatly expanded program for the Alliance for Progress in Latin America. The resolution came up to the Capitol with the strongly worded plea that it be passed by the Senate by March 23. This was the last day of Senate business before the Easter recess.

A resolution signed and sealed fitted in with the President's plans. He wanted to hold it up before the Latin-American Ambassadors and their wives at the big barbecue he is giving for them at his ranch next week end. Here would be proof of forward movement for the Alliance looking to the Latin summit in Punta del Este on April 11.

But to Fulbright and other committee members it seemed to be a deadline dictated by the executive. This was a far-reaching commitment and while the resolution itself gave no figure the President in an accompanying message proposed that $1.5 billion be added over five years to what Washington is already putting into the Alliance. Surely, so the argument went, there is time to give this the serious consideration it deserves.

The committee declined to meet what was regarded as the White House deadline. One lengthy hearing was held and another is set for April 3. Conceivably the resolution will not be passed by the Senate before the President leaves on April 11 for the Latin summit.

For the Administration this could not come at a more inopportune time. As shown by President Eduardo Frei Montalva's article in Foreign Affairs, "The Alliance That Lost Its Way," the discontent not only in Chile but throughout the continent is acute. There are serious doubts that the Punta del Este meeting can accomplish anything. The resolution and the $1.5 billion were intended as the carrot to go with the stick inducing a much faster pace toward a Latin-American common market.

Not only on Latin America does the feud cut across the aims and intentions of the Administration. The opposition to the foreign aid program will be more massive and more determined this year than ever before. It will be a long uphill fight to get even a part of what the President is requesting and this is smaller than any appropriation thus far proposed.

Politically speaking, the Republicans see a profit in the quarrel between the Democrats on the committee and the Administration. They are like the pioneer who found his cantankerous wife in a fight with a bear and cheered them both on with, "Go to it, bear; go to it, wife."

For contract the State Department points to the House which dutifully passed the Latin-American resolution on deadline. But the name-calling, in some instances at the point of vituperation and slander, can only make a bad situation worse.

Curtain Call

Edited By Claudia Elkins

Local Theater Clubs Advance Through Columbus Association

How far have the Columbus area community theaters advanced in the past 10 years?

Of primary concern is membership and involvement. Most clubs have gained from 20 to 200 members.

Ten years ago Stadium Theater, Village Little Theater, Players Club, Gallery Players, Independent Players and several now-defunct theater groups were in operation.

To the above list we now have Prairie Players, Welsh Hills Players, Curtain Players, Little Theater Off Broadway and many groups in the beginning stages of development. One of these is Otterbein's summer theater program which will involve the community.

To become a working unit each of these groups have become aware of their power and importance in the community through the Association of Community Theaters—Columbus.

It took many years before this realization to fully become a working and contributing factor to better community theater.

Back in November of 1966, Mrs. Carolyn Lane, now ACT president, sent a letter of intent to all community theater groups. As a result of this each group appointed a delegate. This delegate, along with Mrs. Lane, formed a board and appointed committees, after tiring but enthusiastic sessions on setting up a constitution and by-laws.

The purpose of ACT — Columbus is: "To promote and encourage interest in better community theatre; to promote mutual box office support; to promote greater communication between groups; to strengthen individual member groups."

Of a potential eleven theater groups, ACT at the present has eight roups participating.

There are committees for: library, which is to allow play selection committees a broader selection of scripts: publicity, joint efforts to further acquaint Columbus with community theater; lobby display, to enable each group to advertise for each member group during production; directory, an informative array of information of each group for use by the press, public and participating members.

The list goes on, as all groups are enthusiastic in support of ACT — Columbus and thusly in support of each member group.

Many problems will be solved including the scheduling of plays, play selection, publicity, hard-to-find props and costumes.

Through ACT — Columbus, there is hope for a joint community theater house for productions, rehearsals and meetings; a cultural force in the community and primarily better productions and community theater.

In ten years Columbus has seen a change of attitude among theater groups. Each group is willing to aid and support each other. A willingness to learn, grow and finally a mutual respect of each group's problems is a realization that has occurred among eight theater groups in the past six months.

Greek Tragedy To Go On OSU Theater Stage

In the 2500 years since it was written, Sophocles' "Oedipus The King" has been universally hailed as the greatest Greek tragedy. Though often read, it has rarely been produced in English because of the difficult problems it poses in production techniques.

The Ohio State University Theatre will produce "Oedipus The King" in the University Hall Theatre April 11-15 and April 21-22.

To allow production of "Oedipus" in its original form of lyric theatre, an original musical score has been composed by Gary Walker, who is also musical director and conducts a 20-piece orchestra during the play.

While the music is modern, it reflects the powerful primitive characteristics of the drama and the oriental quality of Greek music.

Costumes and masks will reflect the primitive beauty and strength of Greece. All actors will wear masks and cothurni (thick-soled boots) to increase their stature in keeping with the story and characters as being larger than life size.

The entire floor of the stage will be rebuilt to slant forward into the auditorium in keeping with the idea of theatre-in-the-round for which the play was written.

Tickets are now on sale at OSU Ticket Office, 154 North Oval-dr, or by phoning 293-2295.

Director Names 'Anniversary' Cast

Prairie Players' director Mrs. Pat Kessler reports that the cast for "Anniversary Waltz" includes: Mary Jane Metaxes, Herb Mann, Elizabeth Noblitt, Oscar Smith, Julie Hietter, Carl Walker, Ellen Appleby, Joe Fletcher, Lee and Don Bender, Terry Smith and Joe Martin.

Wayne Krepps and Martha Davis will be in charge of technical direction and stage managing, respectfully. Production dates are April 28 and 29 at Norton Junior High, 8:30 p.m.

Mrs. Kessler is Prairie Players' delegate to ACT — Columbus. Mrs. Kessler has directed "Write Me A Murder" and portrayed the female lead in "Middle of The Night" for Prairie Players.

'Oedipus' Poses Technical Problems

A year of research and planning with three months of rehearsals will culminate in the opening of Ohio State University Theater's production of Sophocles' "Oedipus The King," which plays April 11, 15, 21 and 22.

Though often read, it has rarely been produced in English because of the difficult problems it poses in production techniques.

To allow production of "Oedipus" in its original form of lyric theatre, an original musical score has been composed by Gary Walker.

Special dances have been created and staged by Lynn Rawlins of the University Dance Area.

All actors will wear masks and cothurni (thick-soled boots) to increase their stature in keeping with the nature of the story and the characters as being larger than life size.

The entire floor of the stage will be rebuilt to slant forward into the auditorium to adapt the theatre in keeping with the form of theater-in-the-round.

Supervising and coordinating the production is Donald R. Glancy, a member of the faculty of theh Department of Speech and a staff director of the OSU Theatre.

For ticket information, phone OSU Theatre Box Office 293-2295 between 1 and 4:30

Entertainment Notes

Representative of the entertainment spots located in the "strip" area of Columbus is the Brass Rail.

This recent addition to the loudly swinging entertainment circuit, which is acclaimed by the young set, features the Bill Strickland Trio.

Consisting of leader Bill Strickland, as vocalist and playing both an electric organ and portable piano, Bob Stevens on drums and Gary Copley on guitar, this lively trio presents to its listening audience and dancers quite a blaring rendition of way-out entertainment.

Strickland and Stevens are both quite fluent with their instruments and are surely aware of their profession—to entertain.

Guitarist Copley seems rather detached at times, as if he himself was not enjoying—this is not showmanship.

Timing is fantastic as number after number is played, all blend and complement—oh it is so loud and so much fun.

Even for the older crowd there is enjoyment as being a spectator is a real enjoyment itself.

Strickland, a mere 338 pounds, has been entertaining professionally since 1957. He has worked at the Boat House and the Martinique. Locally, there is a record album available for his fans.

Logan, W. Va., is home for Copley, but he has traveled "on the road" and entertained professionally for nine years.

Drummer Bob Stevens has studied music theory at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, worked with Tommy Dorsey at the age of 18 and within the next few weeks he will release a record, "Danny Boy."

Al Whasion, WLW-C Television, worked with Bob on this recording.

The Bill Strickland Trio's renditions of jazz, rock 'n roll—the modern beat, are playing to capacity crowds nightly.

There is one exception, Monday night is the Trio's night off.

Mershon To Have Tenth Anniversary

Mershon Auditorium will celebrate its tenth birthday with a gala weekend of events scheduled for April 21, 22, and 23.

Mershon was officially opened on April 22, 1957, with a concert by Rise Stevens marking the event.

On April 21, Ella Fitzgerald and her trio will present a "pop" concert. Tickets are now available.

Mstislov Rostropovich, Russian cellist, will play a recital at 8 p.m. April 22. A limited number of tickets will be available at 9 a.m. on April 12 at the Mershon Box Office.

Free admission to the OSU Men's Glee Club concert on April 23 at 3 p.m. will be available April 7 at the Mershon Ticket office. Detailed information on these three programs is available at 293-2354.

OES Chapter Forms Social Club

Shirley Key has been elected president of the Evening Key's, the new social club organized by the Southern Way Chapter, 467, Order of the Eastern Star.

Other officers elected are Ann Kauffman, vice-president; Judy White, secretary and Barbra Paul, treasurer.

Appointments include Judy Althoff as chaplain; Lora Moore, Ruth Spencer and Faye Grace, by-laws; Mary Louise Clifton, Francis Lindsay and Ruth Spencer, program; Lois Tyndall, Carol Kauffman and Sandra Ward, refreshments and Joan Avern, sunshine.

SEAT THE KIDS

The Columbus Auto Club-AAA cautions motorists always to make certain children are securely seated while the car is being driven. Squabbling, restless children in an automobile upset the driver's concentration and make him more accident prone. Children not properly seated can be injured if a sudden stop is necessary.

Altrusa Club Notes
Golden Anniversary

A dinner at Ilonka's Suburban Tuesday at 6:30 p.m. will mark the golden anniversary of the Altrusa Club International.

Miss Leona Gleann and Mrs. D. J. Stuckey are chairmen of the local chapter.

Founded in 1917 in Nashville, Tenn., Altrusa International which is one of the oldest service clubs for woman in the world, counts seventeen thousand five hundred members in 542 clubs. The Columbus group which was organized in 1918 now has almost 100 members enrolled. Membership is by invitation and is limited to women in executive and administrative positions.

Following the dinner, Miss Dorothy Diehl will preside at a ceremony honoring the founders.

Special anniversary projects will be reviewed by Mrs. Lucie B. Outwaite, chairman of the anniversary committee who has been assisted by Miss Diehl and Mrs. Robert O'Brien.

With anniversary activities built around the theme, "Growing In Service," fifty projects included sending 13 50-pound boxes of clothing to Italy, similar boxes to fulfill local needs and 50 books to a college in Italy.

Presidents of other women's service clubs and grantees of Altrusa scholarships are invited to the dinner.

Want to make a million dollars? Simple.

Just ask the smartest person you know (he's most likely to have a million) to take this simple spelling test.

If he spells them all correctly he wins.

Anyone who loses a million dollars in this Spectator-guaranteed test gets a free one-year subscription.

Here are the odds; six spelled correctly is the median; only one person in 10 will spell 12 correctly. University English professors, if they're smart ones, get up to 18 right. You can safely bet no one will spell all of them correctly.

The Builders Exchange of Columbus' 1967 Columbus Home Show opens Saturday at 2 p.m. and continues through Friday, April 14, at the Buckeye Building on the State Fairgrounds.

For this annual show, more than 175 of Central Ohio's leading businessmen assemble their wares at the show. Last year, more than 120,000 persons visited the event.

Manager John A. Kight said the show "is designed to enable visitors to shop and compare values on more home products in a few hours than they could in weeks of visiting individual stores."

Greene is national education chairman for the American Cancer Society. Franklin County goal for the month-long Cancer Crusade is $211,000.

805 W-E'ers Honored

Nearly 12 percent of the 6,800 employees at Western Electric's huge E. Broad Street works turned in perfect attendance records during 1966—the best record in the 10-year history of the plant.

General Manager Paul Zweier presented 805 letters of congratulations to perfect attendance employees at a special program honoring outstanding performance at the works.

Leading the list was M. J. Bacher, a test set technician, who has logged seven years of service without ever missing a day. Three employees received six-year pins and 33 others were honored for from two to five years of perfect attendance.

Zweier said good attendance was a prime factor in the plant's production record last year. "Success is linkew to people — people who do their jobs well and do them consistently, day in and day out," he said.

45 Firms Join

Forty-five firms with 840 radio-equipped cars have signed up for Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner's "Community Radio Watch" program, part of the city's drive against crime.

Under the program, the companies equip their cars with two-way radios and instruct their drivers to report to police any noteworthy happenings.

'Radio Watch'

"It's indeed gratifying to have had so many companies sign up and support this worthwhile program," the mayor said. "As a result, we all now have a feeling of security which can come only when law and order are being upheld as they should be."

Sensenbrenner said that anyone involved in the program who performs "distinguished service to his fellow man" will be nominated for national heroism awards.

The first research conference on the education of the American Indian will be held in May at Penn State University.

The Flowers That Bloom--Tra La

By NANCY M. LUCKS, NSID

With spring upon us, the beautiful and fresh spring flowers will be bursting into bloom. Many people have asked what unusual ways flowers can be arranged, other than centerpieces.

First let me say, if you do not have a "green thumb" you could apply these suggestions to permanent flowers and foliage.

Find some interesting old containers, for example pickle crocks, iron kettles, old sugar buckets, etc. Fill them with flowers, fern or leaf foliage. Some of the flowers which I consider to be fun — poppies, daisies, etc., are lovely for accents. Put them in interesting containers and set them on the floor beside the stereo, fireplace, in entry ways, etc. This applies to foliage also.

Usually when you walk into a room, you see all of the hard lines of the furniture. By placing foliage or flowers on the floor you are softening the look of the room, and the lines of the furniture flow into the foliage. Another plant that is graceful and looks great in unusual containers is the fern. There are many varieties and each is interesting in itself.

These ideas may also be applied to porches or patios.

MRS. J. E., Columbus: I am redoing my bathroom and would like to use wallpaper. I have been told that wallpaper is not satisfactory. What is your opinion?

DEAR MRS. J. E.: I personally do not recommend wallpaper to my clients for use in bathrooms because of the moisture created by the shower, etc. Vinyl wall covering is not harmed by moisture and there are many interesting patterns and colors to choose from. Also, some vinyl manufacturers have matching fabrics for window or shower curtain use. You can use a wallpaper for the lavatory.

Hearing On Berwick Annexation Set

Franklin County Commissioners will hear the petitions filed to annex 235 acres including the Berwick Plaza Shopping Center to the City of Columbus at 10 a.m. May 10. The petition was signed by Harrison Smith as agent.

According to maps filed with the petitions, Refugee Road serves as the north boundary and it extends west from old State Route 33 to Alum Creek to include the shopping center and most of Winchester Park Subdivision.

WEST OF OLD "33," the proposed annexation includes the six acres occupied by the Calvin Presbyterian Church and extends south to pick up 50 acres in the name of Berwick Plaza Apartments Inc.

From rumbles already heard from residences of Winchester Park, it is apparent that the proposal will not have "smooth sailing" when the case is argued 40 days from now.

The validity of some of the signatures born on the petitions is being questioned by some who have inspected them at the Court House where they are on file. Others are claiming that circulators of the petitions refused to remove their names after the signers changed their position on the matter.

THE CONSENSUS among the resident opponents to annexation is that Columbus has little to offer except higher taxes and the threat of assessments for sidewalk and streetlighting for which they are not clamoring.

Although city sewerage is not an issue involved (the area is within a county sewer district), water definitely is.

However, with the city unable to make any promises at this time and the area feud with the water system provided by developer C. Burr Dawes somewhat alleviated (see accompanying story) residential users are not as eager for the opportunity to utilize city water as they maintained themselves to be several years ago.

WHATEVER discension is apparent from Winchester Park, active support of the proposal is recognized to be a certainty from two other interests.

First, it is no secret that several businesses in Berwick Plaza Shopping Center have been very unhappy with the fact that their location in Madison Township, which, by local option, is dry, has precluded the sale of liquor. Annexation would change this.

Secondly, apartment zoning was secured several years ago for the property now owned by the Berwick Plaza Apartments Inc. (Harrison Smith was also the attorney for that applicant). At that time it was made a condition of rezoning that the subsequent apartment house platting would include adequate utilities for such facilities.

AND FEW DOUBT that annexation to the city represents the easiest path to such services.

The position of the Madison Local School Board on the annexation is uncertain at this time.

Although Superintendent Phillip Williams has indicated he has little concern with municipal annexations he recently publicly stated he was definitely against having the school district "eroded away."

HE ADDED that if the shopping center were lost to the Columbus City School District (a decision that lies within the hands of the State School Board, and not the County Commissioners), "major problems" could arise.

It's A Girl For Haytchers

Mrs. Paul J. Haytcher, wife of Whitehall's mayor, gave birth Tuesday morning to a six-pound, 13 ounce girl at St. Ann's Hospital.

The child is the fourth for the Haytchers, who have another daughter and two sons.

Mother and daughter were reported doing well.

A BILLION DOLLAR BIZ!
Millions and some say billions of dollars are spent annually by both men and women who hope to improve the texture, color, or general appearance of the skin. This isn't new . . . this search for an attractive appearance. In 42 B.C. Publius Syrius wrote "a fair exterior is a silent recommendation." What does your exterior say about you?

HYPERTRICHOSIS.
A big word but of growing importance to women. It means an excessive growth of hair where it ordinarily appears as more invisible fuzz. It can be controlled by several methods such as tweezers or various types of depilatories. Electrolysis is the only permanent method. It is perfectly safe when performed by a skilled expert. But it is by no means simple, and requires repeated visits.

OUR INDIAN BROTHERS!
Do you like odd facts? This one interested me—it is said that as soon as an Indian boy's beard began to grow it was their practice to pull out the hairs until the root was discouraged and died and the beard no longer grew. This was carried by some of the tribes to include certain portions of the head.

CAUTION-CAUTION!
A hair growing from a wart or mole should not be removed by any method but clipping it closely. Warts, moles, and hair growing from them should only be removed on advice of a medical doctor.

UNDER THE DRYER
There's nothing wrong with a good political joke unless its gets elected.

Local Minister Attends Quadrennial Convention

Sherman L. Jefferson, pastor of Reynoldsburg Seventh-day Adventist Church, was a representative to the churches' quadrennial convention held at the Benjamin Franklin Hotel in Philadelphia, March 20-23.

Francis W. Wernick of Mount Vernon, O., president of the Ohio Conference of Seventh-day Adventists, was re-elected to executive committee of the church's Columbia Union Conference. Cree Sandfur and T. R. Gardner were returned to office as president and secretary-treasurer for the coming four-year period. Sandefur became president of the organization last June while Gardner has been secretary-treasurer for eight years.

The directors and associate directors of the various departments of the area church organization were also re-elected.

The territory of the Columbia Union Conference consists of the states of Ohio, Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia and the District of Columbia.

In the president's report, Sandefur revealed that the church members in this area of the church division gave more than $30.5 million in tithe (10 percent of income) to their church during the last four years. This is an increase of 30 percent over the previous four years. Adventists use the tithe for ministers' salaries.

RADIATOR ANTI-RUST

Personal Side Of Conflict Shown At Lockbourne AFB

By JANE ROBINSON
Spectator Staff Writer

High tankers refueling U. S. aircraft enroute to Vietnam almost 10 miles above the ground seem pretty remote and impersonal to most Central Ohioans.

But Saturday afternoon when a KC135 taxied up a runway at Lockbourne AFB bringing home the last 14 men of the 301st Air Refueling Wing recently based in Thailand, the very personal side of the war was apparent.

Waiting for these men (two jet tanker crews and six support persons) were their wives, their children, their friends, who had lived for months for this moment and those months lived without any assurance it would arrive.

A teenage boy, witnessing the reunion felt the emotion in the air and said later, "I had to fight the tears when the men started running toward their families."

Typical of the women waiting in their cars until the jet was in sight was the pretty young mother of two toddlers who said, "I'm more nervous than I've been since my wedding day."

A VERY YOUNG man on the flight line showed no nervousness at all as he waited for his Dad — only enthusiasm. He explained he was tired of having to play with a little sister while his father was gone — and besides he needed him to fix his swing set.

And as women embraced their returning husbands, they seemed to grow younger. Perhaps it was that with their welcoming kisses they shed the weight of the dual role of mother-father they have carried.

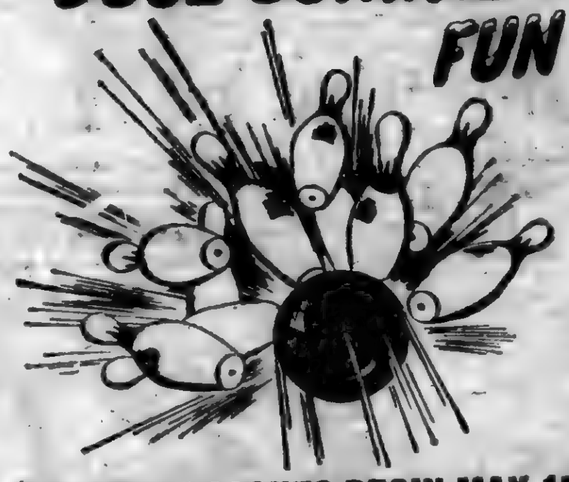
Only one scene, repeated several times, showed the family scars of war that cannot be healed overnight.

THAT WAS the one of a crewman, still in his flight suit, kneeling by his child two or younger, trying to convince him that he was actually "daddy" and not some stranger to be regarded warily.

The job these returning veterans have taken part in over Southeast Asia is regarded as a tremendously important one by the Air Force.

Since June of 1965, KCL35's have flown 27,000 single plane missions in the Western Pacific area. During those trips, they have reloaded a billion pounds of fuels to 110,000 fighter, bomber and reconnaissance planes in the area.

WITH ITS CAPACITY to refuel a plane traveling 600 miles per hour 50,000 feet high and to carry a payload of over 40 tons of fuel the jet tanker has made it possible for bombers once with a range of from 3,000 to 12,000 miles to circle the globe.



Lt. Hugh Wait, co-pilot of one of the crews that returned home Saturday would have enjoyed a few words with his son, but it seems his off-spring had a mouthful of fist rather than a mouthful of "welcome home," for his Dad.

When Capt. Kenton Elley, jet tanker pilot, saw his wife last weekend he didn't have to say, "What have you been doing to keep busy while I've been gone?" One look at the collection of Mother and Daughter matching dotted swiss dresses showed that in addition to playing father and mother to a family of four youngsters she had been diligently creating a spring wardrobe.

Tim Hansley Is Named Capital Mat Co-Captain

Former Walnut Ridge wrestler Tim Hansley was named a '67-68 mat co-captain at Capital University this week.

Other area grapplers earning varsity letters for the Crusaders this past season are: Kevin Jenkins, 137-lb freshman from West; Dave Morris 167-lb. junior from Eastmoor and Nick Burgess, 191-lb sophomore from Canal Winchester.

Cap's squad finished 3-8 in dual matches this past season with a team composed entirely of underclassmen—seven frosh, four sophs and four juniors.

Ted Georgeff is varsity coach at Capital.

Seven Back Lifts E-M Warrior Diamond Hopes

By BOB WHITMAN
Spectator Staff Writer

Eastmoor faces an old and new situation this season as new head boss Russ Friend by way of Hilltonia Junior High, takes the Warrior reins from Jim Farrell and instructs seven old-timers who lettered last year as the East-siders amassed a 12-8 overall mark and a 6-4 first division City finish.

Friend has a veteran mound staff as only Tom Cooper departed the ranks through graduation. Bob Hamill and John Wymer, a couple of three-year wingers held the senior positions in Eastmoor's pitching crop this spring.

CATCHER MIKE Marsh, infielders Ron Counts and Dick Traphagan and outfielders Dan Korenberg and Rich give first-year man Friend a solid working base.

Enough of a starting place at least that many of the fellow City League coaches figure E-M to make a run for the 1967 flag.

BESIDES THAT array of returning talent, four less experienced members from last season's outfit . . . Gregory Cartier, Marty Komives, Ken Levin and Jeff Williams . . . join to add more depth.

But if that is something, a few pretty sound sophomores look even more promising in the Eastmoor diamond future. In fact it was sophomore hurler Tim Pettorini and catcher Stu Brownstein who were the winning battery in the season opener against neighbor Whitehall, 4-1, last week.

PETTORINI PUT down the Rams on a four hitter in his varsity debut.

Steve Georgeff (catcher), Greg Aldrich and Gary Evans (pitcher), Rick Carr, Eugene Huff and Steve Lee (infielders) round out the 10th grader list.

GAHANNA

Gahanna coaching veteran Bill Day has five back to start his group through tune up chores before the Mid-Eight League pennant goes on the line.

RETURNING FROM the Lions' 5-14 season last year are Steve Schneider, Tom Schneider, Bob McGuire, Bob Brandon and Fred Schm'dt.

Second baseman senior Steve Schneider is a three-year veteran and field captain. His junior brother, Tom, is a returning leftfielder while McGuire (first base) is the only other senior on the team.

Pro Soccer To Make May 31 Cleveland Debut

Professional soccer will make its Ohio debut at 8 p.m. on May 31 in Cleveland's Municipal Stadium as the first of six home games for Cleveland's entry in the new 12-club United Soccer Association.

Cleveland's opening foe will be Chicago's representative — Cagliari, an Italian club.

City, Metro Action Opens Loops Tuesday

By BOB WHITMAN
Spectator Staff Writer

City and Metro League action got under way Tuesday with full cards waiting on the mercy of the weather.

The City loop has Russ Friend's Eastmoor Warriors and Whetstone's pre-season favorite Braves heading the five-game card.

THE WARRIORS have seven returning letter winners including mound aces Bob Hamill and John Wymer while the Whetstone troops of Paul Eckelberry have 11 lettermen returning from a 14-5 regular season and a 15-0 summer card.

East and Marion Franklin get together on the Red Devils' diamond for what should be another crowd-pleaser as Charlie Maloney lists seven Devils back against Paul Pennell's impressive summer with eight returning.

OTHER CITY action finds Walnut Ridge, defending Central District co-champions at North, West at Brookhaven, and Central at South.

Joe Stora's Pleasant View Panthers, who have been getting the "eye" from Metro members this spring open at Whitehall.

The defending Metro kings of John Peters list four returning letter winners against the seven of Stora's.

FRANKLIN HEIGHTS, with the strong right arm of Dan Landis, opens its Metro play against Reynoldsburg and the fair mound play of Gary Shade.

'Tis Happy Debut For Brown; Ruffled Falcons Move On Deck

By JACK WITTENMEIER
Spectator Sports Editor

If they're all like his debut last week, Reynoldsburg baseball coach Dan Brown could well be in for a satisfying spring—his first as head Raider diamond skipper.

Brown's nine presented a neat 11-1 victory over Gahanna last week, pounding out 10 hits in the process.

"I WAS well pleased with the hitting for an opener," said Brown, "especially when you consider we'd only gotten in one scrimmage game before this one.

"I just hope we can keep it (the hitting) up," the promoted Reynoldsburg reserve mentor observed.

Brown won't have long to wait to find out — with his Raiders carded at Westerville tonight, at home vs. Mifflin Friday and back on the road for league-opened foe Franklin Heights Tuesday.

THE VISIT to Falcon-land should especially be interesting in light of the wild and woolly conclusion to the '66 Metro League season.

Ed Lewis' crew, ain three-time "no-hit" artist Mickey Pless, had all but sewed up a loop pennant with only two "rainouts" with the Raiders standing between them and the flag.

But when the dust had settled, the Raiders had tacked two losses to the Pless minus side of the ledger and F-H had to settle for a second-place deadlock with Reynoldsburg—behind Metro kingpin Whitehall.

PLESS HAS gone on to greener pastures (major league contract) but the memory of those stinging setbacks haven't likely been dismissed from the mind of Falcon skipper Lewis.

The Raiders' "devastating duo" — Gary Shade and Denny Spires — apparently are ready to pick up where they left off last spring, if the Gahanna opener is an indication.

Shade spun a three-hitter and whacked out a double and triple (good for two RBIs) while Spires terrorized Lion pitching with a three-for-four (single, double, triple) effort, ringing up four plated mates.

ALSO CONTRIBUTING to the 10-hit attack were Tim Wolfe and Steve Snyder, each with a pair of singles.

The Raiders broke a tight 2-1 game wide open with an eight-run outburst in the fifth.

After one out, Snyder singled. Two Lion errors loaded the bases and set up Spires' base-clearing double. Shade then doubled, stole third and came home on Gahanna's third miscue of the frame.

Arlington, East, Gahanna Listed In Classy Cavalier Field Saturday

By JACK WITTENMEIER
Spectator Sports Editor

Cincinnati Purcell, host for Saturday's fifth annual Cavalier Relays, has promised a 45-team lineup which will include "44 of the best track squads in the state of Ohio."

The Cincy school isn't just talking through its cinders either as '66 Ohio champion Cleveland East Tech, '66 Kentucky champion Mayfield and other state powers like Dayton Roosevelt and Cleveland St. Joseph will be vying for the top spot.

CENTRAL OHIO will be sending three pretty prestigious entries in its own in two-time defending champion Upper Arlington, East and Gahanna-Lincoln.

Dick Larkin's Golden Bears added another early jewel to its cinder crown last weekend by dominating the Newark Indoor Meet at Denison — better than doubling its margin on the runnerup hosts.

Add to that an earlier (and equally impressive) repeat at the OSU Indoor show and it's not climbing out too far on the proverbial limb listing the Bears as a solid candidate for a third consecutive Cavalier title.

UA SLIPPED past Middletown (26-21) last spring in the Cincy special, winning the final two events (two-mile and mile relays) to turn the trick.

Three members of that winning two-mile quartet (Steve McLean, Ken Gulcher and Bruce Curtis) are back this spring while Indy of the mile unit (Chuck Palmer and captain Dan Bates) also will encore.

Also back is Bear high jumper Glenn Kohl, who got UA its third first last year by clearing the bar at a record-breaking 6'6". UA took places in six other events to pile up its winning margin.

ED BARRY'S Gahanna Lions return half of a second-shattering shot duo (graduate Nelson Robb for 53'10", returnee Fred Browning for 46 ft. — total 111 ft., 10 in.)

Lee Williams' East Tigers, hampered by disqualification problems at the '66 Cavalier, figure to make a better showing this spring.

The all-relay event gets under way Saturday at 9:30 a.m. with all five field events (two-man teams will compete). Track events follow at 10 a.m. via the kickoff 440 relay test.

OTHER RELAY events will include: four-mile, distance medley, 480-yd shuttle hurdles, mile, two-mile, sprint medley and 880.

On the local scene, several dual meets this week should help to serve as "indicators" for the new season.

A possible preview of things to come at the City Meet could be available in two meets — Central at South tomorrow and Central at West Tuesday.

A PREVIEW of the Metropolitan Meet could come to light tomorrow when defending champion Whitehall hosts reputed number one challenger Reynoldsburg.

Arlington plays host to the likely Mid-Eight strong boys (Hilliard tomorrow and Gahanna Tuesday) while East hits the road for an engagement with always-tough Mansfield Tuesday.

Spins 'Cinderella' Tale

One of the main reasons Cincinnati's Reds have enjoyed success this spring in the Florida Grapefruit circuit has been pitching.

And just about the most impressive pitcher in the Cincy camp this spring has been an 18-year-old righthander from Oroville, Calif., who just might write the "Cinderella story" on the '67 major league season.

THE PITCHER is Gary Lenn Nolan, a 6-3, 190 pounder in training with the parent Reds while on Cincinnati's Sioux Falls, S.D., farm club.

Veteran N.Y. umpire Augie Donatelli, who's seen many a young pitcher during his long tenure in the major leagues says, "He's the best looking pitcher I've seen down here in Florida this spring — and I mean best."

Cincy yet Joe Nuxhall, who made his major league debut at the tender age of 15, added, "To me, this kid looks like a real sleeper."

BUT THE happiest man in the Reds' camp is Cincy manager Dave Bristol who declares, "We're looking for pitching. I love what I've seen of Nolan. No kicking, no pulling, no tugging. He just goes to work and puts the ball over with something on it."

With Sioux Falls, Gary appeared in 12 games, pitched nine complete games and a record of 7-3.

In 104 innings, he allowed 76 hits, 26 runs (21 earned), walked 39 and struck out 123 while fashioning a neat 1.82 ERA.

"TO BE practical about it," Bristol adds, "having him ready to pitch in the National League isn't what you expect at his age. But it's nice to know he's around.

"To me, he pitches like a man who wants a job."

Gary Lenn Nolan. It might be wise to remember the name.

Several reports coming in from the ABC in Miami show Columbus on the big-board, including Harley Lewis and Dick Reiter who hit eighth with a 1246 in regular doubles division.

City, Metro Action Opens Loops Tuesday

By BOB WHITMAN
Spectator Staff Writer

City and Metro League action got under way Tuesday with full cards waiting on the mercy of the weather.

The City loop has Russ Friend's Eastmoor Warriors and Whetstone's pre-season favorite Braves heading the five-game card.

THE WARRIORS have seven returning letter winners including mound aces Bob Hamill and John Wymer while the Whetstone troops of Paul Eckelberry have 11 lettermen returning from a 14-5 regular season and a 15-0 summer card.

East and Marion Franklin get together on the Red Devils' diamond for what should be another crowd-pleaser as Charlie Maloney lists seven Devils back against Paul Pennell's impresive summer with eight returning.

OTHER CITY action finds Walnut Ridge, defending Central District co-champions at North, West at Brookhaven, and Central at South.

Joe Stora's Pleasant View Panthers, who have been getting the "eye" from Metro members this spring open at Whitehall.

The defending Metro kings of John Peters list four returning letter winners against the seven of Stora's.

FRANKLIN HEIGHTS, with the strong right arm of Dan Landis, opens its Metro play against Reynoldsburg and the fair mound play of Gary Shade.

JR. HIGH CAGE CHAMPS

Topping Whitehall's Junior High cage league with a final 7-1 mark this past season were the Celtics. Team members included (seated, from left): Mike Fletcher and Don Wingler. Standing: Chester and Rick Hamsher. Missing are two more Celtic cagers—Randy Hyatt and Rick Sims. Fletcher, incidentally, won the loop's foul shooting contest by sinking 12 of 20 attempts.

UA 'Records' Newark Title; Pete Miller Eyes 200 Ft. Mark

Just like "old times", thunder in the East, "Fair Weather" at Central and only 15⅛ ft. short summed up the week's activities on area ovals.

The "old times" cropped up at Denison U. Saturday as Upper Arlington sped away from runnerup Newark (65⅓ to 26⅓) to land its second straight Newark Indoor Meet title.

THE GOLDEN Bears smashfour records enroute to the Newark title winning seven of the 13 events.

Record performances came from Bruce Curtis (2:02.8 half-mile), Steve McLean (4:28 flat mile), Scott Huston (44½' shot put) and Tom Trainer and Jim Wville (each pole vaulted 13'3¼").

Jerry Cameron (:06.8 low hurdles) and UA's mile relay crew (Denny Dicke, Bryan Blackwell, Jan Dodrill and Bruce Curtis) earned the other firsts, the latter winning in 3:37.4.

ZANESVILLE placed third and Gahanna fourth as the Lions' Bruce Baker lowered the high hurdle mark to :06.9.

Gahanna provided the "thunder" by downing Eastmoor and Reynoldsburg in a triangular before adding another tri-meet win over Whitehall and Groveport.

Central took half of the firsts, scoring a 23-19 win over host Brookhaven at the Fair Weather Relays. East was third with 17 points while West rounded out the double-figure scorers with 11.

THE TIGERS two-mile relay unit (Trent Harris, Chuck Faison, Howard Williams and Eugene Hadden) clipped that time down to 8:16.5 for a new record.

Defending District discus champ — Hilliard's Pete Miller — flirted with the state mark while chalking up a school record fling of 184'5½" to highlight the 'Cats' 99½ to 27½ victory over Hartley.

Miller thus inched closer to a goal he set for himself a few years back (200 ft.), coming to within 15⅛ ft. of the mark.

TEAMMATE Jerry McAllister was a three-event winner at the meet, copping firsts in the 100, 220 and 440.

Ron VanWinkle was wide awake, scoring firsts in the long jump and high hurdles plus running a leg on Dublin's winning 880 relay crew.

But the effort fell short as the Shamrocks bowed to New Albany, 72-57.

GRANDVIEW crushed Grove City, 93-34, as Bob Schorr (high and low hurdles, pole vault), Dick Miller (broad jump, 440, anchored winning mile relay crew) and Bob Fais (100, 220, anchored 880 relay quartet win) set the pace..

Roger White (discus) and Gary Dagg (high jump) gained G-C's lone firsts.

SOPHOMORE Tony Leek paced Gahanna to its double victory, scoring 15 and 13 pts. respectively.

The Lions just missed the century mark, scoring 99½ to Whitehall's 45½ and Groveport's 13.

Here's the rundown:
LJ — Fuller (Wh), Barth (Ga), 20' 3¼"; HH — Baker (Ga), Nichols (Wh), :15.6; 100 — Leek (Ga), Miller (Gr), :10.4; mile — Stricking (Ga), Turner (Wh), 4:43.9; two-mile — Brandon (Ga), Neuson (Ga, 10:46; 880 R — Gahanna (Fuller, Bay Coleman, Browning), (Fuller, Bay, Coleman, Browning), Whitehall, 1:36.9; 440 — Leek (Ga), Fuller (Wh), :53.1; LH — Baker (Ga), Bosse (Ga), :28.9; 880 — Price (Ga), Mayer (Ga), 2:05.3; 220 — Leek (Ga), Genocchi (Gr), :23.4; mile R — Gahanna (Fuller, Bay, Baker, Coleman), Whitehall, 3:39.5; shot — F. Browning (Ga), Mowrer (Wh), 39' 3½", discus — F. Browning (Ga), M. Browning (Ga), 109' 7"; pole vault — Sullivan (Ga), Maxfield (Wh), 12'; HJ — Bosse (Ga), Sark (Wh), 5' 8".

The following afternoon, Gahanna (77½) downed Eastmoor (63½) and Reynoldsburg (18).

Here's that rundown: LJ — Miller (Roy), Barth (Ga), 19' 6¾"; HH — Baker (Ga), Parry (E-M) :14.9; 100 — Baker (Ga), Parry (E-M) :10.4; mile — Stricking (Ga), Turner (Wh), 4:43.9; two-mile — Brandon (Ga), Neuson (Ga), 10:46; 880 R — Gahanna (Fuller, Bay, Coleman, Browning), (Fuller, Bay, Coleman, Browning), Whitehall, 1:36.9; 440 — Leek (Ga), Fuller (Wh), :53.1; LH — Baker (Ga), Bosse (Ga), :28.9; 880 — Price (Ga), Mayer (Ga), 2:05.3; 220 — Leek (Ga), Genocchi (Gr), :23.4; mile R — Gahanna (Fuller, Bay, Baker, Coleman), Whitehall, 3:39.5; shot — F. Browning (Ga), Mowrer (Wh), 39' 3½", discus — F. Browning (Ga), M. Browning (Ga), 109' 7"; pole vault — Sullivan (Ga), Maxfield (Wh), 12'; HJ — Bosse (Ga), Sark (Wh), 5' 8".

Tackle counters across the land are entering into their busy season with hopeful fishermen spending their lunch hours and evenings drooling over the latest models of rods and reels.

PAUGH

For ten years I operated a fishing counter, and, in that time, I became accustomed to the quirks of the buying public.

WHILE I was still in the tackle game, I did not feel that I could do an article on "How to Buy Tackle" for fear my friends would think I was just trying to upgrade my counter sales.

Now that I am out of the business, I can advise you of the pitfalls of purchases. Eighty percent of the inland tackle sales are for spinning equipment so I'll stick to that subject for my examples.

By far the biggest mistake made is the price angle. No one can sell a $40 reel for 15 bucks, it just can't be done.

THERE ARE companies that build up national advertising with the $40 tag on it so that local merchants can give a 'discount' but the reel was made to sell—with a profit all along the line — for $15.

The purchaser who spends his hours traipsing around town trying to find the lower price will usually wind up with the lower quality also.

In the lower price range, the $10 reel is always outsold by the $2.95 model. The $10 reel will last ten years at a cost of one dollar each year while the buyer will be lucky to get through the first season with the cheapie.

A MAJOR item in the worth of the reel is repair and parts availability. If one little washer cannot be found to replace a bad one, your reel sits in your basement to haunt you until you finally shrug and throw it out.

Many dozens of brands of reels hit the counters every year with no source of parts whatever. Usually these are the cheaper imports that are brought in by the case to help make a newspaper ad look attractive.

I have researched the repair problem and come up with a list of repair centers that will fix your reels. I must admit that, without the help of the Fisherman's Information Bureau, I would have been stymied on several brands.

ALLADIN REELS—Anderson Repairs, 4447 Kingsley-dr, Indianapolis, Ind. 46205; Martin Reels — Em-Roe Sporting Goods, 109 W. Washington, Indianapolis, Ind. 46204; Commerce Pacific—Goruki's Service, 901 24th-st, South Bend, Ind. 46615; Wright & McGill—Glenn's Repair, 1734 Searle-st, Des Moines, Iowa 50311; Johnson Reels—Johnson Reels, Inc., Johnson Park, Mankato, Minn.

TRUE TEMPER—Charles H. Bell, 30 Roosevelt-blvd, Villas, N.J. 08251; Garcia Mitchell—Akron Rod & Reel, 723 Tallkron-dr, Akron, O. 44305; Heddon Reels — Rod & Reel Service, 1012 N. Bridge-st, Chillicothe, O. 44113; Zebco Reels — Bob's Repair, 484 Arden-rd, Columbus, O. 43214; Shakespeare — H. F. Hessler, 206 S. Burgess, Columbus 43204.

PFLUEGER — Village Bait Store, 188 E. Whittier, Columbus, O. 43206; Bronson — Sportsmen's Center, 134 E. Third-st, Dayton, O. 45402; Horrocks-Ibbotson — R. I. Brisbane, 1879 Wymore-av, East Cleveland, O. 44112; Quick Reels — Angler's Hideout, 1212 Coles-blvd., Portsmouth, O. 45662; South Bend—Gross Photo Mart, 236 Huron-st, Toledo, O. 43604.

E-M—

Brandon is a centerfielder and Schmidt lettered at catcher last season.

YOUTH IS accented on the 1967 edition of the Gahanna diamond team as four sophomores are in consideration for varsity positions including pitcher candidates. Steve Scheel is a shortstop potential and Dave Evans is angling for a third base spot with Mark King and Mike Wiley expected to carry most of the pitching burden.

"We are banjo hitters," explained Day, "no long ball sluggers in the group."

DAY, WHO figures that Grove City will be the team to beat in the Mid-Eight loop this year, lists the pitching as Gahanna's biggest question mark.

"If the pitchers come through we might be able to do something," he said, "but this has to be classified as a rebuilding year."

WHITEHALL

John Peters puts his defending Metro League champions in the "dark horse" category this season to duplicate the surprise mission of last year.

WHITEHALL SHOCKED the Central District champions Franklin Heights by pulling a stop ahead of them in league action against the Golden Falcons' sharp hurler Mickey Pless.

But missing from that championship team is a couple of pretty fair hurlers in their own right . . . Jim Dildine and Harv Ender . . . and catcher Jim Bishop.

"WE ARE a good group with a lot of talent this year," said Peters, "but we are inexperienced. If we can come along experience-wise we should do all right by the middle of the season."

Returning from the championship team are four letter winners—Darrall Hicks (second base—senior), Mike Case (centerfielder, pitcher— senior) Terry Powers (third base senior) and Lee Garnon (infielder—junior).

THREE MOVE-IN prospects are expected to pick up the Whitehall fortunes as the three were letter winners at other schools last season.

Jim Potts from Tulsa (junior), Walt Beavers from Tiffin, Ohio, and Gib Johnson from Johnstown round out the Ram experience bin.

Peters sticks the "dark horse" tab on the Rams because of the three coming from out of town and a good sophomore class.

Butch Martin, Joan Dean, Jim Bishop and Ric Solt are in that highly-touted 10th grade.

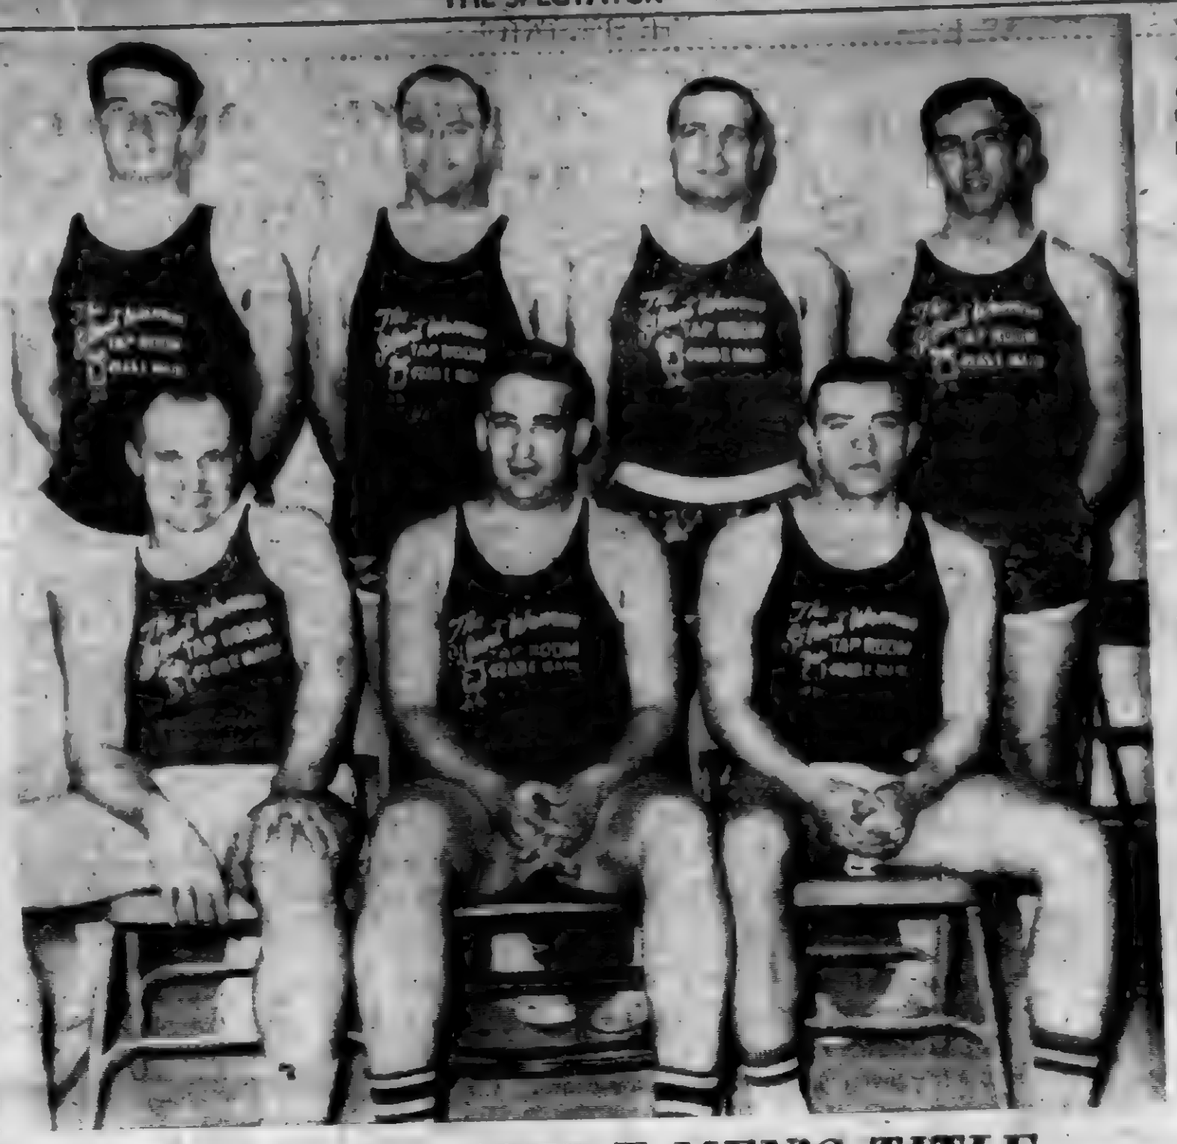
The veteran Ram coach also feels that pitching will be better depth-wise for the Rams this year.

ACADEMY

Academy's John Toffey has six vets back to enter the Franklin County League pennant race that has Shamrock green written all over it. The FCL brand name, Dublin, has 11 letter winners returning for new coach Dave Ewing.

But youth and experience is the pleasant blend for Toffey and his Vikings.

"WE ARE a young club, but an experienced one," Toffey said. "All Harris is the only senior around."



Harris is the captain and he lettered last season at third base. Steve Prout, a 6-3 pitcher last year, Mike Alexander (pitcher), Steve Southard (infield), Nat Coe (infield), and Joe Hartzler (second baseman catcher) round out the lettermen list.

TOFFEY LOOKS for Bill Martin, Dave Koebel, John Fulford, Geoff Hance, and John Alton (the latter two are freshmen) to all be battling for positions.

Academy's pitching corps and infield were left intact from '66 but lost four-year regular receiver Al Unetic (now at Naval Academy) and an all-senior outfield.

"WE HOPE for more consistent hitting this season and we should be "ok" in pitching if it goes like last season. Everything depends on if we can find adequate help at catcher and in the outfield," he added.

Toffey figures Dublin and C-W as top early favorites in FCL.

CAPTURE ADULT MEN'S TITLE

Setting the pace in the Adult Men's League of the Whitehall Recreation Dept. basketball program this past season were these members of "The Silent Women" quintet. Team members included (seated, from left): Jim Bope, Tom Mochring and Dave Borden. Standing: Jack Diamond, Jack Friedlander, Frank Gerlach and Mike Diamond. The team closed their season at 12-1.

Bob Blais Quits C-W Grid Post

Bob Blais, head football coach at Canal Winchester for the past two seasons, has resigned his grid post, C-W Superintendent Andy Miller announced this week.

Miller is currently accepting applications for the football job at the school on West-st.

Blais' single-wing form of attack never really caught on at Winchester, the Indians winning but one game and tying another in 18 outings over the two seasons.

Wolfe singled, Phil Nolan walked and Milliron and Wolfe scored on Eddie Well's single. After another Lion bobble, Synder added his second safety of the inning to drive in the eighth run.

Shade, who went five innings, got relief help from Steve Pinnick, who allowed one hit in his two-frame stint. The pair combined to fan seven Lion batsmen.

Gahanna's Steve Schneider picked up half of the Lions' four hits.

Final WBBA Signups Set This Week

Registration for the Whitehall Boys' Baseball Association will be conducted today (Wednesday) and Thursday between 7 and 9 p.m. at the Whitehall City Hall Building.

Final sign-up date will be Saturday (2 till 6 p.m.

THE WBBA program is open to all Whitehall boys between the ages of eight and 16 years.

Any eight-year-old or boy coming into the WBBA for the first time must bring his birth record to the registration.

Fee will be $5 per boy with a $10 maximum per family.

THE registration dates today, tomorrow and Saturday will be the final dates to sign up before the open player draft.

Ijams Joins E-M March On Indiana U.

For a guy who borrowed so liberally from Woody Hayes' Buckeye attack for many a season, Eastmoor coach Bob Stuart isn't exactly paying the OSU grid boss back in aces,

Another Stuart pupil—6-2 235-lb. tackle Mike Ijams — announced his plans last week to "go west" and seek his college grid fame at Indiana U.

IJAMS' MOVE to Indiana comes in the footsteps of other Warrior gridders like quarterback Frank Stavroff and lineman Ken Hollister.

Mike, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norris Ijams of 3773 Kirkwood-rd, played both offensive and defensive tackle last fall for Eastmoor's City League champions—earning All-City, All-District and All-Central Ohio honors for his performance.

Hoosier mentor Johnny Pont feels Mike will play offense at either tackle or guard at Indiana and added that the E-M gridder is one of the strongest players he has recruited this year.

The Club Doctor

By Muriel Miles

DEAR CLUB DOCTOR: How are you supposed to handle a controversial issue that pops up unexpectedly, disrupting a meeting that's been planned carefully to end on time?

CLOCKWATCHER

DEAR CLOCKWATCHER: Turn off the alarm but wake up your members.

Some of them never dreamed they were supposed to schedule a new issue with the president before sounding off at a meeting. Once they're conscious that there's better discussion with all the data and time needed to reach a decision, they'll co-operate.

Now sometimes a problem is uncovered without warning. It is too important and pressing to postpone. Though you sense pandemonium about the break loose, don't hit the panic button.

Suggest the situation be discussed informally by dividing the assembly into small groups of, perhaps, six. Each member can express her opinion in the allotted period. And her thinking is represented when the spokesmen for her group reports.

You can't stop the clock for controversial matters. Yet you can quickly and effectively give the members time to unwind.

DEAR CLUB DOCTOR: Do you not agree that if all clubs now planning luncheons would be more realistic in their timing they would have better attendance?

I went to what could have been a lovely luncheon yesterday. Obviously, the committee spent a great deal of effort preparing. But why did there have to be so many introductions, so many speeches, so many door prizes and so much entertainment? With 15 minutes less of each, no one would have been bored and we'd have been home an hour earlier.

JUST A MEMBER

DEAR MEMBER: This business of overdoing even had the ancients stewing. Like Confucius say: "To go beyond is as wrong as to fall short." But we needn't grope for the golden mean. Let's use our bean.

Sisterhood To Hear Muriel W. Bach

Muriel Wolfson Bach will present three monologues from her one-woman show "All In The Family" at the April 18 meeting of Temple Israel Sisterhood at 12:15 p.m. in the Temple social hall.

Miss Bach is currently touring the United States with the production, written by Harry Petrakis. The series of monologues is designed to demonstrate the "oneness" of women throughout the world.

Reservations for the luncheon and program may be made by calling Mrs. Gerald Altman at 882-5993. Cost is $1.

Anderson To Speak To Bexley Women

The executive board of the Bexley Woman's Club will hold its monthly meeting April 14 at 9:30 a.m. at the home of Mrs. Wesley Cooper, 2760 Powell-av.

The full club will meet April 18 at 12:30 p.m. at Jeffrey Mansion for dessert. Chairman of the program is Mrs. Paul Stehle, assisted by Mrs. L. W. Jackson.

Richard J. Anderson, assistant director of Battelle Memorial Institute, will discuss "The Promise of the Ocean."

Ohio Welfare Movement Topic Of WOSU Radio Documentary

After nine months of work and over 10 miles of magnetic tape, two WOSU Radio newsmen have put together an hour-long in-depth study of the welfare movement in Ohio.

"Profile of a Pressure Group: The Ohio Adequate Welfare Movement," which will be broadcast Sunday at 5 p.m. on WOSU both AM and FM, is the result of the research of newsman Keith D. Smith and Tom Warnock, the program's writer-director.

NEWSMAN KEITH D. SMITH (standing) and Tom Warnock are shown in WOSU radio's A-B control room with 10 miles of magnetic tape recorded interviews. Their program, "Profile of a Pressure Group: The Adequate Welfare Movement in Ohio," will be heard on WOSU at 5 p.m., April 9.

The hour-long documentary begins with the "Walk for Decent Welfare," staged last June from Cleveland to Columbus. Nearly half of the program is based on tape recorded interviews taken from WOSU's radio tape morgue — developed by Smith last summer.

"The welfare walk was a noisy and largely ineffectual ploy by welfare recipients to get higher benefits," Smith said. "But it was the beginning of what has become a highly sophisticated political pressure group," he added.

The two WOSU staff members said that this sophistication became apparent at the Ohio Adequate Welfare Assembly which was held last January in the Columbus YWCA.

"The people at the assembly were quiet and orderly when they visited the statehouse this time. It was this contrast which rounded out our program," Warnock said.

The documentary traces the evolution of the welfare movement through speeches and candid interviews with welfare recipients as well as welfare administrators like Franklin County's welfare director Thomas Brittenham.

A PRIVILEGE

Driving is a privilege, says the Columbus Auto Club, and with every privilege goes responsibility. The responsibility for careful driving is more than just a point of law. It is a moral obligation to drive with care and with high regard for the rights, privileges, and lives of others.

KEEP IN LANE

Lane lines were never intended to be "guide" lines down which the motorist should drive. Position your car in your lane so that motorists traveling in the same or opposite direction can make full use of their lane.

Board Approves 16 New Courses

Curriculum changes headed the agenda at the last Reynoldsburg Board of Education meeting. The board approved the long list of new courses to be offered at the junior and senior high schools for the 1967-68 school year.

The additional courses proposed by Principals Michael Zorich and Joseph Endry include personal typing and speedwriting, bookkeeping II, creative writing, drama, debate, safety education, earth science and a senior science seminar which will help seniors plan a research program in their scientific field of interest.

An aviation education course (one semester) will be designed to introduce the ground school phase of aviation education and related fields. Other new courses will be advanced woodworking, advanced metal working, power mechanics, graphic arts (to be offered in 1968-69,) general industrial arts III, Girls' Glee Club and Boys' Glee Club.

The amended appropriation measure for the '66-'67 school year was adopted. The total general fund of appropriations is $1,741,063.66.

Other measures approved were: a proposal from the Reynoldsburg Jaycees to install lights on the tennis courts at the high school and re-employment of teachers for next school year.

Sale—

$475,000 bid. It is expected that the Stoney Creek clubhouse will be sold to an out-of-town catering firm.

East End golfers would have a new public course within days of approval of the Stoney Creek sale. Tucker said Metropolitan Park workers are "protecting" the course at present, although they are not permitted to do actual work on the course.

"Once the sale is approved, it would take us only a short time to get the course in shape for play, depending on the weather," Tucker said.

Since the clubhouse would not be included in the sale, the board plans to take over an old barn and remodel it into a small clubhouse and starter's shack.

Tucker indicated the board's primary interest in purchasing Stoney Creek was to protect its existing property in Blacklick Woods Metropolitan Park. The 126-acre Pickerington Road golf course borders on three sides of the park.

Eastern Volunteers Collect For Planned Parenthood

Volunteer workers in the eastern area of Franklin County have collected over $11,000 in the first efforts of the 1967 fund drive for the Planned Parenthood Association. The total for the entire county was $59,126.94.

Over 130 volunteers raised the $11,500 in Bexley, Laurel Canyon, Blacklick, Gahanna, New Albany, Eastmoor, Berwick and Park Towers.

Over 400 persons worked throughout the county to raise funds and increase the public understanding of the Planned Parenthood programs.

"We are very gratified with the results so far in the campaign," commented Mrs. Robert Lazarus, chairman of the drive. "Once people are aware of the needs of the services provided by Planned Parenthood in our community, they are eager to lend their financial support. We find a growing acceptance of this effort as a basic solution to the very human problems of today," she added.

The goal for the county-wide drive is $72,000, which is a 15 percent increase over last year's.

Sixty percent of funds and patient fees support five areas of service including family planning, education, marriage and family life education, infertility services and research.

Four branch clinics and ten supply stations, all located in disadvantaged neighborhoods, served over 5,500 patients last year.

For $10, Planned Parenthood can supply a woman with a year's supply of birth control pills; $25 will provide a woman with the entire service of a physician, nurse and tests for one year, and $50 provides a neighborhood supply station with non-prescription drugs and supplies for free distribution for one month.

The total operation of a branch clinic for a month can be provided by $1,200. The city and county must pay over $2,000 a year to support an unwanted child.

The campaign will continue through the spring. Donations may be sent directly to Planned Parenthood Association, 208 E. State-st, Columbus, Ohio, 43215.

EFFORT LAUNCHED FOR 'JOBS FOR YOUTH'

CMACAO And City Join Forces

A joint effort of the city and the local Community Action Organization is expected to bring together youth and opportunity for summer jobs.

When Mayor Sensenbrenner announced Friday that his Advisory Committee was acting on the suggestion of Bert Korte of CMACAO to form a "Jobs for Youth Commission," he stated it would be tailored after a similar program tagged "Youth Power" which proved effective in Milwaukee last summer.

THE FIRST STEP in the program will be selection by the mayor of a chairman and a seven-man committee from names submitted to him by the three-year-old committee which debated the pros and cons of the idea before accepting it.

The next step involves surveying of the young people throughout the area to learn their work interests and the hours when they will be available. It is at this point that Korte believes CMACAO through its neighborhood Centers can use existing staff for the program.

Finally, after a citywide effort has been launched to enlist residents and merchants to employ youth for odd jobs on a part-time basis the CMACAO and United Community Council (the latter utilizing the 126 neighborhood councils of the area) will work together to coordinate the job with the job hunter.

ACCORDING TO Korte be learned during his experience as executive director of the Hilltop YMCA that the need in middle class neighborhoods for summer employment is as important as in poorer ones.

He indicated that keeping young people occupied and in spending money approaches the importance of allaying the destitute situation of those who are really desperate rather than merely restless.

The advisory committee regards the program as having a dual purpose.

In addition to finding summer jobs for area youth, the work of the proposed Youth Commission is expected to represent another example of Columbus' working towards community improvement.

SUCH EVIDENCE is a prerequisite to recertification of the city's "Workable Program" which blueprints Columbus' eligibility to continue to receive federal funds for highways, hospitals, urban redevelopments, schools, anti-poverty program, parks, recreation and other community facilities.

The project, hopefully, will be underway by mid-May to "get the jump" on summer employment before school is out in early June.

Your Completely New Lazarus West... this week

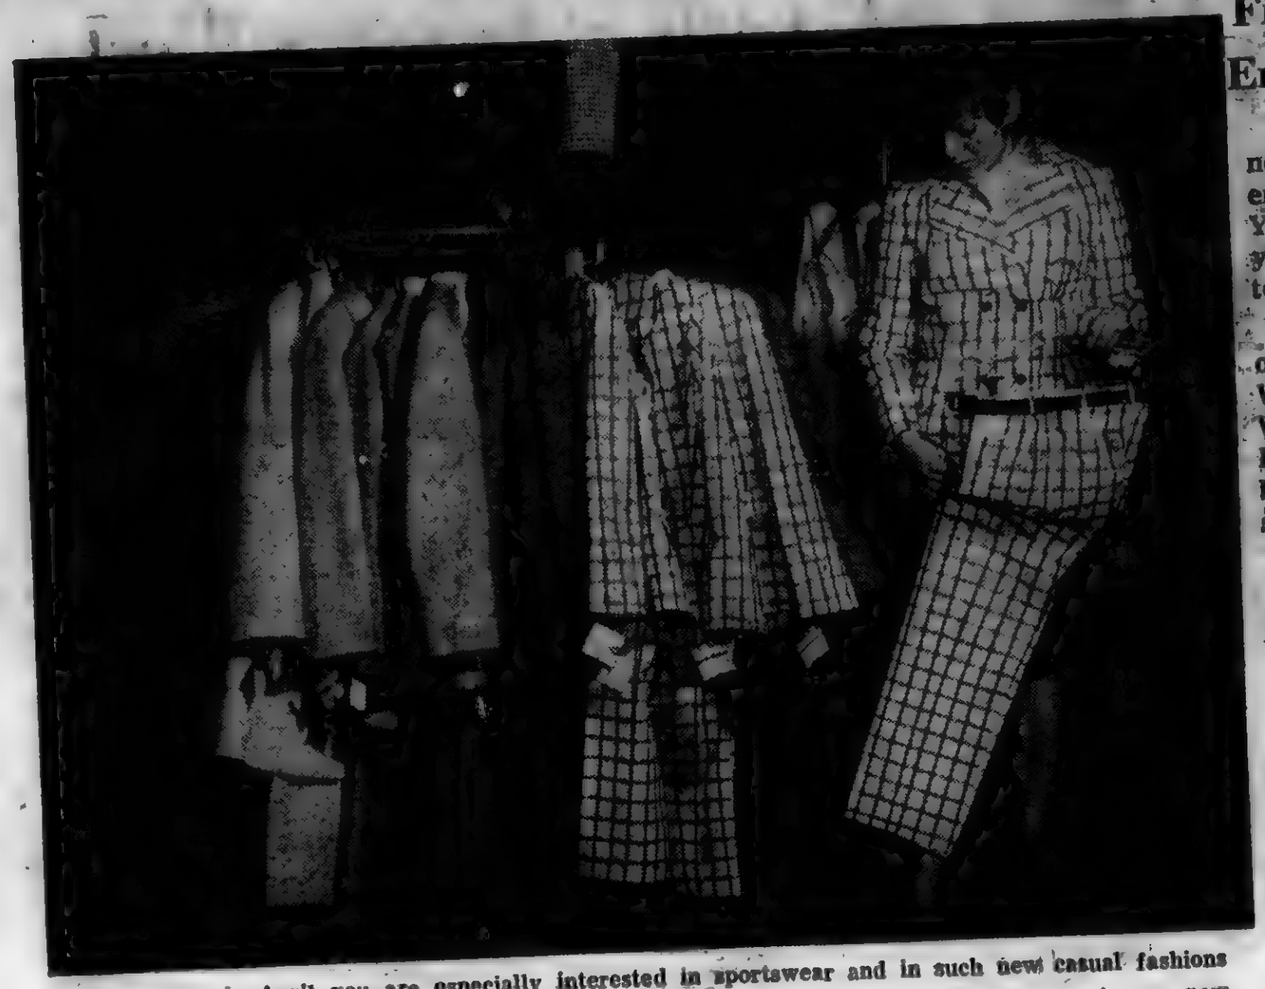
NEW SECOND LEVEL

we raised the roof and added a second level to make Lazarus West a complete department store

You may be one of the customers who suggested certain changes we have now made in our Lazarus West Store, on West Broad Street and Georgesville Road in Columbus.

First big change – we've completely separated Better and Budget Shops from Basement departments. Next, we added a great deal of fine label goods, and fashions you find in our better shops for women, misses, collegiennes, children and men throughout our downtown store.

Finally, we added a large furniture department, and greatly expanded selections of carpeting, draperies, and other home merchandise. We hope you will come see your new, complete Lazarus West department store very soon.



Except for a little finishing up that needs to be done in the completely separate New Basement Store, everything is new and ready for you now.

The surprising thing, to customers who have visited Lazarus West in the last few days, is that it looks like a completely NEW store – and it is! Doubling the size of the store gave us an opportunity to re-design every square foot of the first level, and of course the second level is entirely new.

Lazarus West hours are the same as in the past – from 11:00 A.M. to 9:00 P.M. on Monday through Friday, and from 10:00 A.M. to 9:00 P.M. on Saturdays.

There's an entirely NEW restaurant on the second level – the New England Coffee Shop. Families coming for an evening of shopping enjoy starting there, with supper. It's open all day for snacks and luncheon.

New Lazarus West Is Fashion Center

Now, in April you are especially interested in sportswear and in such new casual fashions as the Pants Suit. Come see the great new selections, in summertime casual fashions, in our new Lazarus West Shops for women, misses and Collegiennes.

First or Street Level Entirely Re-Designed

The fashion selections in our new first-level shops for women, misses, Collegiennes and Young Juniors wear the labels you like in our downtown Better and Budget Fashion Shops.

There is a new dress Salon, of fine label fashions from our Wedgwood Room, and Miss Wedgwood Shop. There are Furs nearby, fine hats, handbags and other fashion accessories.

Candy Department On 1st Level

We've added a complete section of famous Russell Stover Candy—boxed and bulk chocolates — to our popular Candy Department.

You'll also want the kitchen fresh chocolates made in our own kitchen, and our assorted nuts and hard candies.

Entirely New Men's Department

You will see a particularly complete new Men's Clothing department, Men's Sports Clothing Department, and Men's Shoe Department as well as Dress and Sports Furnishings departments.

We've expanded the University Shop selections for young men and we've added a Town Club corner.

The labels you've liked in our Better Men's Shops downtown are now at Lazarus West.

Then new shoe fashions are great, snubby-toes, little heels, shiny leathers, unusual colors — especially in the renowned Lazarus brands featured in our new Lazarus West shoe shop, first level.

The major expansions, in men's wear at Lazarus West are in Men's Clothing and Men's Sports Clothing. Really complete selections in new colorings and stylings make Lazarus West a style center for men.

At Lazarus West, there are great new shops for the new fashions in blouses, in handbags, in jewelry, and for the colorful new trends in lingerie and foundation garmets. Our first level at Lazarus West made wonderful use of the space opened up by the departments that moved up to the second level—you'll have the pleasure of choosing in a new store and the confidence of choosing in a Lazarus store.

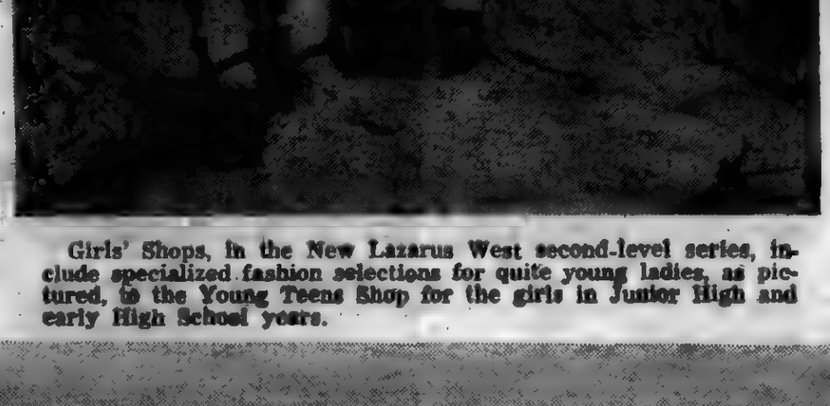
Lazarus good shoe brands, for boys and girls, such as Stride Rite and Foot-Trainer, and the kind of excellent fitting service you've always liked in our sixth floor department downtown are features of the new second level department at Lazarus West. It's here that you'll find Danskin leotards, and other ballet needs such as shoes, too.

New Shops for Boys and Girls at Lazarus West

The fashion assortments, in the new series of Second Level Shops at Lazarus West, are like those you see in our Sixth Floor shops downtown.

There are specialized sections for all ages, from infants through young teens, and a nice new shoe shop for boys and girls is included on the new second level.

These are very pretty shops; we designed them so they would be a pleasure for you to see as well as a pleasure to shop in.



Boys' Shop, in the New Lazarus West second-level series, include specialized assortments for young boys, such as the customer pictured above, to the new Student Shop for boys of High School age. In-Gear styles all the way!

Separate Basement Shops for Men, Women and Children

The Basement departments, for boys' and girls' apparel, accessories and shoes, are in the new Lazarus West Basement Store which is adjacent to the North entrance.

Toys, books and records are in a new location on the First or Street Level of your completely new Lazarus West.

Girls' Shops, in the New Lazarus West second-level series, include specialized fashion selections for quite young ladies, as pictured, to the Young Teens Shop for the girls in Junior High and early High School years.

Rhodes Theories To Be Tested May 2

By WALTER TAYLOR
Spectator Staff Writer

The outcome of the May 2 primary election may determine just how big and how far Ohioans are prepared to let Governor Rhodes' financial theories go.

A proposed amendment to the Ohio Constitution, which, according to a taxation research bulletin released by the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, is designed to carry the Rhodes Administration toward "total capital planning and development," calls for a transfer of borrowing control from the voters to the General Assembly and a new Ohio Bond Commission.

OBC will be granted "broad authority to systematically plan and regularly borrow" for a wide variety of state and local capital improvements, the bulletin says.

The commission is to be a bi-partisan body of five members appointed by the governor and confirmed by the Senate for staggered terms ultimately of nine years.

If established, it will borrow money and issue bonds or other obligations with the faith and credit of the state pledged by the General Assembly for repayment and interest. Debt costs would be payable from legislatively prescribed excise taxes, fees, charges and license taxes of the state (General Revenue Fund).

The constitutional debt limitation currently requires a vote of the electorate to incur state debt beyond $750,000. Present state debt is $671 million, with another $625 million already approved by the voters but yet unused.

Under the proposed amendment, state-guaranteed debt could be increased or decreased periodically by the General Assembly, acting with the Commission.

The OCC report goes on to list projects which the OBC might undertake. It includes the construction or improvement of a wide variety of state and other governmental offices, centers and institutions; initiation of transportation programs which include the construction of roads, bridges, airports, tunnels, locks, docks, wharves and other port developments; the undertaking of conservation projects such as parks, reservoirs, pollution-control centers and recreational facilities and the development of mass public housing and urban-renewal projects.

According to the OCC, a "yes" vote on the amendment would mean, to those favoring the bill:

- Orderly and continuous capital planning and budgeting.
- Comprehensive development of facilities and highways under planned priorities.
- Availability of funds "on time" to catch up with and stay abreast of dire capital needs.
- Facing the fast that present state borrowing power of $625 millions is already assigned to needed capital improvements and highways and is woefully insufficient for existing as well as future needs.

But, the OCC bulletin says, to those opposing the bill, a "yes" vote will mean:

- Loss of direct voter control over state debt creation.
- No realistic possibility of future "pay-as-you-go" capital financing.
- Saddling the state with heavy interest costs on massive borrowing up to 40 years' duration.
- Inadequate new debt controls based on an expanding General Revenue Fund and expansion of highway user taxes, coupled with unlimited user-charge debt financing.
- Loss of legislative perrogatives through constitutional delegations and exercise of executive power in the Commission.
- Inability to significantly restrict the Commission once the constitutional delegations are approved and contractual relationships with the bond holders established.
- Lack of confidence in Ohio voters who have approved every state bond issue in recent years and have authorized the state to still borrow $625 million beyond present state debt of $671 million.

Columbus, Whitehall Battle Over Baby

SENSENBRENNER

If full-scale war breaks out between Columbus and Whitehall, you can blame one-week-old Julie Ann Haytcher.

Julie Ann was born to Whitehall Mayor and Mrs. Paul Haytcher a week ago Tuesday and her birth has touched off a friendly battle between Haytcher and his Columbus counterpart, Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner.

The Columbus chief executive fired the first volley when he wrote Haytcher congratulating Julie Ann as "Columbus' newest citizen." The mayor included an "unfolded, suitable for framing certificate of welcome, welcoming your daughter to this great All-American City of Columbus."

But Haytcher wasn't about to give his daughter up to Columbus without a fight.

"I regret I must take issue with you," Haytcher wrote to Sensenbrenner, "but my little girl belongs to Whitehall.

"I will not yield one strand of her hair, let alone her citizenship, to Columbus," Haytcher said. "You can claim the water, the sewers and the annexations, but not my daughter. She belongs to Whitehall."

Haytcher added a postscript, inviting Sensenbrenner to lunch and "to look at our facilities, our services and our new parks."

Columbus' mayor has yet to reply to that invitation.

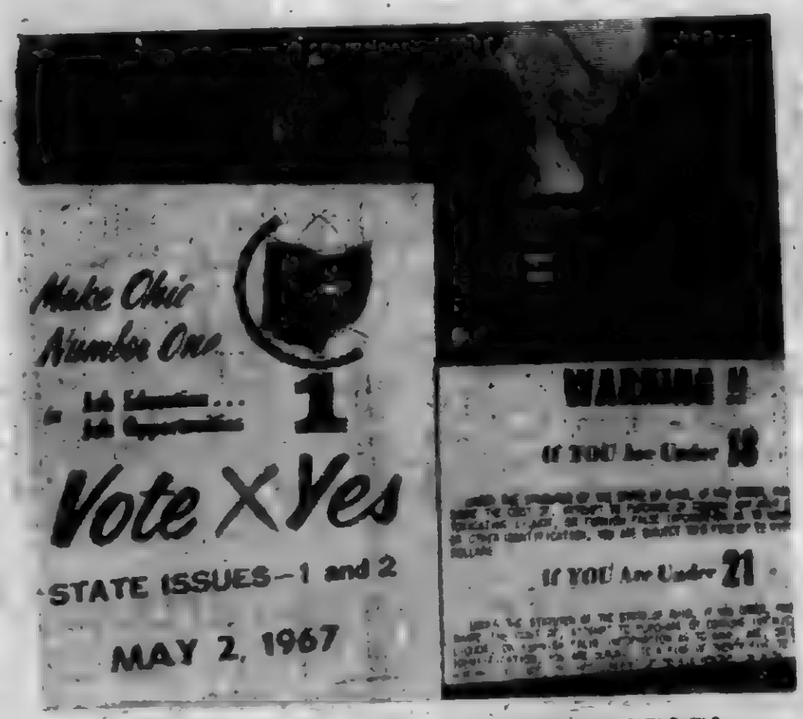
HAYTCHER

$3874 Raised In Whitehall And Bexley

Bexley and Whitehall residents contributed a total of $3874.70 to the recently-completed house-to-house Heart Sunday solicitation.

Total for Franklin County was $63,193, an increase of $10,402 over the 1966 figure.

In Bexley, canvassers under the chairmanship of Mrs. Raymond Bethel, 3177 Dale-av, raised $2,895.70 as against $2,584.60. Assisting Mrs. Bethel were Mrs. Robert Stephenson, 2581 Carolina-av; Mrs. Douglas Kile, 2549 Brentwood-rd and Mrs. Frank L. Miller, 1040 Chelsea-av.



In Whitehall, canvassers raised $979. Chaimen were Mrs. Perry Fisher, 4129 Elbern-av; Mrs. Harry McInnis, 4204 Mayflower-bl; Mrs. John Perez, 4357 Lafayette-ct and Mrs. David Drumm, 1266 Dellwood-av.

Money Collected For Heart Fund

Volunteers from the Reynoldsburg area collected $1,424 during the house to house Heart Sunday solicitation which was held Feb. 26 according to the Franklin County Heart Association.

The total for the entire county was $63,193, an increase of $10,402 over last year. Last year's collections from the Reynoldsburg area totaled $1,099.

Heart Sunday chairman for Reynoldsburg was Mrs. James D. Ritchie, 6638 Balsam-dr while Mrs. Sol Morton Issac, 222 Ashbourne-rd, and Mrs. Jack E. Billman, 1938 Concord-rd, were co-chairmen for Franklin County.

TALK ABOUT CURE-ALL'S!

Booze and politics mix when the Rhodes Administration is pushing for passage of its pet issues. This sign is posted in liquor stores around the state, promoting the Ohio Bond Commission and legislative reapportionment amendments. Liquor Control Department spokesman said the advertising was permitted in state stores because it is "non-partisan." Asked if they would give equal time to opponents, a spokesman said, "Well, we'd have to look at it pretty close. Those people tend to get pretty partisan, you know." But he said if "fair, factual" opposition was presented, "We'd probably have to permit it."

Raises Studied For Employes In Whitehall

Whitehall municipal employes will be in line for pay raises ranging from $15 to $20 a month if council's finance committee approves a recommendation now under study.

Mayor Paul Haytcher asked council to approve increases of $20 per month for workers in classes 21-30 and of $15 a month in all other classes.

Haytcher also asked that the city take on the entire expense of employes' hospitalization policies. If approved, the city would pay an additional $12 a month for each policy.

The entire package would cost an estimated $30,324 annually. City Auditor Walter Weber had advised Haytcher that approximately $30,000 was available to be used for salary and benefit increases.

Gahanna, Worthington, W-R Will Host Cinder 'Specials'

By JACK WITTENMEIER
Spectator Sports Editor

Two of the '67 cinder season's top early "plums" will be plucked this weekend as Worthington and Gahanna host Relay Invitationals.

Ed Rayer's Lions kick off the weekend activity Friday evening at 5:30 by rolling out the red carpet for 13 thin squads who will vie with Gahanna for the tenth annual Relay title.

ON HAND to challenge the hosts (who topped Delaware, 52-30, for honors last year) will be: Delaware, DeSales, Bexley, Reynoldsburg, Grandview, Whitehall, Mifflin, Westerville, Franklin Heights, Groveport, Pleasant View, Utica and London.

Only "new" face will be Pleasant View, who replaces Carroll in the Relays lineup this spring.

Host Gahanna figures to be the early favorite to repeat as Relay champion although Delaware, Grandview and Whitehall figure to give the Lions plenty of competition.

ALL RUNNING events will be relays.

Team trophies will be awarded to first and second place finishers while first place individuals will also pick up trophies.

Silver and bronze medals will be presented to second and third place individuals respectively while fourth and fifth place finishers will receive ribbons.

HERE IS THE schedule of events (all running events are finals): 5:30 p.m. — all field events (pole vault bar set at eight foot, high jump bar set at four foot, eight inches, broad jump, shot put and discus); 6 p.m. — four mile; 6:45 — flag raising, introduction of queens; 7 p.m. — shuttle hurdles (120-120-120-120); 7:15 — 440 (110 each); 7:30 — distance medley (880-220-440-mile); 7:45 — mile relay; 8 p.m. — sprint medley; 8:15 — two mile; 8:30 — 880; 8:40 p.m. — presentation of awards.

Here are the Gahanna Relays existing records: 880 R — Bexley (Davis, Shultz, Williams, Weber) 1:33.2; '66; POLE VAULT — Whitehall (Neufzling, Densham, Beery) 14 ft., '61; TWO MILE R. — Gahanna (Horn, Price, Strickling, Hanninger) 8:26.8, '66 SHOT PUT — Gahanna (Shaffer, Seely, Mathews) 142' 4", '62; 440 R. — Bexley (Shultz, Davis, Williams, Weber) :44.8, '66; DISCUS — Hilliard (Miller, Adams, McCaskey) 415' 3". '65; FOUR MILE R. — Grandview (Gatsch, Walker, Watson, McIntyre) 19:08.5, '66; SHUTTLE HURDLES — Gahanna (Baker, Bosse, Doran, Bokros) :57 flat, '66; LONG JUMP — Eastmoor (Smith, Eiland, Fleming) 61' 8½", '64; DISTANCE MEDLEY — Delaware (Arnold, Ericson, Stephans, Paulins) 8:00, '66; HIGH JUMP — Gahanna (Bossee, Bokros, Marsch) 17' 8", '66; MILE R. — Gahanna (Pullen, Steele, Bokros, Doran) 3:29.6, '66; SPRINT MEDLEY — Westerville (O'Brien, Williams, Thomas, McCalla) 1:37.4, '64 and Delaware (Baxter, Evans, Stephans, Ericson), '66.

WORTHINGTON coach Les Eisenhart, his Cardinal cindermen and the remaining field for Saturday's Worthington Relays hope for better weather than that downpour which dampened the '66 running.

The seven Cardinal foes also hope their hosts don't enjoy the same success either as Worthington picked off its 18th victory in 19 Relay tries last spring.

The Cards had a willing competitor in Hilliard last year, however — Worthington besting the runnerup Wildcats by a slim 57 to 51⅓ margin.

THOSE SAME Wildcats will be back Saturday — along with Walnut Ridge, Whetstone, West, Whitehall, North and Ashland — to try and whittle down their hosts dominance of the event.

Like the Gahanna event, Worthington will host an all-Relay show with one exception — the two mile run.

The opening action is scheduled for 1:30 p.m.

HERE ARE the existing Worthington Relay records: TWO MILE — Titus (Worthington), 10:05.4, '66; FOUR MILE R. — Gahanna, 19:09.8, '65; 440 R. — Brookhaven, :44.7, '65; DISTANCE MEDLEY — Whetstone, 11:17.5, '66; SHUTTLE HURDLES — Brookhaven, :57.5, '65; MILE R. — Whetstone, 3:27.8, '65; MEDLEY RELAY — Brookhaven, 3:47, '66; SPRINT MEDLEY — Hilliard, 1:36.8, '66; TWO MILE R. — Worthington, 8:21.4, '65; 880 R. — Hilliard, 1:31.8, '66 (also Brookhaven quartet in '65); SHOT PUT — Gahanna, 144' 2¾", '63; LONG JUMP — Whitehall, 64' 7½", '62; HIGH JUMP — Worthington, 17' 5", '64 and '65; DISCUS — Hilliard, 464' 6", '66; POLE VAULT — Worthington, 35', '65; 440 R. (jr. high) — Dominion, :47.8, '65; 880 R. (jr. high) — Dominion, 1:39.7, '65.

ALTHOUGH the specials at Gahanna and Worthington are the only big cinder events scheduled locally, area strong boys like Arlington, Central, Eastmoor and East will be out to improve Central District prestige at two more big Relay shows.

Lee Williams' East Tigers and Vince Cahill's E-M Warriors try their collective hands at the big Mansfield Relays Saturday morning.

Meanwhile, Dick Larkin's UA Golden Bears lead the area charge on the Newark Relays the same day — with City League members Central, Brookhaven and Linden accompanying the Bears.

ARLINGTON, which recorded an unbeaten cinder campaign last spring and appears on its way to duplicating that feat this year, will be defending champion at Newark.

UA outclassed runnerup Newark, 60¼ to 36, to nab Relay honors in '66.

Also on the agenda in a busy thin week is Walnut Ridge's Invitational Relays Tuesday.

SOUTH'S Bulldogs captured honors last spring in the inaugural of the Scottie event.

HAWKS HOST CHAMPS TUESDAY

Hartley's Hawks get the first "shot" at defending Central Catholic League baseball champion Watterson this spring as Jack Ryan's crew plays host to the Eagles in the CCL opener for both Tuesday. Hartley will be pinning its flag hopes this spring on a depth-rich pitching corps (above) and one of the loop's top receivers. Kneeling (from left) are pitcher Bill McCoy and catcher Chuck Drake. Standing: hurlers Chuck Masterson, Mike Shaeffer and Joe Whitlatch. The bulk of the Hawks' hitting punch will come from the bats of Ryan's remaining '67 starters (below). Kneeling (from left) are: Joe Eichenlaub, Dan Moore, John Jenkins and Tim Griffin. Standing: John Derrer, Mike Cunningham, Chris Vollman and Chuck Reiser.

Comment And Criticism

editorials . . .

One Rotten Apple

At 8:10 p.m. March 11, James Capparuccini, 33, proprietor of the Town Grocery, 1272 W. Town St. was shot and killed during an armed robbery.

The license number of the suspect's car was reported to police and an all points bulletin went out over police radio. Shortly thereafter the suspect was arrested by State Highway Patrolman W. B. Keltner near Delaware. The suspect has been charged with first degree murder and bound to the grand jury.

At 8:55 p.m. March 18, Russe'l Farber, operator of Jim's Carry Out, 2349 Hamilton Ave. was shot and killed during a holdup by two men.

Columbus Detectives Danny Miles and Emerson Werner developed information leading to the arrest March 27 of the two gunmen and a third man suspected as driver of the getaway car. All have been charged with first degree murder.

At 9:10 a.m. April 5, the Hilltop Jewelers, 2421 W. Broad St. was robbed by a lone gunman. Four minutes later he was arrested fleeing the area by Columbus Police Officers F. A. Phillips and R. Dunn.

At 10:20 a.m. April 5, the Scioto Savings and Loan Association, 190 S. High St., was held up by a gunman who fled with $2000. Within 30 minutes he was apprehended by Police Officers Sergeant W. Gannon, J. Miles and C. Hoffman. An accomplice was arrested later in West Virgina.

On April 2 police were tipped off by an informant that a fellow officer might be contemplating a crime. A careful stake-out at the rear of a car wash at 3240 E. Broad St. in the early morning hours of April 4 revealed a police officer under suspicious circumstances. Within hours his resignation was on the desk of Police Chief Robert Baus.

Unfortunately, that's the one case the public will remember.

"I, A Censor"

It has been a refreshing spell since Columbus' last spate of book burning and Red hunting.

But they are back at it again.

Latest evidence that evil is in the eye of the beholder was the seizure of the film, "I, A Woman" which had been playing at the World theater and is still running at the Bexley.

The Columbus Motion Picture Review Board, whoever they are, viewed the picture, were quoted as not being able to find a "story" in it and therefore labeled it "a celluloid chronicle of sin and sex."

A number of courts have ruled the movie is not obscene and this review concurs. It might be a little rich for the movie review board and it is certainly not proper fare for the freshmen who sit down front and giggle. But it is a tastefully done movie with a highly adult message.

And if the members of the movie review board had not been so busy ogling they just might have gotten it.

Salute To The Library

For the 10th consecutive year, the Columbus Public Library will join libraries throughout the nation to celebrate National Library Week April 16-22.

The American Library Association dedicates the week each year to "a better-informed, better-read America" and we can't think of a better reason to salute Columbus' well-stocked and well-run library system.

Perhaps tolerance would be a little easier to achieve, bigotry and ignorance a little more easily destroyed if everyone would pause to take advantage of library facilities.

Siren Song

By ROBERT BURDOCK

BURDOCK

Governor Rhodes' siren song of progress, promises and propaganda is an insult to and an assault on the eardrums of Ohio voters.

In his frenetic zeal to get voters to give up their constitutional right to control state debt, he is traipsing around the state strewing multi-million dollar promises around like Johnny Appleseed.

But all the grandiose promises have a hooker. First, Ohioans have to give up their right to vote by endorsing the Ohio Bond Commission proposal on May 2.

Rhodes has already made a mockery of the proposed commission. It was supposed to plan long range capital improvements throughout the state. In the wake of Rhodes' commitments, already past the billion dollar mark, the commission would have little to do except rubber stamp the governor's promise.

Nowhere as he bus stops throughout the state does the governor mention who is going to pay for all his grand schemes. Rhodes has already hoodwinked voters into approving more than a billion dollars in bonded debt with more than $600 million of that still unspent. But he has yet to come up with a single proposal to help pay off that debt.

Instead, he now asks for a blank check to be drawn against future generations of Ohio taxpayers.

The current sessions of the Ohio legislature has come virtually to a halt in any serious consideration of state programs until the May 2 election resolves the bond commission proposal.

Then will come a rash of fee increases, liquor price hikes, sales taxes on everything from haircuts to dental bills, and some nice fat tax reductions for those business groups that so obediently helped Rhodes lead the public down the primrose path.

The day is rapidly drawing closer when Rhodes' siren song of progress, promises and propaganda will be orchestrated into an unholy threnody for Ohio taxpayers.

Heartfelt Thanks

To the Editor:

The 1967 March of Dimes campaign is now behind us and we are delighted to report that the total of $95,306 exceeded the 1966 figure by $4,500.

Without your wonderful cooperation and support in telling the residents of Franklin County about the work of The National Foundation, we could never conduct a successful campaign.

We are indeed grateful to you personally and to Spectator Newspapers for all your help and assistance.

Ralph G. Negri

Hats Off

To The Editor:

As you know, Ohio was recently named the No. 1 Industrial Development State in the nation by the Society of Industrial Realtors. Much of the credit for this great honor should go to local organizations, who work hard to bring jobs to Ohioans.

Your local Chamber of Commerce is an excellent example of such an organization.

I'm very happy to congratulate the Chambers of Commerce in Ohio for their efforts through the past year and to commend the individual members for their personal and financial support they gave to their Chamber.

leo Krennert ★ A Californian Looks At Rhodes—I ★

(Editor's Note: Leo Bennert is Washington correspondent for California's McClatchy Newspapers group. He studied Gov. James A. Rhodes in an attempt to make comparisons with California Gov. Ronald Reagan).

After four years of budget slashing and "fiscal stability," the administration of Gov. James A. Rhodes faces staggering challenges to catch up in education, welfare and mental health — plus the unavoidable prospect of a substantial tax increase.

Four years ago, Rhodes presented a budget for "the taxpayers of Ohio" with a promise of "no new taxes." He slashed appropriations by nearly 10 percent, laid off 5,000 state workers and proclaimed an era of "rigid economies."

Earlier this month, the Republican governor virtually conceded his policies left something to be desired and Ohio would have to take a new turn.

"We are at a time when there is statewide demand for more services," he declared in something of an understatement.

"Our people want better schools, safer highways, pure water and air and assurance that the less fortunate are being cared for."

Significantly, this time there was no pledge of holding the line on taxes.

Rhodes' critics maintain that at best his policies have postponed the inevitable day of reckoning when Ohio will have to rejoin the 20th century and, at worst, have so decimated state services it may take a generation to get them back on the track.

Reactions to reports that California may follow Rhodes' example range from disbelief to dismay.

"If you want to be 37th in education, 49th in mental health and 42nd in public welfare, just follow the Rhodes plan," said State Sen. Charles J. Carney, D-Youngstown.

Ohio's finance director, Richard L. Krabach, journeyed to Sacramento at Gov. Reagan's invitation to explain the Rhodes way of doing things. Krabach assured California officials that Rhodes' cutbacks did not eliminate any vital services, but many Ohioans paint a quite different picture.

They blame Rhodes for holding back what were already far from adequate state programs and for failing to provide sufficient opportunities for the young and needy. And Democratic leaders are by no means the only Ohioans to voice such criticism. It is also expressed by educators, professional groups and some segments of what until recently was a generally uncritical press.

Not only does Rhodes admittedly face a big gap in state services, there also is considerable evidence it has fallen short of its 1963 "no new taxes" pledge.

To balance the budget, Rhodes has relied heavily on borrowing in a state historically committed to "pay-as-you-go" financing. Under Rhodes, Ohio's bonded debt has more than tripled.

Some members of the Statehouse press corps have developed a facetious theory about Krabach's new role as adviser to Reagan.

"We figured out that Krabach is really acting as a double agent when he goes to Sacramento," said one reporter. "He's narrowing the gap between California and Ohio by pulling you down."

"That's cheaper than having to increase the budget and raise taxes in Ohio."

barry goldwater ★ Coercion, Control, Confusion ★

GOLDWATER

It is a sad curiosity of history and politics that the only major U.S. city to retain a rent control law—years after the excuse for such laws has vanished—is New York.

Curious, because New York's mayor comes from a Republican background although he ran without a party label.

Sad, that anyone with even a cell of Republican blood in his veins should tolerate, much less support and seem to want to extend the heavy-handed control of bureaucrats over affairs that should be the free concern of free men and women.

Under Mayor John Lindsay's administration the admittedly back-breaking problems of New York City were inching nearer than ever to civic bankruptcy. This also sums up the bankruptcy of any supposedly Republican administration that must turn to the typically Democrat formula of coercion, control and confusion to bail itself out. It never works, at least not in the long run.

One result is that the so-called Republican administration ends up merging into a one-party reflection of the opposition. The reason for its existence becomes simply to gain power, not to stand for something. Instead of politics, we end up with medieval court struggling and mere factional fighting.

This may satisfy men to whom principles are secondary. It will not, however, satisfy a system in which individual freedom is primary.

The second result is the practical one that collectivist, control-centered, bureaucratic answers are no answers at all. They do not breed accomplishment, but more red tape and, if let go indefinitely, chains.

Mayor Lindsay's support of rent controls provides a striking example. The original reason for such controls was the sharp housing shortage of World War II. Amid the clamor of a massive war, all, in effect, were conscripted into service.

To say that there is a critical housing shortage in New York now is to ignore the even more dramatic fact of Mayor Lindsay's administration. New York is losing business and residents (particularly in the middle class) at a rate that is making a mockery of the Lindsay pledge to turn Manhattan into Fun City.

There is nothing funny about the city or its problems. Nor is there anything funny about trying to solve those problems by clinging to an out-dated system of controls.

Those controlist, lest anyone get the idea that they are wholly "humanitarian" in intent or effect, are nothing less than a city subsidy to people who are fortunate enough to have been renting some piece of property for a long time. It means that people who might want to compete for those units simply don't have a chance.

Rent control has meant that controlled housing has become deteriorating housing. In the past five years, the mayor's own statistics show, housing that is classified as deteriorating has risen from 15 to 23 per cent of all controlled housing.

Other Republican politicians in New York State have remained oddly noncommittal in regard to Mayor Lindsay's heavy-handed use of the sort of economic controls usually associated with Democrats. They should end their silence before Lindsay ends all of the "fun" of his city.

william s. white ★ An Act Of Gallantry ★

WHITE

The cat has been truly set among the pigeons by the conversion of Sen. Edward Brooke of Massachusetts to the bi-partisan policy of firmness in Vietnam. The feathers of doves who were his erstwhile soft-line colleagues are not merely ruffled; they are standing straight up in frustration and rage.

The private courage and public honor demonstrated by this first Negro Senator since Reconstruction in openly changing his mind after a trip to Vietnam and thus dropping the soft line has earned him the respect and gratitude of a great majority in both parties in Congress. But he has become a bad fellow, indeed almost a traitor, to the little band of peaceniks who had thought they had captured him and the even more important symbol of his race.

For he broke the mold in more ways than one. Not only did he stand before the country and say he had been wrong and that, by implication, his former associates had been wrong, too, in seeking an end to American bombing action with nothing asked in return from the Communist invaders from North Vietnam. He also took the trouble to go out to Vietnam and see for himself.

Never in memory, in fact, has a single act by a freshmen Senator had such profound effects as has Brooke's simple act of intellectual gallantry. For one thing, he has largely broken the long attempt of extremist Negro leaders to force a halt to American military resistance in Vietnam on the false argument that this effort to rescue a dark-skinned people in Southeast Asia was somehow hostile or harmful to the Negro civil rights movement at home.

But he has done much more. He has narrowed the already thin field of real Republican doves to the point where at most two, and probably one, may be said to remain in the United States Senate. Sen. Mark Hatfield of Oregon, a Republican protege of the embittered Democratic Sen. Wayne Morse, remains fully within the dove cote. Sen. Charles Percy of Illinois, however, is already slowly moving away from it, if he is not actually already out of it.

In the purely human sense, the story of Edward Brooke's advance into a position of responsible leadership within his own party is moving in itself. For the Senate seat which he has held so briefly as a member of a newly-emergent Negro race was long held before him by one of the last patricians of the old New England, Sen. Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts, and Brooke has now taken up exactly the position on Vietnam for which his predecessor had quietly fought.

It is very easy now to see why Leverett Saltonstall so strongly supported Edward Brooke to be his successor. The easy way for Brooke would surely have been either to continue to insist that he was right about Vietnam or, at minimum, simply slowly to allow his stance in the matter to become obscure while he talked of other things.

Instead, he chose the hard way. He will suffer for it among the peaceniks, who now shrilly condemn him for daring to back a hard but necessary war and who ceaselessly clamor for "the right to dissent" but rarely extend that right to their adversaries. All the same, he has demonstrated how sound was the instinct of Leverett Saltonstall, and of the people of Massachusetts generally, in sending him here to the Senate.

Curtain Call

Edited By Claudia Elkins

'Deadlier Than Male' Is Cleverly Written

Town and Country and Great Western Cinemas are currently offering the movie-going public a cleverly written spy film "Deadlier Than The Male."

"Deadlier" is probably not the first film nor the last that will go down in history as tagging along on a successful innovation. This being the spy-film with sparsely clad females, clever and oft times unbelievable weapons and obvious plots.

This current offering is all the above except that the plot is more imaginative and developed with at least some intrigue and suspense.

Elke Sommer and Sylvia Kosina portray two vicious killers who are charmingly female. Their task is to kill corporate heads to negotiate the stock market.

All is going well with a bombing of an airplane owned and operated by Keller Oil and the throwing off of a ledge a paralyzed man, when the hero portrayed by Richard Johnson becomes involved. Finally after several more murders he discovers the remarkable plot devised by a man who heads an all-female organization of assassinators.

The film is better than average considering Matt Helm and his fiasco at spying.

For the adult this film is designed to entertain and that's what happens, if the consideration is given "that it only happens in the movies."

This cliche seems to be the reasoning for producing and for attending not only this spy film but others of the like.

Summer Change In Store, Otterbein Director Says

According to Director of Theater at Otterbein College, Charles Dodrill, Westerville and Columbus is in for a change of pace this summer when Otterbein's summer theater goes into action on June 27.

Speaking of Village Little Theater members and guests, Dr. Dodrill was enthusiastic, but still having many problems to solve concerning production.

There will be five productions running a five week peroid. Each play will open on Tuesday and run through Saturday.

Dodrill will direct three productions with the remaining two to be directed by guest directors.

A reasonable assurance was given that "Fantastics" will be scheduled. Other plays, directors and full information will be announced officially as soon as details are worked out.

The arena style theater to be used is air-conditioned with a seating capacity of 300.

The actors will be 50 percent Otterbein College students with the remaining 50 percent open to college students throughout the United States. Students will receive academic credit from Otterbein, and some high school students will participate.

A new and fresh idea presents an opportunity to see more theater and certainly will be an academic asset to the community.

Surfers Search For Wave In Movie 'Endless Summer'

University Cinema is now showing an unusual, but pleasing movie appropriately titled "The Endless Summer."

Appropriate is that two male surfers seek through a trip around the world, which entails following the summer season, a perfect surfing location.

Perfect could mean to be covered by a wave while still on the surf board or to remain in the curl or to ride a wave out.

California, Hawaii, Africa, Nigeria, South Africa and Australia were the primary countries visited although nothing was thought of traveling 50, 100 or thousands of miles in search of the ultimate, the perfect wave.

This wave was found at Cape St. Frances. To ride this wave would mean to be on, above, or even under as it lasted longer than the film shortage so adequately described by the narrator.

Other than this there is no plot. This film is a remarkable documentary about surfing.

Bruce Brown, photographer, producer and narrator, has shattered the image that to entertain there must be a love story, spy-involvement and or gimmicks.

There just isn't any. This is a story of a devoted love of the thrilling, exciting and sometimes dangerous sport of surfing.

Many statistics regarding water temperature, air temperature and wind are given at each location with a degree of humor added for spice regarding incidents that occur while traveling.

The photography is accurately fresh and appealing. The scenic shots are worth the attention given by the photographer as this makes the film a lot more than just a water trip around the world.

This movie has the makings for setting a precedent in the film-making business. Wholesome, educational and entertaining are three very good reasons for seeing this one.

Time was that a fishing rod meant a sturdy willow stem with just the right droop to it. It went well with a matched set of kite string and cork float.

TODAY, THE rod is much more important to a successful fisherman than ever before. The reel is — in effect — just the loft where we store the hay. The equipment to propel it where it ought to be is what takes the shopping.

just last night, I was asked to inspect a fellow newsman's new rig he had purchased through the mail at a 40 percent discount. I held my breath while he got it out of the car.

I knew this man, of all people, should have discussed the purchase beforehand because he had never fished in his life.

When he arrived with the rod-reel-line-lures deal, I was totally unprepared for what he had.

IT WAS a fine Heddon fly rod and an HCH line. Of all the things for a beginner to start with, this should have been the last. He had no idea that he couldn't troll or bait fish with the gear he had put over $25 into. He thought it was what everyone used.

When I told him it was an outfit for experts, he was speechless. Please, talk to fellow fishermen or a tackle dealer before investing and avoid such pitfalls.

IN BUYING a rod, try to match it up with the reel by putting the two together and practice casting with them. Is the rod too heavy or light? Does the tip action suit your swing? After the discount is taken off is it still a good deal on today's market?

These important answers can only be obtained by actually seeing and feeling the merchandise.

There are rods on the market today that retail as cheaply as 75 cents. They are fine for a child to start off using. They look like fine glass but if they are left on the hot hood of a car they wilt like a a noodle.

THERE ARE good solid glass rods to be had for less than ten dollars that will last a long time.

The best construction is hollow fiber glass. It has the best action when new and retains its limberness for many years. The hollow rod must be handled more carefully. It has a tendency to get slammed in trunk lids.

When that happens, you might just as well pitch it out. Very few manufacturers keep spare sections on hand and when they do, the price is nearly as much as a new rod.

A CASTING rod should be no longer than 5 to 5½ feet long. A spinning rod should be six to seven feet long. A fly rod should be from 7½ to 8½ feet in length.

To make your rods last years longer, give them a dry, cool storage place. Don't just lean them against the wall.

In the spring, get them out and re-wrap torn wrappings and varnish the whole shaft with good rod varnish. Check the guides and replace any that are worn before they cut your line when that first big whopper hits.

TREAT THEM right and you will have a friend for life.

WE'RE GETTING OUT OF TOWN
...'CAUSE MOM'S GOT A NEW FLAME!

The whole family is leaving town on a well-earned vacation . . . all paid for by Mom's new flame. (A hard working, good-looking, clean-cut type. Really sweet-talked Mom. Even convinced Dad.)

Mom's new flame is her new Gas furnace. And this dependable new Gas furnace is slashing those heating bills to about one-third the cost of the electric heating they had in their old house. Gas heat is saving Dad up to several hundred dollars each year in heating bills. And with that kind of money saved . . . live a little! Think of all the things you can do with the money you save with Gas!

Jaycees Name Three Teachers Of The Year

Highlighting the observance of Teacher Career Month, the Columbus Jaycees will honor Mrs. Mabel Collins, William Stump and Miss Virginia Finsterwald as senior high, junior high and elementary "Teacher of the Year" at a luncheon at the Beasley-Deshler Thursday noon.

Mrs. Collins who has 45 years of teaching experience behind her, is an instructor in business education at Central and holds a BA, BS and MA from Ohio State University.

HER PRINCIPAL, Norval Goss states that Mrs. Collins has a deep interest in her students, a patience and understanding of them and the unfailing ability to develop them to their fullest potential. He added, "She is an inspiration to all."

Stump, also an OSU alumnus with graduate study at the University of Georgia, is in his eighth year of teaching general science at Indianola Junior High. The fact that Indianola students received more superior ratings than any other city junior high in the Science Fair last year is attributed directly to his efforts.

The third teacher honored, Miss Virginia Finsterwald, who is principal at Southwood Elementary, James Roy describes as a particularly energetic first grade teacher, graduated from Ohio University after attending Bexley Public Schools.

After 20 years in the classroom, according to Roy, she spends much of her summers in preparation for a "haven of learning."

The teachers will receive plaques and Superintendent Harold Elbling will be present to add his tribute to that of the Jaycees.

Twain Classic Set For Two-Day Run

For children of all ages, both on stage and in the audience, "Tom Sawyer" will be performed as a musical at Central High School — April 22 at 1:30 p.m. and April 23 at 1:30 p.m. and 4 p.m.

Tickets may be ordered by contacting ticket chairman, Mrs. J. R. Diffee, 486-3588.

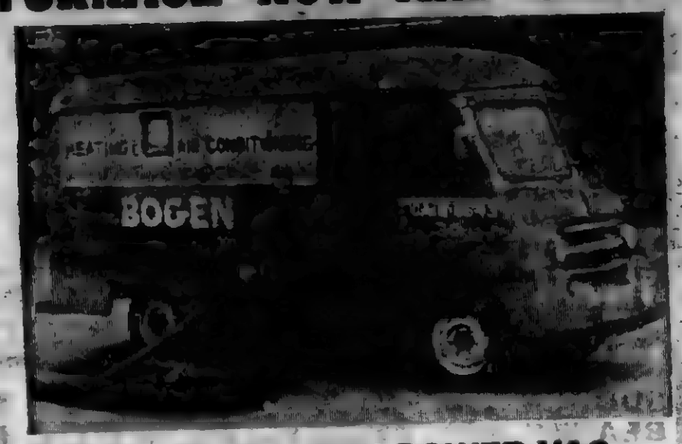
Landis, Shade Join Elite 'No-Hit' Club

Area hurlers wasted little time in boosting The Spectator's "No Hit Club" membership to 18 last week as Franklin Heights Don Landis and Reynoldsburg's Gary Shade pitched their way into the elite club with hitless efforts.



Landis became member No. 17 by downing Central, 2-0, on April 8 and Shade joined the ranks one day later by setting down Bexley (12-0) without a safety.

Landis provided Fisher mentors with their fifth membership in the last six inductees. Mickey Picus fanned in three no-hitters last spring and teammate Ray Malone added a fourth in '66.

Shade gave the club its first brother combination with his no-hitter. Older brother Craig authored a hitless game vs. Dublin (7-0, on May 24, 1965) to become the club's seventh member.

Don and Gary will receive certificates via their respective coaches from The Spectator to commemorate their no-hitters.

Shade's No-Hitter Gets Raiders' Split

By JACK WITTENMEIER
Spectator Sports Editor

It was strictly "feast or famine" for Dan Brown and his Reynoldsburg nine last week.

The Raiders zipped their '67 won-loss mark to 2-0 via a 12-0 verdict over Bexley which saw Reynoldsburg pitcher Gary Shade hang a no-hitter on the Lions.

SHADE WAS backed up by 11 big hits and some fine fielding but none of the combination was available to "rookie" Steve Pinnick three days later.

Pinnick, who combined with Denny Spires on a five-hitter, deserved far better than a 6-1 setback to Mifflin in his varsity debut.

Only five Lions reached base on Shade (four via errors) as Gary walked but one and fanned 11. The Raider senior supplied the only run he actually needed in the opening frame — plating Kenny Buck with a long triple.

GARY, DENNY Spires and Phil Nolan shared hitting honors, each with two hits. Shade and Spires, the Raiders' slugging twins, each recorded a pair of RBIs but surrendered that honor to teammate Jeff Curtis, who brought in three.

"They (Bexley) got some good wood on the ball," observed coach Dan Brown of Shade's hitless effort. "There were some hard shots but we got some good infield."

The Raiders four bobbles vs. Bexley proved harmless but not so against Mifflin.

ONLY TWO of the runs off Pinnick were earned.

Shade took hitting honors against the Cowpunchers also, collecting two-for-three (single, triple) and driving in the lone Reynoldsburg tally.

Tim Wolfe also had two hits with Randy Wolfe adding the fifth off Mifflin hurler Fred Galentine.

THE RAIDERS put together their biggest threat in the fourth frame. Trailing 3-1, Shade and Tim Wolfe singled back-to-back after one was out.

Wolfe then stole second, placing the tying markers in scoring position. But Galentine bore down, fanning the next two Raiders to end the threat.

Reynoldsburg, now 2-1, was scheduled to open Metro play at Franklin Heights yesterday (too late for deadline).

DEFENDING loop champion Whitehall, hampered by inexperience (return but four lettermen) plays host to the Raiders Friday.

Reynoldsburg will make up its rainout with Westerville Monday and host Pleasant View the following afternoon.

The Panthers, who return seven veterans this spring, are figured to be a title contender —along with Teays Valley and Reynoldsburg.

Wisdom—

realize that coveted "big league" tag for Columbus — and resolved to carry it.

More of this kind of action—and less talk about doing something — is the roadmap this city needs to follow in arriving at that splendid destination.

Whole Block Recruited For Cancer Crusade

If you need to get things done, look to the residents of the 600 block of S. Kellner Avenue in Eastmoor.

The entire block has been mobilized to take part in the annual Cancer Crusade, scheduled to begin next week.

The credit goes to Mrs. Herman Geichman, 666 S. Kellner, Eastmoor area chairman for the crusade.

Mrs. Geichman calls herself "an all-American housewife who tries everything and excels in nothing." But her co-workers on the cancer drive disagree.

With the help of two captains, Mrs. Harry Lerner of 573 S. Kellner and Mrs. Sherwood Miller of 672 S. Kellner, she recruited nearly every family on the block to aid in the drive.

On the Kellner "team" are Mrs. Ruben Comerace, 572 S. Kellner; Mrs. Robert Weiler, Jr., 601 S. Kellner; Mrs. George Stickland, 637 S. Kellner; Mrs. Arthur Allen, 656 S. Kellner; Miss Eta Brandt, 678 S. Kellner; Mrs. Bernard Abrams, 645 S. Kellner; Mrs. Rolland Perkins, 669 S. Kellner; Mrs. Robert Galbreith, 581 S. Kellner and B. Strawser, 3079 Kellner-pl.

Whitehall Library To Begin Painting Loans

The Columbus Public Library's new "neighborhood famous painting loan service" will get its first tryout beginning April 24 at the Whitehall Branch Library, 4371 E. Broad-st.

Mrs. Ellen Palmer, branch librarian, said Whitehall would be a test community for the serves which previously had been confined strictly to the downtown branch.

A collection of 24 framed reproductions of well-known paintings will be available to Whitehall adult card holders beginning April 24. Reservations will be taken all next week.

The Columbus Public Library's collection of two hundred paintings has been available to patrons of the main library for two years. Paintings not involved in the neighborhood loan program will continue to be available downtown.

The borrow-a-painting service is being inaugurated as part of the National Library Week celebration at the Whitehall Branch.

"Although we hold 'open house' all year, this year's National Library Week seems a particularly good time for area residents who have never availed themselves of our many services for fun and profit to make a visit of discovery," Mrs. Palmer said.

Under the painting loan program, patrons are limited to two prints at one time. A fee of $1 is charged for a 28-day loan. Loans may be renewed if there is no request for the specific print.

FISH FRY PLANNED

The Men's Club of Scottwood Community Church, 3330 Scottwood-rd, will hold its fish fry in Fellowship Hall Saturday from 5:30 to 7 p.m. The club, known as the Samaritans, has made the dinner an annual event. Lake perch, German potato salad and cole slaw will be served. Food preparation will be directed by Mrs. Robert Wohlfarth and Mrs. Arnold McKenney. General chairman is Herbert Poenisch and he will be assisted by Paul Benedict, Don Clark and Arnold McKenney. The dinner is open to the public. Tickets are $1.25 for adults and 75 cents for children.

Mrs. Mellman Heads Hadassah Delegation

Mrs. Carl B. Mellman, president of the Columbus chapter of Hadassah, will lead the local delegation to the Central States Regional Conference in Toledo this weekend.

Also in the delegation are Mrs. Norbert Kruger, South-Western Area vice-president; Mrs. Michael B. Karr, regional recording secretary and Columbus delegates Mrs. Samuel Princer, Mrs. Ben Shafran, Mrs. Daniel Goldsmith, Mrs. Morris Swedlow, Mrs. Neal Callif, Mrs. Bernard Schottenstein, Mrs. Fred Roland, Mrs. Harold Harris, Mrs. Jack Marks, Mrs. Malcolm Robbins and Mrs. Edward Goldin.

PIN NEWS

Keglers' Korner

By NORMA KIRKENDALL

Another headpin tourney—weekends through Apr. 16 at Berwick Plaza — sponsored by the Groveport-Madison Band Parents.

May 21 in the annual banquet of the winners of six divisions of the Greater Columbus Junior Bowling Association—to be held in the Youth Center at the Fairgrounds.

FIRST place winners: Bantam Girls — Fantastic Five, Holiday; Bantam Boys — Purple Panthers, Sunset; Junior Girls—1950 Men's Shop, German Village; Junior Boys—The Officials, Reynoldsburg; Senior Girls — Northern Stars, Northern Lights and Senior Boys—Vikings, Berwick.

Have you seen the beautiful WIBC History Book—50 years of colorful past. Order direct from WIBC for $1.25.

Yes—we do have some big ones: Ron Spohn with 706 for Bargainland in Amos Masters League, Keen Air Conditioning's 3027 in Commercial at Riverview, Don Kramer — 704 in Amos Masters, Mike Jones with 256-704 in Rainbow Classic, Millie Branch with 231-245-223 for a 699 at Piketon, Bud Roach and 714 for Shoemaker Tool Rental at Olentangy and Dennis Brown's 708 for New Albany Pizza at Holiday.

THE MERRY Fives came out on top of the WIBC Office League with Captain Vi Veatch leading in high averages.

Many leagues now are putting last plans in operation for league banquets.

Bowling is a game in which brawn is unimportant, so the field is wide open for any normal individual who can stand up. Anybody can aspire to be a good bowler regardless of age, physical perfection or athletic experience.

THOSE ELUSIVE yet simple elements—timing, rhythm and control—are the basis of skill on the lanes.

Millions of people have frequented the lanes for years for the simple reason that bowling is a swell game. It is good, lusty exercise; it is an ideal vehicle for complete mental relaxation; it is a friendly, neighborly game.

Skill is involved, to be sure, but not the exacting skill of golf, the lack of which converts a sport into an embarrassing misery for the novice.

FOR THE TRUTH is that bowling can be thoroughly enjoyed with less proficiency than almost any other game you can mention.

And the best way to prove that is to watch some newly formed club of women (most of whom never had any athletic training before) having the time of their lives on the lanes despite the fact that three balls out of every four rolled land in the gutter long before they reach the pins!

Then, too, there is enough competition in bowling to make it exciting, yet that competition is not acute in the sense that it is directly physical or even greatly dependent upon physical strength.

TWO PLAYERS of widely different muscular development and athletic education can bowl against each other with complete satisfaction.

At the annual tournament the contestants' ages range from 18 to 65 and in many sections of the country father-and-son tournaments are even more popular on the lanes than on the links.

Husband and wife can bowl together with infinitely less risk of divorce than they are exposed to at golf!

Parry Sets Discus Mark In E-M Win

Bexley, Whitehall and Eastmoor secured cinder wins during the week but the latter pair had to settle for an even split—losing out in a triangular with Worthington.

Eastmoor (60 pts.) relied on its field strength to down West (56½) and Marion-Franklin (42½).

JACK PARRY (won HH and discus) and Tony Coleman (won LH and HJ) paced the Warrior victory, Parry flinging the disc 149' 7" for a new school mark.

Tom DeMolet (shot), Charles Petty (PV) and Dave Lewis (two-mile) scored other E-M individual firsts.

Glen McAllister (HH), Matt Unger (100), Tom Carr (880), A. J. Myers (mile), Tom Erwin (BJ) and Dave Callif (discus) supplied Bexley firsts during the Lions' 70-57 conquest of Groveport.

RANDY NICHOLS (high, low hurdles) and Dave Mower (shot, discus) were double winners for Whitehall as the Rams (77½) decisioned Reynoldsburg (46) and Pleasant View (35½) in a triangular.

Count Fuller (BJ), Gary Turner (mile), Dan Reid (880), Pete Maxfield (pole vault) and the Rams' mile relay crew gained other Whitehall firsts.

Terry Miller set Reynoldsburg's pace with victories in both the 100 and high jump. Irving Christenson (two-mile) and Monty Hayes (440) secured other Raider firsts.

KEVIN ASTLEY (100), Mike Owens (880) and the Hawks' mile relay quartet got the lone firsts as DeSales bounced Hartley, 69-45.

In two big triangulars, Worthington (78) socked Eastmoor (59) and Whitehall (22) as the Warriors' Dwight Cartier (220), Jack Parry (discus), Tom DeMolet (shot) and Tony Coleman (low hurdles) gained the only area wins.

Elsewhere, Whetstone (92) easily overcame West (45) and Walnut Ridge (22).

UNBEATEN (3-0) Gahanna continued its '67 success by picking up all 15 firsts en route to a lopsided (107 pts.) win over Westerville (40½) and Mifflin (11½).

(All times and distances were set last spring in first running of W-R Invitational Relays).

SPORTING

Wit 'N' Wisdom

By JACK WITTENMEIER

Spectator Sports Editor

Add another effort to affix "big league" status to the Capital City.

Thanks to the efforts of a group of sports-minded Columbue area citizens, plans to formulate a Central Ohio "Sports Hall of Fame" are well along the trail to completion as of this writing.

THE JOB has been undertaken by the Dapper Dan Club of Metropolitan Columbus, an off-shoot of the parent organization in Pittsburgh which has been recognizing outstanding sports figures from that area for the past 31 years.

Wittenmeier

Plans to move forward on the first inshrinement of Central Ohio athletes (tentatively 10 men from the pre-1930 era, five from the 1930-1950 span and three after 1950) will be further firmed Thursday, Apr. 20 at the first general meeting of the club.

On that evening (7 p.m.), the club's 200 charter members will gather at the Elk's Home (1045 S. High-st) to officially inaugurate the Columbus chapter.

AL ABRAMS, sports editor of the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette and founder of the original Dapper Dans, will be on hand to install the local chapter.

In addition to its "Hall of Fame," the non-profit Columbus chapter hopes eventually to assist former athletes who have been struck by physical incapacity or economic liability, to provide financial help for worthy local charities and to generally promote sports in the Central Ohio community.

Possibly the strongest point about the local Dapper Dan club and biggest reason for its anticipated success are the men who are carrying the ball.

CLUB OFFICERS are Lee Yassenoff (president), Jack Cannon and Bob Agler (vice-presidents), Bob Sayre (secretary) and Mel Shaw (treasurer).

Directors include: Clark Smith, Joe Hill, Bob VanHeyde, Jack Ryan, Irwin Bamberger, Claude Willis, Vic Marino, Herb Russell, Frank Cumiskey, Tom Krieger, Bernard Sully, Gene Mechling, Bill Amicon, George McCrea, Harold Todd and Ralph Webster.

Besides Abrams, co-chairmen Cannon and Krieger have lined up an impressive guest list for the Apr. 20 meeting.

SPECIAL guests will include: Dick McCann, Director of the Pro Football Hall of Fame at Canton, ex-Green Bay Packer great Clark Hinkle, ex-Brown stars Lin Houston and Bill Willis, current Buffalo Bills' standout Delbert Dubenion and Otterbein's All-America cager Don Carlos.

The qualifications for the Central Ohio "Hall of Fame" are few: Central Ohio resident (lived in Columbus area for 15 years), male athletes who's retiremed from the sport for a minimum of five years).

The local Dapper Dans intend to use the word "sports" in its broadest term, including everything from fly casting to Olympic fame.

THE MAN enshrined need not even have competed in a sport but merely contributed to its welfare or advancement in Central Ohio.

Among other tentative plans for the local organization are yearly selection of a "Man of Distinction" (local athlete still active in sports) and location of local "shrine" (hotel, Veterans Memorial etc.) so that residents can identify themselves with the "Hall of Fame."

The Dapper Dan Club of Metropolitan Columbus has undertaken a challenging job.

BUT THEY have picked up the torch that could eventually

AN EDITORIAL:

Two Wrongs Don't..

Bexley City Council is on the brink of making a serious mistake—one that could create a permanent black mark against the city's name in the eyes of those who cherish the constitutional guarantees of free speech and free expression.

Council has ordered City Solicitor Howard Park to draft legislation similar to Columbus' ill-conceived obscene film ordinance. The idea is to keep so-called "objectionable" motion pictures, such as the recent "I, A Woman," out of Bexley's Bexley Art Theater.

The direct cause of the action was a rash of complaints—14 letters, two petitions and two dozen vocal complaints. While The Spectator recognizes the rights of citizens to voice their complaints, it does not feel that a small group or even a large one, in fact, should be permitted to govern the tastes of all.

The day after Columbus police seized "I, A Woman" at the World Theater, thousands of Columbusites were singing the praises of Bexley and particularly Police Chief Truman Sn oots for a firm "hands off" stand on the same film at the Bexley.

But now, Bexley Council has apparently succumbed to the pressure. It plans to follow Columbus right down the muddy road to censorship.

The Spectator strongly urges Bexley's councilmen to reconsider—to think of the consequences in light of the traditional constitutional guarantees they will be smashing.

It is not too late for one of Columbus' most respected suburbs to also become one of its most enlightened.

OIC Poll Indicates That OBC Proposal In Trouble

Results of the Ohio Information Committee's Civic Leader Poll on the reapportionment and Ohio Bond Commission amendments indicate strongly that the OBC proposal may be in serious trouble.

The OIC's poll, which traditionally supports Republican proposal and has run up to 35 percent ahead of the actual popular vote, showed only 62 percent of the leaders polled as favoring the OBC. The reapportionment proposal, on the other hand, garnered 80 percent of the response in favor.

OIC, which embraced both proposals, admitted that "there is genuine reason for concern" that the OBC amendment may be in trouble. It said a "supreme promotional effort is required" to get a favorable vote on the controversial OBC on May 2.

The last time the OIC poll was wrong was in 1965, when 82 percent of those polled voted in favor of the Republican reapportionment proposal. It garnered only 47 percent of the actual vote and lost resoundingly.

The OIC pointed out that the 62 percent figure on the OBC was the lowest any issue has ever received in an OIC poll.

Columbus attorney Fred Milligan, who is president of OIC, said 12,000 civic leaders, newspaper editors and reporters, radio and television newsmen, public officials and political party leaders were polled. Only 32 percent of those polled responded.

Gahanna Students Try To Raise $1400

Gahanna-Lincoln High School students have turned to the community in their efforts to send two outstanding Spanish students overseas as part of the International Fellowship exchange program.

Only enough money was available to send one student abroad in the program, but school officials felt that both Cheryl Grasse and Jerry Nicewarner should get the opportunity to take part in the program. Both were described as "equally qualified scholastically, with a genuine desire to represent the United States as ambassadors of good will."

That left the school with a problem—either come up with $1,400 by May 1, the deadline for applications, or make the choice and send only one of the students.

"La Sociedad De Amistad," the Spanish Club, grabbed the ball and four months ago began a series of bake sales, newspaper sales, a car wash and a faculty-girls' varsity basketball game.

Those projects, however, fell short of raising the full $1,400.

Ben Webb, principal of Gahanna-Lincoln, said his office would act as a collection point for donations from the Gahanna community.

Construction Sign Feeds MES, PJH 'Feud'

That friendly feud between Whitehall Mayor Paul Haytcher and Columbus Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner has apparently gotten to a contractor working on sidewalk improvements in the area of Columbus' Barack Recreation Center.

Sensenbrenner started it all last week when he tried to claim Haytcher's new-born daughter as "Columbus' newest citizen."

Then last week a construction company erected a sign at the Columbus project proclaiming "Your Tax Dollars at Work."

Somehow, the signs got mixed up, and South Siders were greeted with a "Tax Dollars at Work" message signed by Whitehall Mayor Haytcher and his service director.

The sign lasted not very long. Presumably, it will be replaced by one lving Sensenbrenner credit for the project.

N.Y. Calling East High Model

For 17-year-old East High junior Marsha Ball, that perennial little girl's dream of "going to the big city to make good" is about to come true.

Marsha, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Ball of 1701 Oak-st, will take off for New York in June to model in Ingenue Magazine's back-to-school fashion show at Broadway's Palace Theater.

For Marsha, the trip will be the culmination of an interest that started when the 5-foot, 10-inch, 119-pounder was named to the high school board of The Fashion of Columbus. Under the urging of Fashion fashion director Kathleen Busche, she restyled her hair, learned the ropes of modeling and wound up with the Ingenue assignment.

At East High, Marsha is on Student Court and Student Council and is active in Y-Teens, the Political Science Club and the orchestra as a violinist. Last weekend, she was part of the Nigerian delegation at Capital University's Mock United Nations.

In addition to her activities at school, Marsha still finds time for membership in Asbury Methodist Church's choir, The Fashion's high school board, Xinxs and Gamma Rlpha chapter of Phi Delta Kappa Sorority.

The pictures on this page show what it's like to double as a high school coed and model.

Comment And Criticism

editorials . . .

A Splendid Suggestion

Dr. Leonard B. Greentree, writing in the Bulletin of the Academy of Medicine of Columbus, is urging the creation of a Columbus Committee on Sex Education.

Dr. Greentree envisions a committee that is "all action and not just talk."

He calls upon the 1,000 doctors of Columbus, through the Academy, to take the lead in coordinating and bolstering sex information efforts of the home, schools, official agencies and planned parenthood groups.

"Promiscuity and illegitimacy are now causing more total suffering than diseases which threaten life," he points out.

"Let Columbus, Ohio, the All-American City, lead the way in setting up a realistic program for sex education in the public schools on a consistent year-after-year basis," Dr. Greentree asks.

The Spectator Newspapers feel Dr. Greentree's proposal is a splendid one. Now let us see the "action."

OBC In Justifiable Trouble

Indications from the results of the usually lop-sided Civic Leader Poll conducted by the heavily Republican Ohio Information Committee are that Governor Rhodes' Ohio Bond Commission proposal is in deep trouble.

In poll results, Issue No. 1, the OBC, was approved by participants by a margin of 62 percent. To anyone not familiar with the poll's track record, this might appear to be a strong endorsement.

The same poll showed Issue No. 2, legislative reapportionment, carrying with 80 percent of the vote.

Normally the poll shows the "civic leaders" running well ahead of the voters. For instance, in 1965 when voters rejected the reapportionment amendment, the OIC poll showed 82 percent for it. Only 47 percent of the voters agreed. Response was only 32 percent, as opposed to a normal 50 percent.

As the OIC indicated, "there is good reason for concern." The OIC has endorsed both issues.

It would appear that in spite of the many so-called "endorsements" achieved through arm-twisting by the administration that when it comes time to mark the "X" in private the voters go their own way.

PAL Needs A Pal

Mayor Sensenbrenner's Program Against Littering (PAL) is girding itself for a concentrated step-up in 86 neighborhoods around Columbus.

PAL headed by Roy Stage of the Columbus Retail Merchants Association, has been in existence since last year but it is now starting on its most ambitious project.

Eighty-six community and neighborhood councils have been asked to cooperate in a massive clean-up drive tied in with the annual fire prevention campaign due to start April 28.

In addition, more than 2,000 PAL red and white receptacles will be placed around the city, 50 billboards will promote the program and sanitation employes and school children will spread the gospel with pamphlets.

But PAL can't work without the cooperation of every Columbus citizen. The Spectator feels the program is worthy of that cooperation.

The Court's Turn

By ROBERT BURDOCK

BURDOCK

If Ohio is still a state governed by laws and not by men, then it is a certainty that Governor Rhodes' grossly misrepresented Ohio Bond Commission proposal will be thrown off the May 2 ballot.

At this writing, the Ohio Supreme Court decision on the vital issue is expected momentarily. But the ruling, by all that is sacred in law, should never have been in doubt.

Even a layman need only to read the brilliantly clear brief submitted to the court in opposition to the constitutional amendment by Attorneys Rankin M. Gibson and Robert B. McAlister to become convinced the issue is being brought before the voters in an invalid manner.

Gibson and McAlister and the records of the legislature clearly show that the bill setting a special election date was not passed properly in that no separate vote was recorded in the House on the emergency measure, as specifically required by law and past court decisions.

Further, opposition counsel points out, a special election cannot be called by passage of a joint resolution when statute requires that it be done by law. If this were possible, any law could be amended by a mere resolution, which by-passes the constitutional checks and balance requiring consideration by the governor.

Most flagrant, possibly, of the numerous violations, is the outrageous breach of the requirement that constitutional amendments be placed individually before the voters.

The Ohio Bond Commission amendment treats of far more than one subject. It is possible, counsel argues, that an aged voter might want to approve deferment of real estate taxes for the aged, but be opposed to removing the constitutional limit on state debt without approval of the electorate. Such a split vote is not possible in the proposal. A voter approves both, or neither. No less than 12 other different areas of the constitution would be amended by the proposal.

Finally, counsel charges that the text of the proposed amendment that will actually appear on the ballot is so "misleading as to constitute a fraud upon Ohio electors."

The condensed ballot contains 810 words, 66 commas, 30 semi-colons, nine Arabic numerals, four hyphens; two Roman numerals, one letter, one colon and one period. And, in fact, it is not even a complete sentence.

This then, is what the court must either rule off the ballot or let the voters in their confusion decide.

This will be the decision, either governed by laws or by men.

When the court rules, Ohio voters will know which has prevailed.

Thanks From The Heart

To The Editor:

Our Easter Seal chairman, Dr. B. D. Thomas; our parade chairman, Betty Corbett; the staff of the Franklin County Society for Crippled Children and even the boys and girls on our program would like to take this opportunity to thank The Spectator for the help given to us during our 1967 Easter Seal campaign.

Your cooperation and assistance during this annual plea for funds was very appreciated.

To date we have received slightly more than $91,000 in contributions. Although our goal of $100,000 was not reached, this amount will guarantee continued help to the handicapped children of our community in the form of therapies, schooling, treatment, shoes, braces, etc.

We are indeed grateful for your support. By helping us, you have shared in the dreams for a happy independent future for many crippled youngsters.

Fan Letter

To The Editor:

This is a fan letter. I have traveled around the country (in fact the world) with my husband in Army service and have read many neighborhood newspapers. However, I really believe that The Spectator not only is "neighborhood" but "big city."

I enjoy the various provocative columns. We both feel that the sports handling is excellent. I want to thank Mr. Paugh and Miss Kirkendall for their very readable and helpful columns.

Keep up the good work . . . Columbus needs you.

leo rennert ★ A Californian Looks At Rhodes—II ★

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second in a series of articles on the Rhodes administration written by Leo Rennert, staff writer for the McClatchy Newspapers group of California.)

Football supremacy may vary from time to time in the Big Ten but the Buckeyes of Ohio State are assured of retaining their unchallenged No. 1 position for quite a while in at least one field—student tuition payments. Annual tuition costs at state universities in Ohio have soared to about $500 and more increases are in the offing.

Meanwhile, appropriations from the state treasury have inched upward at a far slower rate under Gov. James A. Rhodes' tax-the-user philosophy.

Ohio educators contend the result has been an exodus of bright students and scholars along with a decline in the type of intellectual resources necessary for modern industrial and economic growth.

They also believe that Ohio has been hurt by excessive political intrusion into academic affairs—a course they think California appears to be taking with the sudden firing of Clark Kerr, president of the University of California.

For those who want a close-up view of the effects of high tuition and penurious state support on higher education, Ohio definitely is the place.

"College education is rapidly becoming the exclusive prerogative of the rich, the well-born and the able in the State of Ohio," commented Prof. James H. Pelley of Miami University.

Edward J. Wagner II, special assistant to the president of Cleveland State University, said Ohio's tuition system has "ruined the opportunities of children from families with limited means."

State Sen. Frank W. King, D-Toledo, noted that state support for higher education rose only $60 per student during the last 10 years while just recently there were announcements that tuition costs, in the swoop, would go up $50 to $60 a quarter or semester.

Recently, the Ohio Board of Regents recommended that operating funds for higher education be doubled.

If Rhodes had provided sufficient state support during the last few years, it is argued, there obviously would be no need for such a sudden whopping request.

Prof. George W. Albee of Western Reserve University notes that while Ohio tuition costs are among the highest in the nation, the state ranks 45th in per capita state expenditures for higher education.

Albee terms Ohio State "dreadfully inferior" to the University of Illinois, which "is not the best of the Big Ten." With similar enrollments, he observed, OSU has 2,200 faculty members while Illinois has 3,150.

Still, the Rhodes administration has given no sign of readiness to embark on drastically new fiscal policies.

State Finance Director Richard L. Krabach, a firm believer in high tuition payments, says California's tuition-free system only results in "the masses paying for the education of an elite."

Ohio faculty members are quick to emphasize that financial support is by no means their only problem.

Controveries over academic freedom and periodic crackdowns on dissenting views, they stress, can be just as damaging to a university and often are in fact a greater cause of resignations than poor salaries.

barry goldwater ★ Dangerous Talk Hits High ★

GOLDWATER

Dangerous and irresponsible talk about Vietnam has reached a new high.

The dangerous talk is from inside the administration — from Robert Strange McNamara while irresponsible talk is from outside—from Martin Luther King.

McNamara, as usual, is dealing in half-truths, no truths and nonsense.

Dr. King, as is also becoming usual, is dealing in an emotionalism that makes a mockery of facts, a shambles of debate and a waste of the respect in which he previously had been held by so many.

The President is the only man who can tell off McNamara, officially. I wish he would but I won't hold my breath waiting.

Meantime, I'll continue to do my part and hope that more and more outraged Americans, in their homes and in the halls of Congress, will speak up, also, to end the incredible travesty of public service that McNamara has made by his ruthless, wretched mismanagement of our defense policies.

The only men who can tell off Dr. King effectively, are the members of the civil rights movement which he has so shamefully deserted to become a loud and abusive, wrong and misinformed mouthpiece of the worst aspects of the so-called peace movement.

McNamara defends our failure to bomb the MIG bases in North Vietnam by saying that it is in keeping with the policy of trying to confine the war and thus save American lives.

Failure to bomb the bases does not save lives, but daily threatens the lives of our pilots. Presence of the enemy jet force, no matter how small, forces our planes to stick to attack patterns that often drive them too close to enemy antiaircraft fire. Any airman knows it is far less costly in lives and material to destroy enemy aircraft on the ground than in the air.

He knows we are going to have to bomb those airfields. I am sure the President knows it. Why don't we get some straight talk instead of all this double talk?

When it comes to Dr. King, it is bad enough that he suggests what would amount to a clear-cut Viet Cong victory (by asking that we simply get out of their way). Even worse is his strident, ill-tempered and totally ill-informed attack against the United States and all its people, its public officials and its policies.

He says we are brutal and aggressive. He blames us for crimes which any sensible and objective court would immediately place where they belong, at the feet of the Communists.

Dr. King, who once preached a gospel of love, is now preaching a gospel of unrelieved hatred for the United States. His love is now measured out for our enemies.

His good sense is not measured at all. It has vanished in a burst of fanatic demogoguery.

marquis childs ★ Political Success Story ★

CHILDS

The California brand of politics is something new under the sun. One-third television, one-third acting ability and one-third skilled public relations techniques —this is the formula that put Ronald Reagan in the Governor's chair.

With one-tenth of the entire population of the country in California, there are knowledgeable specialists who believe this is the wave of the political future. You can take a well-known name with a television presence and apply the skills of the merchandiser with every possible electronic ploy. If the product has a native shrewdness and experience in the public forum, as Ronald Reagan has, it helps.

Reagan will be California's favorite-son candidate for the Republican nomination for President next year, and he and his backers expect to control the California delegation. He will be on the ballot in at least two other states, Oregon and Nebraska, where all potential candidates are listed unless they file an oath that they do not intend to run. Wisconsin is in the process of adopting a similar law which means he will be on the ballot there, too. The Governor explains that since he has to be the favorite son in order to keep down dissension in the party he cannot very well take himself out of the race. This is the logic of his outward reluctance.

Unhappily, dissension still raises its ugly head and the suicidal Republican bent for snatching defeat out of the jaws of victory cannot be dismissed even in the afterglow of triumph. The extreme right is determined to read Sen. Thomas Kuchel out of the party and deny him renomination next year. The convention of the California Republican Assembly in Long Beach the other day turned into a war dance meant to drive Kuchel, who was not present, right off the map.

Reagan went to Long Beach to pour oil on these troubled waters with a speech calling for harmony and obedience to the 11th commandment — Republicans shall not speak ill of other Republicans. But his words went unheeded. Some of the far-out boys were muttering that Ronnie was going soft.

A bruising primary fight, as Reagan's powerful backers know full well, could fracture all semblance of party unity and freeze the budding hopes for a star role for California on the national scene. Kuchel is for many Democrats as well as Republicans a symbol of the moderation that was for the G.O.P. the touchstone of success.

Along with the growls of the right wing a backfire is building up over certain of Reagan's budget-slashing moves. The newspapers have been running stories pointing up the disastrous effect of firing 3,700 state mental hospital employees. State institutions are already overcrowded and understaffed. With an increasing number of adolescent and pre-adolescent difficult cases the cities will have to take on a burden for which they are not equipped and have no resources. Reagan has now delayed the cuts for 60 days.

Anything can happen in California and usually does. For one thing there is the right of recall. Seven percent of those who voted in the last election can petition to require an elected official to submit himself again to the voters. Such a petition aimed at Reagan early in 1968 would mean another typical California spectacular.

'Barefoot In The Park' To Open POG Season

With spring here, many theater goers begin thinking of Playhouse on The Green.

POG, as it is more commonly known, will be announcing its summer line-up soon and with the announcement most people begin smiling when the name Sally Jones Sexton goes ticking through the memory clock.

It has often been said her speeches between acts are better than the plays.

Loved, admired and sought-after by theater people for her wit and wisdom, Sally spoke to the Welsh Hills Players community theater group last Friday.

She brought down the audience with tears of laughter while relating some "disasters" of being producer of POG. And she received a standing ovation when she concluded.

Sally and her often-referred-to Miss Jane who handles advertising and produc'' problems at POG were helpful to the not-yet-one-year-old community theater group.

Check the Spectator entertainment pages for further details about the grande dame. Sally and Playhouse On the Green.

Sally's list of plays is yet to be finalized but it is safe to say, barring a tornado, the curtain goes up on June 17th, with "Barefoot In the Park."

With the appointment of Marianne Campbell as director of community affairs for AVCO Broadcasting, President John T. Murphy announces that AVCO's five television and six radio stations will seek additional ways in which they can serve the needs of their communities.

Mrs. Campbell has been general manager of radio station WJEH in Gallipolis since she put the station on the air in 1950.

'Marat-Sade' Alternates Between Sick, Beautiful

Unusually and oppressively different, "Marat-Sade" opens today for an exclusive showing at University Theater on North High Street.

It is extremely important to have some inkling of the story line before viewing this film for one is more than likely to loose wondering what it's all about or so emotionally involved by disturbing scenes that it will lose any reference to the word entertainment.

Marat is the surname of Jean-Paul Marat while Sade is the surname of the Marquis de Sade.

In the early nineteenth century at the Asylum of Charenton where the director, Monsieur Coulmier introduced group therapy to the inmates, de Sade who was an inmate, wrote plays which were performed by his compatriots.

One of these plays, which were performed for Paris society, was entitled "The Persecution and Assassination Of Jean-Paul Marat as Performed By The Inmates Of The Asylum Of Charenton Under The Direction Of The Marquis De Sade."

An inmate portrays Jean-Paul Marat, who was killed by a young girl for his leadership during the revolution. He lives his thoughts and psychology. Yet, the audience is given Sade's completely different philosophy at the same time.

What is being viewed is a play within a play. Many will enjoy, while others will be depressed by the emotionally disturbed characters.

At times, it is sick at others is is beautiful.

Not enough can be said about acting, directing, lighting, and photography. Each is superb. The movie is based on the Broadway play of the same name.

Theater Notes

By CLAUDIA ELKINS

"Oedipus The King" is a Greek tragedy which deals with the legend of the son, Odeipus, of Laius (king of Thebes) who through several tragic events ends up married to his mother, unknowingly, and conceiving four children.

This play is the current offering by University Theater, Ohio State University, at University Hall. There are two performances yet, Friday and Saturday.

Do not miss it.

Donald R. Glancy, the director, has captured the meaning, grief and the quality of a Greek play. Clever and imaginative are descriptive of costumes, lights, set, dance and music.

The lead, Roger Rathbunn, seemed intent upon portayla yet reached no peak as he started at the peak and this left no place to go.

For his wife or mother, Karen Zender, her reactions were of good acting quality yet was vocally weak both in speeches and songs.

The remainder of the cast was perfection. Each strived and received the fullment of understanding their roles as the audience sat spell-bound.

This fine Greek tragedy is a rarity now-a-days with "the theater of the absurd" now running gambit.

For an unusually theatrical evening out, this shouldn't be missed.

Tickets are available through University Theater Ticket Office (293-2295).

Prints Of Pakistan Promise To Make It A 'Hot' Summer

What carries a club and is red, white and blue?

THE WELL-DRESSED GOLFER.

What has a bent elbow, a screwdriver and is printed in Pakistan?

THE WELL-DRESSED DRINKER.

What is double-breasted, jaunty as a sailor and wears ice cream pants?

THE MAN-ABOUT-TOWN AT HIS CLUB.

Everyone worth his seasons has known that summer is coming but few have realized what it is bringing with it—the Columbus male decked out in colors rivaling those of Joseph's cloak.

Bill Meeks, proprietor of Squire Ltd. in the Old World Bazaar in German Village spotted the trend months ago and bet his inventory dollars Columbus men were ready for the spotlight.

How right he was!

HIS PAISLEY sport coats, his tattersall trousers and shirts in "hot" Mexican hues are the talk of the town.

And the talk isn't stopping in Columbus. Orders have come pouring from Cincinnati since a friend from the Windy City literally "bought the pants off Meeks" at an Easter party where Meeks appeared in orange and red plaid slacks.

FURTHERMORE when a local bon vivant, Europe-bound, packed a half-dozen of "fancy pants" from Squire he was the toast of the ile de France.

In discussing the trend that may send the more conservative groping for their sunglasses when the Squire-dressed man walks in Meeks ventured the theory that color in men's attire is long overdue.

"After all," he said, "men dressing drabbly is going against nature. Just look at the peacock."

STRESSING that the stripes and checks (some even of the windowpane variety) are anything but a collegiate fad Meeks pointed out that it is only the man who has "arrived" whose wardrobe can include "conversation pieces."

However, patterns less than downright wild are expected to accompany the executive and white-collared worker to the office this summer.

(The term white collar is rapidly becoming outdated with only 10 percent of dress shirts hold today being white and plums and dark grays reminiscent of Al Capone days heralded for fall).

SOME PATTERNS, according to the haberdasher, are expected to lead a double life.

For example, a rich paisley single-breasted coat with roll collar is equally at home with linen slacks of a brilliant hue, as with black tie and tuxedo trousers.

Meeks also pointed out that some of the summer modes won't be too startling to gentlemen of a certain vintage.

One of the fastest numbers is a blue pin-striped jacket worn with white flannel trousers which were standard "Sunday-go-to-meeting duds" 40 years ago.

Harvey Says U.S. Not Minding Business

By ROB WHITMAN

Paul Harvey, yeteran ABC newscaster, spoke to the 34th annual Ohio Automobile Dealers Association banquet Monday night at The Columbus-Sheraton.

Harvey, who is one of the few remaining news commentators, voiced his view of America and its place in the world.

"America was most envied when she minded her own affairs," Harvey said, "the rest of the countries of the world tried to emulate her shining example.

"The countries we now aid made a greater advance in the 10-years prior to our assistance than they had in the last 10 years with it," he maintained.

In the overall picture Harvey asserted that he isn't afraid of the "dirty communist but rather the lazy American."

"If Uncle Sam is ever disgraced in the eyes of the world it would have to be an inside job.

"It will be because he was lured astray by a low-necked, short - skirted, rose - scented, diamond-necked hussy, named 'Something-for-nothing.' "

Harvey cautioned the older generation not to be so hang-dog apologetic about turning the country over to its sons.

In addressing himself to the youth he said:

"You get no apology — you get yourself a country mostly civilized, an economy still mostly free, a church door open and unwatched, and with your new tools, you get a chance to preserve, protect and defend these things as we did.

HERE'S A BONUS FROM THE SPECTATOR

OHIO'S LARGEST WEEKLY NEWSPAPER

The Spectator Newspapers have just completed arrangements with Encyclopaedia Britannica which will enable you to obtain the latest Imperial Edition at a reduced price —a price that is substantially lower than that which is available to the individual.

And the beauty of it is that you not only receive the 24-volume Britannica itself at a reduced price, but you have your choice of additional Britannica merchandise at no extra cost through Britannica's Group Co-op Plan.

These extras, from which you may choose, include such items as the 15-volume Britannica Junior Encyclopaedia designed especially for boys and girls, or the Webster's unabridged dictionary, the Britannica atlas, the Britannica globe and a beautiful walnut veneered bookcase, your choice of Home Study Guides which cover subjects that range from history and literature to child care and home decoration. Also included among the extras is the Britannica Library Research Service which allows you to receive up to 100 research reports on almost any subject of your choice.

And you can receive all this at no extra cost — together with the reduced price on the 24-volume Imperial Edition, a price available only under this plan.

In addition to this, along with this reduced price, Encyclopaedia Britannica is also extending to you its own "book club" with an important difference. It is called the Book a Month Payment Plan. You receive all 24 volumes at once, yet pay for just one book each month.

No doubt you have used Britannica from time to time and are familiar with the many advantages it offered you in your school days. But are you also familiar with the benefits Britannica can bring you and your family now?

For example, in the new edition you'll find articles on politics, sports, every kind of hobby, careers . . . and literally hundreds of other subjects . . . subjects of great interest to the entire family.

It's really not necessary, I suppose, for me to portray Britannica's scope and versatility, its meaningful articles, its significant maps and illustrations, its day-to-day usefulness. But I do think you'll want to have all the details of this reduced-price plan.

And all you have to do to receive them is complete and return the attached coupon now, while it's handy.

'Pair Extraordinaire' Lights Up The Bistro

By CLAUDIA ELKINS
Entertainment Editor

Sam Harachis and Pete Paras, co-owners of the Bistro, have brought to Columbus what has got to be one of the greatest acts that Columbus audiences will find for a long time.

Appearing for the next two weeks are vocalist and bass team, "The Pair Extraordinaire." Marcus Hemphill's fingers and attached body undoubtedly not only feel the music but know how to play with such quality that it is often hard to keep the attention on vocalist Carl Craig.

Craig, vocally, has deep rich qualities to his voice that keeps one nervously waiting for more singing as he and Marcus give out some of the slickest and funniest routines dealing with their race and with civil rights.

Both are single and have college backgrounds and hope to finish — but they will probably always be in "captivity." Their audience Monday night proved it.

In the audience were Mayor Sensenbrenner, Miss Central Ohio, and the press. The mayor related that "they were certainly mayors of Columbus and not slaves of Alabama!" This remark was a play on one of Carl's astounding, yet humorous remarks about the subject of Negroes.

"The Pair" has been together for two and one-half years, and has appeared on TV with Danny Kaye, Milton Berle, Dean Martin and on The Tonight Show. Night clubs range from the "The Hungry i" in San Francisco to "The Bitter End" in New York. They have four record albums on the Liberty Label and Columbus movie goers will have a chance to see them within the next two weeks at the RKO Palace in "Come, Let's Live A Little."

On of the outstanding features of "The Pair" is their clothing. The shirt collars are very broad and are their own design. This design will soon be on the market.

Broad not only denotes the shirts but also the range of entertainment which they have so extraordinarily captured. Ballads, pop, religious and Broadway tunes numbering some 200 are in their repertoire.

Following the formal talks, the audience will be given the opportunity to meet in small groups with Alden and Fernald

The meeting is open to the public, and free tickets may be obtained by writing the CODA office, 1406 Presidential-dr (phone 486-7344).

GAHANNA CAST, CREW E NJOY 'CURTAIN CALL'

Providing one of Gahanna-Lincoln's big "Lion roars" for Spectator photographer Jack Wittenmeier are the Gahanna Relay champions who amassed 52 points to outdistance runnerup Whitehall Friday night. The hosts took six firsts at the meet and broke two records (880 and mile relay). Kneeling (from left) behind Relay Queen Lynne Griffith are the members of that 880 crew — Tony Lock, Ron Doran, Bob Bay and Bruce Baker.

Gahanna Cops Relay Laurels; Rams Score High

RAM WIN — Whitehall's Vando Rogers touches the finish tape Friday night at the Gahanna Relays, bringing his Ram two-mile relay unit home in a winning 8:27.3 time.

Gahanna and Whitehall gained the most notice among area similar squads last week—the first blessed with generally sunny skies and warm temperatures.

Ed Raney's Lions repeated as champs at their own Relays Friday, totaling 52 points to outdistance runnerup Whitehall (33 pts.)

THE LIONS took six firsts, setting new marks in the mile (Clark Coleman, Bruce Baker, Ron Doran, Tony Lock, 3:28.4) and 880 (Baker, Bob Bay, Doran, Lock, 1:32.6) relay events.

Other firsts came in the shuttle hurdles (Baker, Chuck Bowe, Ron Goldhart, Doran, :57.4), high jump (Bowe, Goldhart, Jim Foder, 17 ft.), shot put (Bob Kunkel, Mike and Fred Browning, 137 ft. 10½ inches) and discus (Brownings and Steve Moon, 401 ft. 7½ ins.)

Whitehall got three firsts—two-mile relay (Gary Turner, Dan Reid, Vando Rogers, Count Fuller, 8:27.3), long jump (Fuller, Bill Anderson, Don Neece, 58 ft. 6¾ ins.) and pole vault (Pete Maxfield, Dave Nichols, Greg Denter, 84 ft.)

PAT McHILLEN'S Rams didn't show the wear from a busy Friday evening at Gahanna — finishing fifth (26 pts.) in a classy Worthington Relay field the next afternoon.

Host Worthington and Whetstone shared honors there with 45 points apiece.

Whitehall firsts came in the shuttle hurdles (Randy Nichols, Lou Anderson, Count Fuller, Glenn Foltz, 1:02.5), pole vault (Maxfield, D. Nichols, Denter, 33 ft. 6 ins.) and shot put (Dave Mowrer, Jim Cooper, Scott Graeler, 138 ft. 3¼ ins.)

IN OTHER area action last week, Central (57) outdid Eastmoor (45) and Linden in a big triangular.

Pete Prendergast (mile), Dave Lewis (two-mile) and Jack Parry (discuss) got the Warrior wins.

Bob Hickey (two-mile), Rick DeFourney (880), Ken Hoff (PV) and Dan Baxter (HJ) took Walnut Ridge firsts but the Scotties dropped a 73-54 dual verdict to Brookhaven.

KEVIN ASTLEY'S double win (100, 220) paced Hartley to a 75-52 OCL decision over Reedy.

Count Fuller (BJ, 100) and Randy Nichols (both hurdles events) set the winning pace in Whitehall's 93-34 win over Metro-mate Franklin Heights.

Eugene Hadden scored three firsts (BJ, mile, 880) for East but the Tigers suffered a 75-52 setback to Mansfield anyway.

BRUCE BAKER won both hurdle events but Arlington sidetracked Gahanna, 77-50.

Another top area hurdler—Bexley's Glen McAllister—also took a double win as the Lions defeated Reynoldsburg, 73-54.

Twin wins by Dwight Cartier (100, 440), Tony Coleman (high, low hurdles) and Jack Parry (HJ, discus) supplied the impetus as Eastmoor battered Walnut Ridge, 91-25, in another dual test.

Nolan's 'Slam', Shade's Arm Paces Raiders; Viking Showdown Nears

By JACK WITTENMEIER
Spectator Sports Editor

Some welcome hitting and the strong right arm of Gary Shade maintained Reynoldsburg's untouched position atop the Metropolitan League standings last week.

Rider coach Dan Brown is now keeping his fingers crossed that his co-leaders (Teays Valley also 2-0) can maintain that spot by this time next week when Reynoldsburg will have matched hits and pitches with the full Metro quintet.

THE RAIDERS opened with a 3-2 verdict over Franklin Heights early last week via the comeback route and then added an 8-2 verdict over defending loop champ Whitehall Friday.

Pleasant View was scheduled at Reynoldsburg yesterday (too late for press deadlines) and Hamilton Township arrives Friday.

Should the Raiders and Teays Valley fare equally well through the weekend, Reynoldsburg's visit to Ashville Tuesday should be a dandy.

"I'M SATISFIED with our effort so far," said Raider mentor Dan Brown—looking back over first week of loop play.

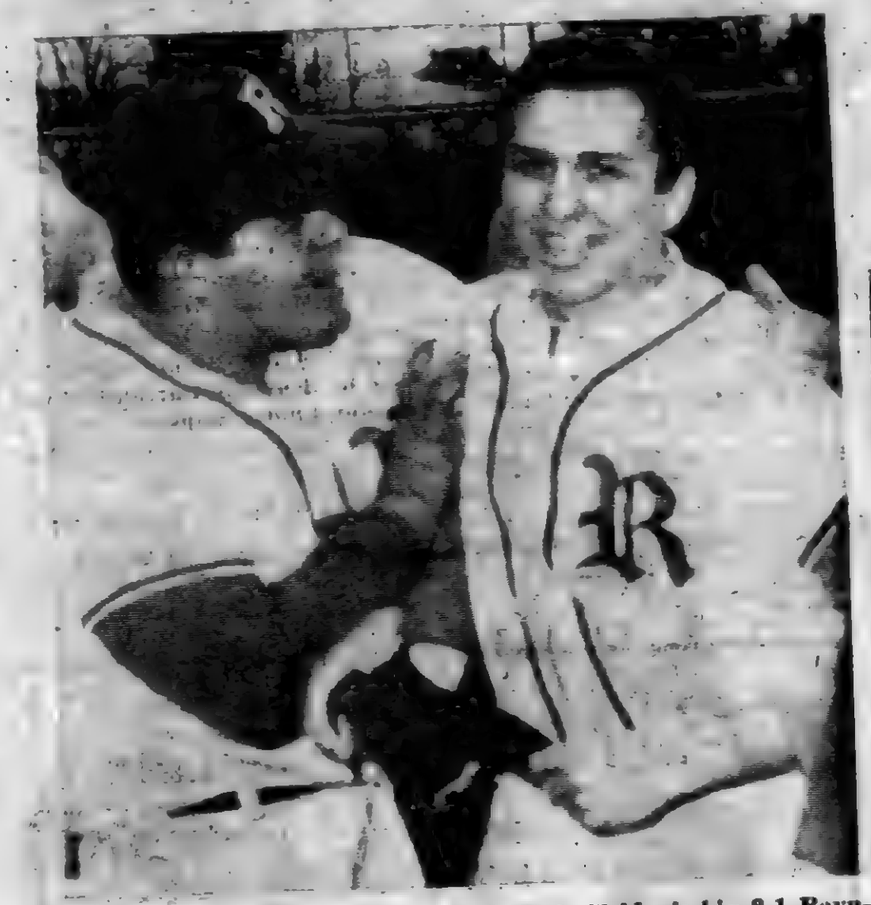
"The only unfortunate thing is I haven't really seen any of our pitchers throw but Gary (Shade)," Brown added, indicating that junior Steve Pinnick will be seeing more service in the near future.

Brown discovered that "we've got more hitting depth than I'd thought we'd have" at Whitehall. "Some of our kids who haven't been hitting well came through there."

THE RAIDERS collected nine safeties vs. the Rams—none from Shade and only one from Denny Spires, Reynoldsburg's one-two batting punch.

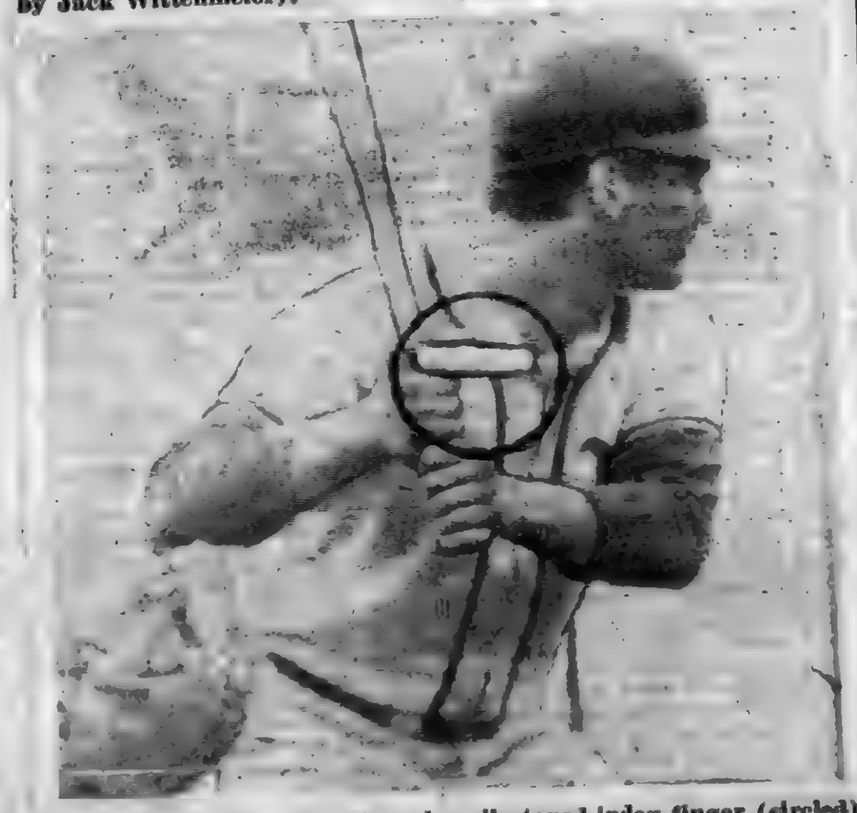
Spires, playing with a badly cut index finger, still managed an RBI Friday and Brown indicated the senior slugger will remain in the starting lineup (left field).

Neither Shade or Spires' hits were really needed vs. Whitehall after Phil Nolan arrived at the plate with the bases jammed in the sixth frame and delivered with a grand-slam homer.



NOLAN ALSO singled in the game and joined teammate Tim Wolfe (two singles) for hitting honors. The nine-hit Raider attack was plenty to back up Shade, who fanned 11 and allowed but four hits.

The win over the Falcons was a bit more frantic after a walk, F-H's lone hit off Shade and a costly error provided the defending District tourney co-champs with a 2-0 lead after four innings.



Reynoldsburg bounced right back, however, with three of their own in the fifth. Spires was safe on an error, stole second and went to third on Tim Wolfe's single.

SHADE THEN delivered with a double to knot the count and set the stage for Nolan's game-winning safety.

Gary, who also fanned 11 in this one, paced hitting with a pair of doubles.

MIGHTY POKE — The biggest hit in Friday's big 8-1 Reynoldsburg victory over the arch-Metropolitan League rival Whitehall came in a five-run sixth frame when Raider Phil Nolan cashed in on a grand-slam homer. Above, Nolan (at right) receives congratulations at home plate from teammate Jerry Milliron, whose borrowed bat Nolan employed for his jackpot poke. (Staff photo by Jack Wittenmeier).

RBI AHEAD — Despite a heavily-taped index finger (circled) resulting from a work accident, Reynoldsburg's Denny Spires ripped an RBI single through the box seconds after this picture was snapped.

Reynoldsburg BB Signup Set Saturday

All Reynoldsburg boys between the ages of seven and 15 who wish to play in the Youth Baseball League this summer must register Saturday between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. at the Municipal Building.

Team assignment (tryouts) will be made Saturday, April 29. There will be a small fee charged for caps, shirts and probably insurance.

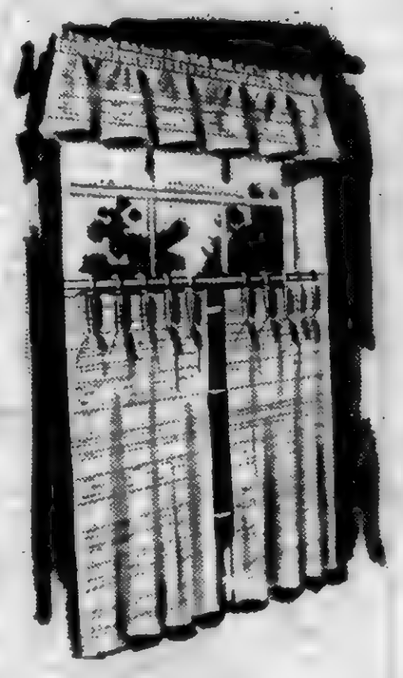
Any Reynoldsburg men who would like to coach or officiate in the Youth Baseball program should sign up Saturday at the Municipal Building.

Reynoldsburg Cindermen Eye Records

Record and near record performances have been turned in by Bill Hayes' Raider cindermen this spring.

High jumper Terry Miller turned the trick in that event during a recent 68-59 dual win over Teays Valley—and lost!

MILLER'S 5 ft. 11 in. effort took a second place but Terry added a first in the 100 (:10.8).



Miller has also approached the broad jump standard (20 ft. 6¾ in.) this season with a 20 ft. 3¾ ins. effort vs. Whitehall and P-V.

Monty Hayes won the 440 (:55.6) and then came from some 30 yards behind to cop the mile relay event with Rick Back, Dave Goss and Jerry Prater.

Christenson rewrote the school two-mile mark (his own) with a 10:13.5 effort during a 74-53 setback to Bexley last week.

Hayes came close to the Reynoldsburg 440 mark (:51.6) with a :52 flat quarter-mile victory. Hayes also won the pole vault event vs. Bexley as did Miller the high jump.

Your Weekly Knit Clinic

This classic box sweater (pattern 112) modeled by television actress Edy Williams features a baby cable pattern stitch on the front trim, the mandarin collar and the cuffs. This pattern is knitted onto the sweater after completion of the bodice. Illustrated instructions are available in sizes 12-22. To obtain pattern 112, send 75 cents to Ursula duBois, Spectator Newspapers, Box 3307, Van Nuys, Calif., 91407.

Never trust your measuring tape completely. For an even looking garment, measure only the length of the back. When you are knitting the front pieces, count your rows to comply with the rows knitted for the back to assure an absolutely even fit. We all tend to cheat a little bit after the back is finished and we are laboring on the front. We catch ourselves pulling them a little bit here and there to match the length of the back. This works fine until the garment is to be put together. The back looks nice and even, but those two fronts look "thinched up" and thus the garment has a very uneven finished look. So don't cheat—count!

And here is another hint for a professional looking hem. When fashioning a garment that has a knitted hem be sure to knit the hem part that is to be turned up with a smaller needle size. If the yarn is used double (two strands) for the garment, then use the same needle size for the hem part, but only one strand of yarn. Either way, the hem is best worked in the following manner:

Cast on needed amount of stitches. Work in stockinette stitch of knit one row, purl one row for about one inch; end with a purl row. Purl next row again. This is for turn of hem (hem turning row). Then continue in stockinette stitch as before. If a single yarn and a smaller needle is used, change to a larger needle at hem turning row. If a double yarn and same size needle as needed for the whole garment are used, start using second strand of yarn at the hem turning row.

Miss duBois welcomes mail from readers but cannot give a personal answer. She will discuss and pass on the most interesting questions and hints.

PAL's Receptacles Go In Place Monday

PAL committee members boast that they can be spotted by their bulging pockets.

With this statement the men who are behind the Program Against Littering which is dedicated to making Columbus the "cleanest city in the nation" aren't claiming to be well-heeled.

INSTEAD THEY are declaring they prefer to use their pockets as always handy litter bags to cluttering the city streets.

Well aware having bulging pockets is not a very practical approach to the problem, PAL has invested most of its budget (a $7,000 appropriation from the service department) to the purchase of 200 glorified trash baskets which will go into place in the residential areas of the city next week.

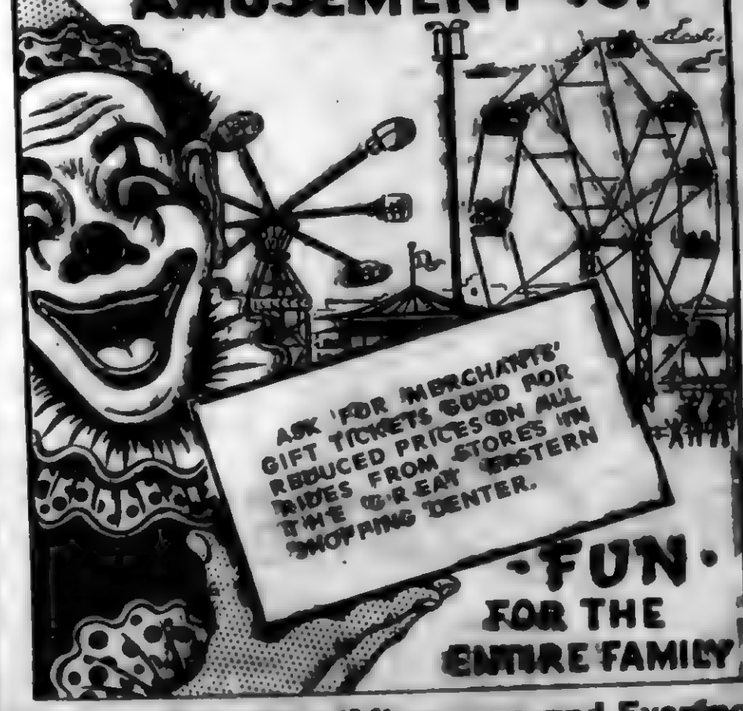
Brilliantly striped in red and white and bearing the PAL emblem, "Be a PAL . . . Put 'er There," contributed by artist Bill Archer, the receptacles are considered the first step in the right direction.

[illegible] Roy Stage of the Retail Merchants Association who is chairman of the civic committee appointed by Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner last year, it will take 2,000 cans to adequately protect Columbus against the one type of bug that must be domesticated rather than exterminated — the litterbug.

Thus civic groups throughout the city are invited to be a PAL to their neighborhoods through sponsorship of additional refuse containers.

Each of the receptacles cost about $31, (it is hoped this figure can be cut) and those purchased through area groups will bear the names of the organization.

[illegible] EMPHASIZED that a donor's responsibility ends with the original purchase. The city sanitation department will empty the cans regularly and keep them sparkling clean, inside and out with a truck-mounted steam jetty which includes sanitizing equipment.



Placing of the new containers serves as a kick-off for the Columbus Area Chamber of Commerce's official clean-up campaign April 28 through May 7.

Among PAL's other contributions to the anti-litter campaign are pledge cards now being distributed to elementary school children encouraging them to keep their city clean and billboard promotion for the program on 30 signs donated by the Columbus Outdoor Advertising Company.

PAL is also setting up a speakers bureau to spread the word to groups interested in community improvement.

The number of high school graduates in the nation is not expected to increase as fast in the next 10 years as it did in the last decade. The increase between 1955-56 and 1965-66 was 54 percent. WIVE LA REVOLUTION!

A revolution has occurred in the essential hair-styling salons. How long will it last? Who can tell? However, right now our most fashionable gals prefer softly tumbled hairstyles worn close to the head. The main difficulty for this group of glamor-seekers is that creations use no support for expensive hairstyles and they are very much "gone with the wind." I hate to seem to be telling you something that is apparent that you should know that the answer lies in the new "foundation wave." It is an unusually permanent which merely enables your set to last in spite of wind or damp weather. This is not a "do it yourselfer" in spite of all the TV ads. Ask your hairstylist, she'll explain it all to you.

MAY YET PREVAIL .....

Do you have one too? Well, mine are the TV ads that insult my intelligence. I mean, for instance, the beauty contest winner who first appears with her hair rolled for a permanent wave. Then suddenly she appears with her hair alluringly styled in a manner that anyone can see required a highly skilled artist and she says very girlishly, "I did it all myself. Mr. Clairol helped me comb it out!" Just helped? Come on now! You've got to be kidding!

TO ANSWER YOUR QUESTION:

I've had an entire cold question in the mail. I hope you won't think it morbid for I'd like to answer my reader. She asks if it is true that hair grows after death. I consulted Dr. Irwin Ladowe, M.D., in thermalright of some considerable eminence and he says, "Of course not! It is part of the body and dies when the body dies. Upon death the skin around the hair follicles contracts, and as it does look like hair seems to lengthen." Another old wives tale exploded.

UNDER THE DRYER

Nature is wonderful. A million years ago, she didn't know we were going to be wearing glasses, yet look at the way she placed our ears.

Area SF Reservists Return From 2-Week Alaskan Training

A 28-man group of Army Reserve Green Berets from the Columbus area returned home this weekend from a two-week siege of survival training in Alaska.

The course in northern warfare techniques was held at Fort Greeley, termed the coldest place in Alaska, where the temperature ranged from zero to 30 degrees during the two weeks that began March 31.

Major Lloyd R. Runkle of 2638 McVey-bl, Worthington, of Company D, Second Special Forces, led the training mission, with the use of skis as a means of survival and transportation.

Although only two of the group had ever been on skis before, there were no major injuries, only the normal bumps and bruises in the wasteland around Fort Greeley.

The northern warfare training center is located 105 miles southeast of Fairbanks amid both flatlands and rolling country of forests and tundra.

Runkle said about three and one-half feet of snow was on the ground at all times during the two weeks, which ended when the reservists returned home about midnight Saturday.

Mayor Announces USO Fund Campaign

Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner has asked Columbus residents to chip in "any amount you feel you want to invest in democracy" in a campaign aimed at raising funds to beef up Columbus' USO centers and activities.

The mayor announced creation of a USO Fund which the city will administer "to provide a revolving entertainment fund and to buy a USO bus to transport our servicemen and women while here in our All-American city."

First two contributions to the fund came from Air Force Tech. Sgt. Herbert G. White and Maj. Gen. Erwin Hostetler, Ohio Adjutant General.

"They know how much good USO does for service people," the mayor said. "It's a home away from home. Let's show our servicemen that Columbus and Franklin County care."

Contributions can be sent to City Treasurer Hugh Dorrian or to the mayor's office at City Hall.

The mayor said more young women were needed to staff the three area USO centers at Ft. Hayes, Lockbourne Air Force Base and Port Columbus. Girls can get information on the hostess program from USO headquarters at 228-4170.

NO DEFERMENTS

College students should not be deferred from the draft, U. S. Commissioner of Education Harold Howe II told a Senate labor subcommittee. Howe said that it was his personal feeling that military service is likely to enrich, not hamper a young man's schooling.

A junior showmanship competition for boys and girls from eight to 16 years will also highlight the benefit event.

Supporting groups include the Scottish Terrier Club of Northern Ohio, the Ohio St. Bernard Club, Scioto Shetland Sheepdog Club and the Columbus Ohio Boxer Club.

Herbert Miller is show chairman. Tickets will be available at the door.

Walnut Ridge Faces West Friday After Putting Bite On Whetstone

By BOB WHITMAN,
Spectator Staff Writer

Walnut Ridge had a flash of the 1966 Central District co-champion team in it last week.

Don Wynkoop's Scots ironed out a few mistakes from their 5-4 loss to North to mow down powerful Whetstone on Keith Brown's one-hitter, 1-0.

THAT SETS at least another City Leaguer, who was supposed to be rebuilding this year into the "might-be" class in the City League diamond race this spring.

Walnut Ridge will get another chance to tackle an all-vet foe this Friday as Wynkoop's nifty nine hosts West (3-0 as of Monday).

"I HAVE been real pleased so far this year," said the youthful Wynkoop, "our kids have played together since junior high so I know what they can do."

Don listed sophomore third baseman Jeff Little as the squad's leading hitter with a .315 mark, and mentioned Terry McCray, Ronnie Fish and Roger McElroy as key fielders thus far this season for his Scotties (2-1).

Wynkoop wasn't at all surprised that his Scots stopped Paul Eckelberry's Braves, but was a little taken back at the flashy one-hitter junior Keith Brown fashioned to do the job.

"HE ONLY used 79 pitches (52 of which were strikes)," Don said, "and he had a stiff neck throughout the game."

Brown was Wynkoop's selection to hurl against previously unbeaten north-siders (5-0), but Keith took a bang on the neck during warm-ups when a mate's toss went awry.

THAT AND a second inning line drive (which turned out to be the only hit he gave up) clipped him on the top of the head to make matters all the worse for the fireballing 11th grader.

Things brightened when when sophomore Little singled in the fifth to start the Scots' winning rally.

ROGER McELROY doubled Little to third and Terry McCray sacrificed home the winning run with a fly out to center.

LINE DRIVES: Drawings for the Central District Class A and Class AA Baseball tournament will take place Monday (AA) and Tuesday (A) at Williard's Restaurant in Bexley. . . . Hartley's newcomers who moved over from Rosary have been strong pitching help for Jack Ryan's Hawks: Charlie Masterson handled North 2-0 last week on a five-hitter while Jim Schaeffer dropped Marion Franklin 4-2 on his five-hitter. . . . Marion Franklin was also a victim of East in diamond play last week with sophomore standout Ed Ratleff winging a two hitter in stopping the Red Devils, 3-1 . . . Academy, who came up with a 12-4 win over Canal Winchester last week in the opening round of Franklin County League hosts Dublin, who were tagged with the preseason favorite mark.

WIBC President Alberta E. Crowe.

Northland High's Boosters are sponsoring a headpin tourney at Capri, weekends through April 30. Clinton Lanes is under way with qualifying in its "Big Bonus Bowl-off." It is scratch and leads to head-to-head competition on May 20-21.

Elder and Epler (914) and 3 C Lanes (906) of Columbus are among 68 teams with averages of 900 or better entered in the WIBC, opening April 13, at Rochester, N. Y.

700's still deluge the city. Topping the list is the 756 (268-255-233) by Joe Kristoff in the Amos Doubles. Then add Stan Kreczowski's 729 in the Main Classic and Frank DelCol's 712 (after a 287 starter) at Holiday.

Bob Dardinger had 19 out of a possible 20 strikes in a stretch in his 279-694 at Amos. Leroy Tucked bagged a 280-212-247 for 730 to set an all-time record at Piketon.

The ladies plunged high with Peg Whitney's 257-667 for Dale Cleaners at Olentangy Village; Betty Shankle gained 240-661 at Northern Lights and Sarah Belcastro banged out 257-637 at Western.

BEING all-inclusive, bowling is easily the most sociable of all games and therein lies its strength. The backbone of the sport in this country are the teams and leagues from offices, factories and mills which have bowled two or three evenings a week for years.

Anybody from the boss to the office boy is eligible on equal grounds and — for that simple reason — practically every leading concern in the country has fostered bowling as the ideal breeder of improved industrial relations.

When you first try bowling you may find that the 16 pound ball is too heavy for comfort. So use a lightweight ball: you'll find all weights in the rack.

YOU WILL also discover that laying the ball down on the boards isn't quite so simple as it looked: usually you heave it and bounce it so awkwardly at first that it wobbles off into the gutter and accomplishes nothing.

Unless you are amazingly inept, however, several of your first half-dozen balls will miraculously remain on the lanes all the way down to the end.

And once you've seen a couple of sturdy pins clonk against each other and then topple out of sight, you've gotten the taste of blood that will never be completely satiated.

RICHARD L. PAUGH

I spent a very enjoyable day at Hargus Lake — just east of Circleville — last Saturday with my eight-year-old son, Tim. The occasion was the first annual Trout Derby thrown by the Pickaway County Sportsmen's Club and the Division of Wildlife.

PAUGH

There were many reasons to be there. First, I had heard the 175-acre lake was a fine place to catch fish — bass, muskies and crappies. Second, the Club dumped in 1,000 rainbow trout. Third, 30 of the trout had been tagged and the lucky anglers who took tagged fish would walk away with some real fine prizes.

BOTH TIM and I had a real fine time. I took my camera and got some fine pictures of stringers full of bass and trout. The weather was perfect and the crowd numbered over 1,000.

The next such Trout Derby will be May. 12-13-14 at Shawnee Forest. I attended the first Shawnee trout affair last year and, believe me, if you have a hankering to catch trout, this will be the best offer you'll ever get.

It's a family affair with trailer and tent space. Set those three days back and live it up a bit.

SHAWNEE Forest — just west of Portsmouth off Route 52 — is a giant tract of state-owned land that offers hidden lakes, magnificent views and room to roam in its 56,000 acres.

For more information on the Portsmouth Trout Derby, write to the Portsmouth Chamber of Commerce.

MY GOOD friend, Dick Kotis (president of Arbogast Baits in Akron) has taken a page from the golfer's book of tricks. He, accompanied by Division of Wildlife Chief Danny Armbruster, will visit famous fishing waters in each part of the state. They will go out and fish however they wish.

All fishermen beating the pro will receive recognition in the form of a certificate. It's all in fun and no big money rides on the outcome.

I'm going to try my hand at "Beating the Pro" — why don't you?

KOTIS AND Armbruster will fish Buckeye Lake on Tuesday, May 2. Anglers wishing to compete against them will fish the following Saturday and Sunday.

For those of you who prefer Burr Oak Lake, Kotis will fish there Apr. 29, and competing fishermen may try their luck the following weekend (May 6-7).

I understand there will be people on hand to check your catch. Anyone catching 10 fish

Missing a 300 by one pin is heartbreaking—so Chuck Matson had a heartbreaking 299 at Wink-O, part of a 667 series.

The same night Dick Muir, left a 10 pin in the first frame —then went all the way for 290 in the Schoolteachers League at Olentangy Village.

Kuhns, Winigman Awarded Chick Evans Scholarships

Two area youths are listed among the 22 recipients of Chick Evans college scholarships this year.

Winners are: Robert J. Kuhns, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Kuhns of 4046 Uralav. Bob, a senior at Whitehall-Yearling, caddied at the Columbus Country Club;

The scholarships to OSU, which are awarded by the Ohio Golf Association, cover full tuition and housing at the Evans Scholars Chapter house in Columbus and are renewable for four years. Total value is about $3000.

Area Thins Eye Relay Titles At OSU, Springfield, Toledo

By JACK WITTENMEIER
Spectator Sports Editor

Relays at OSU, Springfield and Toledo gain the attention area cindermen Saturday as the '67 high school track season adds another page to its spring calendar.

Ten Spectator-area squads will head for Ohio Stadium Saturday for the 43rd running of the Ohio Relays — an event which annually provides the cinder fan with both collegiate and schoolboy action.

PRELIMS FOR the 25-event card (six high school, 19 collegiate events) are set for 10 a.m.—kicking off with the schoolboy 880 relays.

Finals will get under way at 12:30 with the running of the collegiate three-mile run.

The college rundown includes six relay events, six individual track events and seven field events (javelin throw included this spring).

HIGH SCHOOL events include: the high hurdles, mile, 880 relay, mile relay, two-mile relay and 100-yd. dash.

The latter event (set for 2:25 p.m.) is by invitation only and pits the eight top dashmen in the state against one another.

Meet director Fred Beckman had not as yet compiled the eight-man lineup (eight fastest times) at press time but the list could include West's Ted Biggers, Whetstone's Bill Ismon and/or Bruce Kaplan and Linden's Larry Davis—all four of whom have flirted with the :10 mark this spring already.

SHAKIEST of the six high event records looks like the mile (4:26.6). Worthington's John Titus has already been clocked in 4:24.5 in that event this spring and could threaten the existing record held jointly by Worthington graduate Jeff Eckart (1962) and Dayton Jefferson's Rick Poole (1964).

Titus won the mile at the '66 Ohio Relays which saw Worthington pace area high schools.

Besides the mile victory, the Cardinals came home with wins in the two-mile (Bill Hicks, Ralph Lowery, Steve Romohr, Greg Swenson) and mile (Hicks, Romohr, Swenson, Lamero Washington) relay events.

ANOTHER area threat to standing Relay marks might be Whetstone's 880 relay unit (Ismon, Kaplan, Gary Kopp, Jim Huber) which isn't too much above the existing 1:30.7 time.

Schoolboy event winners will receive lapel pins with ribbons going to those finishing second through fifth.

Ohio Relays admission price will be $1.50.

BECKMAN expects between 18 and 20 collegiate squads to send representatives for that division.

Included on that list will be OSU, Michigan, Michigan State, Indiana, Purdue of the Big Ten, Ohio University, Miami and Kent State of the Mid-American Conference plus Kentucky U., Kentucky, State, Tennessee, Eastern Michigan, Wayne State and track clubs in Chicago and Detroit.

Area schools competing at Saturday's Ohio Relays include Walnut Ridge, Worthington, Reynoldsburg, Whetstone, Eastmoor, North, West, Pleasant View, Brookhaven and Linden.

Here are the existing high school standards:

100 — :9.6 (Craig Wallace, '65, East Knight, Earl Rudy, '65 and Dayton Jefferson relay); John Brockman, '66); 880 — 1:54.3 (R. Gaworth, Dayton Dunbar, '62); 880 R. — 1:30.4 (Worthington's Jeff Eckart, '62 and Dayton Jefferson's Rick Poole, '64); Mile R. — 1:36.7 (Dayton Dunbar, '62 and Cols. Central, '62); MILE R. — 3:23.8 (Cleveland John Adams, '65); TWO-MILE R. — 8:03.3 (Dayton Chaminade, '64).

SPRINGFIELD RELAYS

FIVE OF the area's top track squads—Arlington, Hilliard, South, Central and East—will attempt to keep Columbus-area cinder prestige high in Springfield's Evans Stadium Saturday.

Columbus teams have fared well at the Relays during the past decade and UA's Golden Bears will be gunning for a repeat title this year.

The 19th annual Springfield Relays offer both "AA" and "A" competition with action opening at 9 a.m. (prelims).

"AA" FIELD event finals get under way at 1 p.m. with track finals beginning one hour later.

South mentor Bob Bateman reports his Bulldogs will journey to Springfield with almost a full team (South will enter all but four events) for the first time in the history of Bob participation at the Relays.

Batemen and his fellow coaches will be keeping their collective fingers crossed for sunny skits and warm temperatures Saturday — two ingredients which have seldom visited the Relays in its long history.

THE RELAYS were rained out in '65 and were run under cold and dready conditions last spring.

Area hopes in the record-shattering department will likely lie in Hilliard's discus trio which will be shooting for the 426 ft., 3½ in. record set by South in 1964.

The Wildcat trio of Pete Miller (184), Bruce Adams (155') and Chuck Boyer (130') have easily bettered (472' 5") the existing mark with top flings this spring — but will have to put together top efforts Saturday to crack the record.

THE BULK of South hopes for victory (and record breaking) should come in the 880 and mile relay events—two Bulldog strong points this spring.

Odds-on local favorite, however, will be Dick Larkin's Golden Bears, who cracked a pair of records (shuttle hurdles, broad jump) themselves while winning six events last spring.

Here are the existing Springfield records.

440 R. — :43.4 (Springfield South, '62); DISTANCE MEDLEY — 2:40.3 (Dayton Chaminade, '64); SHUTTLE HURDLES — :54.7 (UA team of Lee, Hayward, Cameron, Sanders, '66); MILE R. — 3:26 (Dayton Dunbar, '62); SPRINT MEDLEY — 1:35.2 (Columbus Central, '64); TWO-MILE R. — 8:13.5 (Dayton Chaminade, '64); 880 R. — 1:30.3 (Springfield South, '62); BJ — 6' 3½" (UA team of Spies, Chase, Moore, '66); PV — 14' 10" (Marion Harding, '63); SP — 157' 5½" (Dayton Dunbar, '62); HJ — 17'11" (Dayton Dunbar, '62 and Cols. TOLEDO RELAYS

LOCALITES Gahanna and Whitehall have a long day in store for themselves Saturday at the third annual Toledo relays, a composite "A" and "AA" meet sponsored by the Blade newspaper.

The Rams and Lions will be the lone Columbus-area cinder squads included in the 75-school lineup which will span a three-state (Ohio, Michigan and Indiana) area.

Prelims will get started at 9 a.m. with field finals set for 2 p.m. and tracks finals going under the lights at 7.

THE TOLEDO Relays will include all 15 regular track and field events and is scheduled for Maumee's Lucas Recreation Center (home of the Toledo Mud Hens of the IL).

Winning participants (first five places) will receive medals.

"Best bets in the dual and triangular competition on area ovals this week look like East's visit to West tomorrow (Thursday), Hilliard's stopoff at Gahanna Tuesday and Arlington, South and West's tri-meet on the Cowboy cinders the same afternoon.

I just spent a pleasant morning reading a beautiful book sent to me by St. Regis Paper Company. It's a series of 12 colorfully illustrated lessons on our American forests and their growth.

IT'S AN expensive book to print and I don't imagine they would relish sending them out in great bales but I do believe that — if you are a school teacher or Scout leader — they might bust loose with a copy for your group.

Check with the Public Relations Department, St. Regis Paper Company, 150 E. 42nd Street, N.Y., N. Y. (10017) and ask for its "The Trees and the Forests."

Laundry Room Needs Extras

If you plan to set up a laundry area, you'll need more than a washer and dryer.

Building Supply News advises that for convenience and working ease you should also have countertop space for sorting and folding (the area can also serve for gift-wrapping and flower arranging), a hamper for soiled linen, a mobile cart for transporting clothes before and after washing, cabinets or shelves for detergents, bleaches and other laundry aids, and a sit-down area for mending.

Right Tools Make Good Power Play

When the home handyman is ready to make his power play, a few basic tools will get him started.

The most versatile power tool for the do-it-yourselfer, according to the editors of Building Supply News, is the portable ¼-inch drill.

The term, ¼ inch, refers to the size of shank the drill chuck will accept. Equipped with expansion bits, the ¼-inch drill can drill holes up to several inches in diameter.

In addition to drilling holes in wood and metal, this versatile tool can be fitted with accessories for grinding, honing, polishing, shaping, sanding, wire brushing, and paint stirring. Equipped with a special stand, it can be used as a drill press. In some cases, the drill can be converted into a power saw or other power tool.

A portable saw is another basic tool for home handymen. The two main types are the circular saw and the sabre saw.

The circular saw is ideal for straight cutting of lumber or large boards. A six-inch model can rip or crosscut a 2x4 board at a 45-degree angle.

The sabre saw, which has a straight blade that moves up and down, is better for making curved cuts or when working with thin panels of plywood or hardboard.

For the most accurate cutting, mitering and grooving of lumber, either a table saw or radial saw is best. Both use a circular blade. But the blade of the table saw is stationary and cuts from below, whereas the blade of a radial saw is suspended from above. The radial saw moves forward on a track while the work to be cut remains stationary.

Another valuable power tool for the home, according to Building Supply News, is the power sander.

Housewives Point Way To Well-Planned Kitchen

The average homemaker qualifies as a kitchen expert because she spends 60 percent of her work day there.

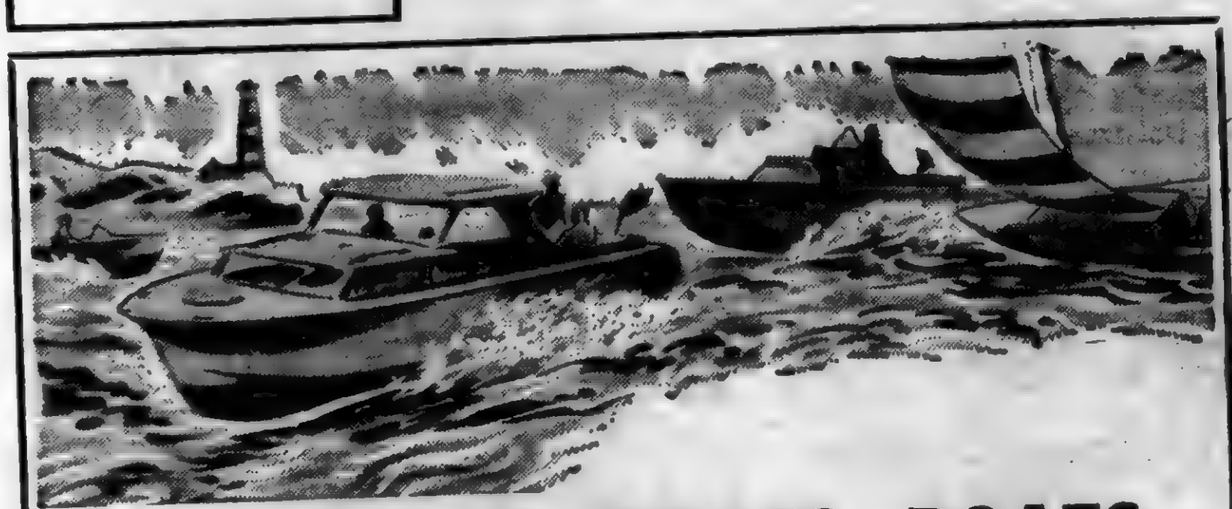
Unfortunately, says the Economic Research Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, her opinion isn't solicited often enough by designers, architects or builders. The result is that many kitchens, even in new homes, are poorly planned, inconvenient or inefficient.

"Most women," says a Service spokesman, "live with several kitchens, and use — or do without — various kinds of equipment before they are sure of their individual wants." But, they do have a number of kitchen problems in common. Often there are too few, or inaccessible, cabinets, not enough countertop space, undersized sinks, and hard-to-clean surfaces. In many instances, poor kitchen layout causes wasted time and steps.

One way women can make up for kitchen faults is by remodeling. Building Supply News states that it's the homemaker who initiates kitchen modernization and chooses the appliances, layout and decor. She may make do for a while with a less-than-ideal-kitchen, but she's quite specific about her needs when the decision is made to remodel.

To meet her demands, most building supply centers now offer a wide variety of kitchen equipment, as well as appropriate wall and floor coverings and decorative accessories. The idea is to provide all kitchen remodeling needs in one-stop shopping.

The retailers have discovered that when a woman plans a "new" kitchen, the keynote is usually convenience. She looks for up-to-date appliances with handy time-and-work-saving features, lots of storage and countertop space, easy-to-clean wall and floor surfaces, and innovations such as adjustable and revolving cabinet shelves, self-closing drawers, cutting boards and tray racks.



She also wants the most efficient kitchen layout possible. Many building supply centers now offer a planning service and feature full or partial model kitchen displays emphasizing efficiency in rooms of various sizes and shapes.

The most efficient design, according to the experts, is the "triangle" placement of major kitchen work areas. This means setting the range, refrigerator-freezer, and sink and dishwasher at equidistant points of a triangle, with no more than seven feet between each appliance. Time and motion studies show that this arrangement gives the homemaker plenty of elbow room while saving her the greatest number of steps. An added advantage of the triangle is that it can be set up in any of the four most usual types of kitchen: L-shaped, U-shaped, one-wall or corridor. The spaces between appliances should be filled in with cabinets and countertops to provide adequate storage and work space.

When redesigning their kitchens, women want to make them attractive as well as practical. Building Supply News says there's a trend toward kitchens with a warm, family-room atmosphere rather than the traditional sterile white look. In choosing equipment for a more hospitable kitchen, women are aided by the availability of appliances with colored, patterned or textured finishes, wood-grained or colored cabinets, resilient flooring in interesting or unusual designs and wall surfaces that are stain and dirt-resistant.

A lot of kitchens, including many in new homes, fall short on efficiency, convenience and space. According to Building Supply News, many homeowners are remodeling to get assets like the roomy countertops, cabinet storage and handy work areas shown above.

Casual Furnishings Give 'Party Feeling' To Room

This season's casual furnishings have important plus factors for those who like their furniture to serve double duty. New styles now in retail stores will be just as attractive and useful in the den, family room or television area during the winter as they are practical and functional on the patio porch or lanai for summer.

In their new groupings, manufacturers of summer and casual furniture have concentrated on creating new important styles and also on improving comfort qualities to make the furniture usable all year.

One of the favorite materials used in outdoor furniture, redwood, has taken a style turn, making it attractively useful in family rooms and dens. Formerly considered very rugged and restricted to rustic designs, this season's offerings in redwood have refined lines, improved construction and are softened with gay fabrics and vinyls — even to gold and white. This adds to its appeal for indoor use instead of being stacked up outside or tustled off to a storage room during the winter.

Whatever, Mrs. Consumer fancies, there is a style available to complement or mix with her indoor furnishings. Wrought iron and steel in Spanish and Mediterranean design as well as modern and Early American are being offered in retail stores. Some are light in scale.

One new group for casual dining and seating features continental height to stress the "party" feeling for outdoors. Table designs are just as functional for a patio party as for an informal gathering in the family room when the weather turns cold. An especially practical one can be lowered to serve as a coffee table and then raised to act as a dining table.

The refined look of new casual pieces is further carried out by the use of soft fabrics where coverings are used. Patterns range from gay flowered prints to big bold stripes to checks and the furry look. Fur is still a favorite material and a group of bamboo beds offered by one manufacturer wears zebra coverings. Camp chairs are seated top and bottom in black and white or known and white (real) calfskins.

Color runs wild and just like "basic black," white is still smart but it is often teamed up with bright shades of orange, yellow, pink, blue, green and red for special effects—another effort to color indoors as bright as the outdoors.

Folding aluminum groups show combinations of aluminum with redwood, vinyl webbing, vinyl cord, polyfoam cushions for chaises, settees, chairs and rockers. Speaking of rockers, one design in wrought metal swivels completely around and rocks at the same time.

Practical features of new designs include light weight construction to make them easy to move about, yet they are sturdy enough to withstand heavy winds when used outdoors. Painted finishes are rust resistant and prove more durable to all kinds of weather and use.

When it comes to choosing furniture, the size of the room should be kept in mind. Massive pieces make a room smaller and too small or scattered furnishings in a large room make them seem to be rattling around in a void.

With space at a premium, the desirable goal is a "fluid" or flowing room, a room with directed motion and the feeling of spaciousness. Because of high costs, high rises and modernization of choice older dwellings, the multi-purpose interior is frequently the answer. Suggested divisions may then be used to define the area for living, sleeping or eating.

Solutions

Shoji screens that admit light are one solution; portieres made of strings of beads another, and a rare carved chest or other unusual piece are all popular methods of changing the shape of the room to serve its many functions without destracing from its agreeable proportions.

Reception rooms are sometimes suggested by a narrow chest and mirror or a pair of topiary trees, or a railing. Mirrors, properly placed, are one of the simplest ways of increasing the size or changing the shape of a room.

New Colors Give Room New Look

Spring is the time for redecorating, and one of the easiest ways to give an entirely different look to a room is to change its colors.

Color can be very tricky, especially when trying to match one fabric color with another. Artificial light and daylight also change the shade of the fabric. It is always wise to match colors in daylight. Different fabrics will take the dye, color differently and dye lots will vary.

Whether it's fabrics, wallcovering, paint or carpet, when trying to match a color it is always safer to take a sample with you if possible. By doing this, it will save you time, and the sales people will be able to give you more help in your selection.

Today we will discuss particular problems of three different clients and how we achieved the effect each wanted. The pictures show the end result for each room.

In the living room, top, right, my client wanted a semi-informal effect but she also liked the Old World feeling without the den look.

This problem was solved by giving the room a touch of the Old World feeling through the use of accessories, shag carpet, and certain pieces of furniture. The color scheme of dark woods, avacado, champagne, and soft melon gave a semi-formal feeling when looking at the room.

In contrast, the den (bottom, left) is contemporary. The client wanted contemporary, using hot pink, orange and purple. By using this color scheme properly, it did not become gaudy. We used the hot pink as the dominant color, orange the subdominate with accents of purple. The warm colors added a richness to the paneling and brick. The large picture over the fireplace is the dramatic point of the room—it has all the colors used in the room. The end result was a room that is very rich, warm, and inviting.

Kitchens can be delightful rooms (botom, right). Because my client spends much time in her kitchen, she wanted something different. The color scheme we chose is very refreshing—pale yellow quartz, soft white, old gold with accents of olive and burnt orange. The olive wrought-iron light fixture is unusual and adds interest. The unusual drapery treatment contrasted with the use of shutters, is one you do not expect to find in a kitchen. This element of surprise can be very successful when done properly.

If you have not yet decided what you will do this spring to brighten up your home, remember by just changing some of your accent pieces or changing the colors of throw pillows will give an entirely different look to a room.

If you have a decorating problem, please send your questions to Your Home Is Your Castle, Nancy M. Lucks, N.S.I.D., care of The Spectator, 2465 W. Broad Street, Columbus, Ohio 43204.

The use of various pieces of furniture and a shag rug has given this living room of Mr. and Mrs. William Belford a touch of the Old World and a semi-formal atmosphere.

The contemporary color scheme of this den of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Brown, utilizing hot pink and purple, has prevented the richness of the fireplace and the paneled walls from becoming gaudy.

This room done in soft yellows and golds, is proof that kitchens can have personalities of their own. The olive, wrought-iron chandelier adds interest to the room.

Woodin Sales Company Represents Toro Mowers

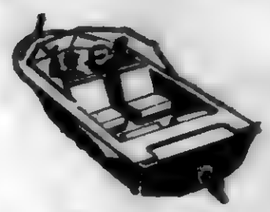
The Toro Manufacturing Company, the world's largest manufacturer of turf care equipment, is being represented in 24 Central and Southeastern Ohio counties for the 19th consecutive year by Woodin Sales Company, 1050 W. Goodale-blvd.

Located in Minneapolis, Toro has annual sales exceeding $33 million. Their equipment includes reel and rotary power mowers for home and institutional use, garden tillers, golf course maintenance equipment, Moist O'Matic automatic underground lawn sprinkler systems and snow throwers. This year a complete selection of new Toro lawn and suburban tractors is being introduced.

Woodin Sales Co. occupies this large showroom and office complex on Goodale Boulevard. Woodin represents Toro mowers, Emerson television and hi-fi systems, Hamilton washers and dryers and other lines.

More than 100 retail dealers are currently represented by Woodin Sales, the Toro wholesale distributor.

A complete choice of Emerson radios, stereos and hi-fi phonographs, black and white televisions, color televisions, and tape recorders is also made available to the retailers through Woodin Sales. In addition, for the first time a three-year picture tube warranty—a one-year factory and two-year extended warranty contract—is being offered on all Emerson television sets.



Beginning this year, Woodin is also the local distributor for Hamilton gas and electric dryers and electric washers. The Hamilton Manufacturing Company of Two Rivers, Wis., was the originator of the first automatic clothes dryer in 1938. Now, Hamilton has introduced the first automatic clothes dryer equipped with a solid state ignition system and a Teflon-coated drum.

The fourth large product line available at Woodin is the Chrysler Airtemp room air conditioner. Manufactured in Dayton by a division of the Chrysler Corporation, Airtemp offers thirty-three completely different styles and sizes for year-round living ease.

In addition to these products, Woodin also represents Dominion and Dormeyer small appliances, Arvin electric heaters, and Clinton, Tecumseh, Kohler, and Briggs & Stratton single cylinder engines.

Woodin Sales Company has been in business in Columbus since 1953. A former company, R. E. Woodin Sales, has been in operation since 1938. Ralph E. Smith, the firm's president, stated that Woodin products are represented by more than 200 retail dealers throughout the Central and Southeastern Ohio area. For all products sold, Woodin stocks a complete inventory of service parts. Service experts are also available to assist the retail dealer.

Create New Home At Old Address

When the family needs larger, more luxurious quarters, with an extra bath, a modern kitchen, more bedrooms, a spacious family room—is it time to move? Nowadays, a great many homeowners would answer, "No!"

Many families are discovering that the best move toward achieving the aim of better, more comfortable living is not to move at all. Instead, homeowners now look for, and find, a "new home" at the old address.

So says Edgar V. Hall, executive director, National Home Improvement Council, who points out that interest in improving existing homes by remodeling — to increase livability, enhance appearance, upgrade value — is growing apace, and for some sound reasons. By concentrating on a new kitchen, an extra bath, a room addition or modernization, homeowners find that they are now able to have, in existing homes, the luxury features and advantages that they have always longed for — and that usually come only with a new home.

THE MONTHLY payments, for such improvements are substantially less than for payments on a new home. In addition, the family avoids the ordeal of moving.

While these are good reasons to remodel now, there are still more powerful factors involved in the trend to "having a new home at the old address," says Mr. Hall. A few of them are:

1. Mortgage money has been in limited supply, making it difficult to buy a new home. Although the mortgage situation shows some signs of improvement, there are still relatively few buyers for "used" homes, for the same "tight money" reason. So it's probably harder to sell the present home — there just aren't enough buyers.

The alternative of staying put and improving the existing home is made still more attractive by the fact that availability of funds for home improvement does not present a "tight money" problem. There are numerous sources willing to lend funds for remodeling projects.

2. Qualified remodeling contractors who can do expert work are on the increase. The industry has come of age, and the unethical operator is disappearing. Because of the leveling off of the new home market, more and more builders are turning to remodeling. And building materials dealers, realizing the current need, are opening more home improvement centers where complete remodeling jobs can be planned from beginning to end, with expert help.

3. The nation's building materials manufacturers are turning out an increasing number of new and better products, many of them designed specifically for remodeling.

OF COURSE, many personal reasons contribute to the decision to "stay put and fix up." Not the least of these is the convenience of schools where the children are already well established. Then there's the shopping area, where the housewife is well known, and the familiar presence of friends and neighbors close by.

Never before have homeowners throughout the nation had so good a "climate" for remodeling as now.

By taking advantage of existing conditions, many families can start now to enjoy the comforts of a modernized home. In fact, indications are that the present year should be a banner one for home improvement, says Mr. Hall.

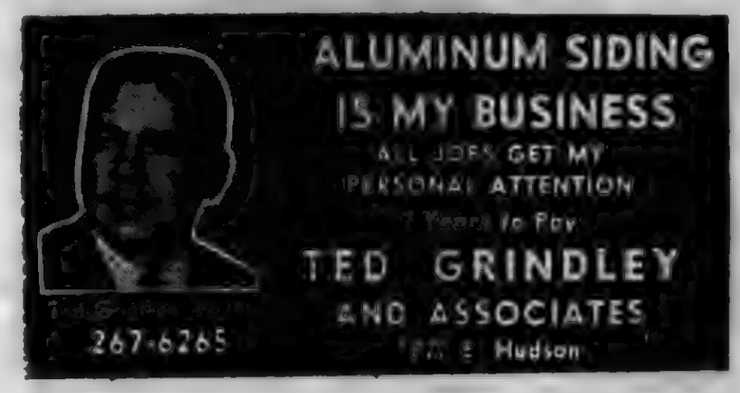
HE HAS JUST ONE word of caution. Too many families are spending only a minimum amount to maintain their homes. Home ownership is the single most important investment the typical family makes in a lifetime. Yet, the average expenditure for home remodeling, during 1966, was only $231, Mr. Hall points out.

UNLIKE MANY major expenditures for purchases which quickly deteriorate in value, the money spent for home remodeling projects will keep on adding to the value of a home. There's no better investment, Mr. Hall maintains.

Overhead Areas Solve Problem

Need more storage space in the home? Put dust-collecting, unattractive overhead areas to work.

Wide-open spaces that can be prettied up and made functional range from neglected places such as tops of kitchen cabinets, or high-up areas in closets, to an unfinished attic.



Higher reaches of the kitchen are notorious for space waste. Often, the wall cabinets have dust-catching tops.

These areas can be easily built up to the ceiling by adding a framework and enclosing it with sides and sliding doors of woodgrained hardboard.

The increased cabinet space is practical for storing seldom-used utensils.

Put high-up areas in clothes closets to work by installing perforated panels, now available in woodgrained walnut finishes, over framing. Store boxes and other items on shelves placed on brackets that fit the perforations.

An unfinished attic offers many possibilities, from organized storage to extra room,

Ohio National Offers Improvement Loans

The annual urge to brighten and spruce up homes is in full flower, according to a survey of Ohio National's 26 banking offices.

Home owners who remember the torrid days and muggy nights of last summer are installing air conditioning, and financing it with low cost F.H.A. Title 1 loans at Ohio National. Many families are painting inside and out. Others are repairing winter-damaged roofs, gutters, etc.

Any home improvement can be financed under low FHA rates. Ohio National officials explained. These jobs range from fencing to protect young children to a new bathroom for a growing family.

Any family can apply for a home improvement loan, bank officials and, by taking an estimate of labor and materials cost to any Ohio National office. It is not necessary to be an Ohio National customer.

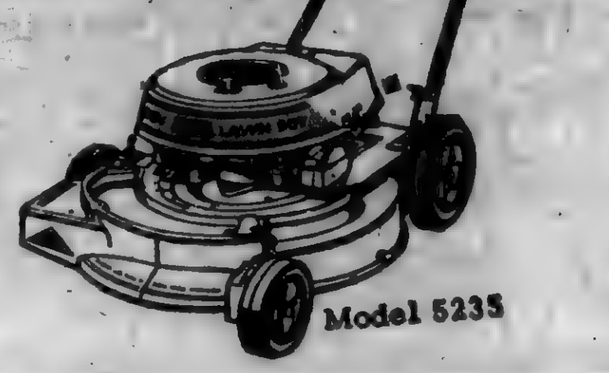
Repayment terms for this type of loan are especially low, because home owners who are working to improve their property are particularly desirable customers.

As an example, loan officers cited a $500 loan for electrical work and plumbing repairs, with payments of only $10.39 a month for the 60-month Title 1 loan. Or a $1,000 loan for painting and storm windows can be repaid for $20.78 a month.

"Any home owner who wants to improve his home, to make it more livable and more valuable, will find a warm welcome at any Ohio National office," bank loan officers stated, "and since there are 26 Ohio National offices throughout Franklin County, a low cost home improvement loan is within a few minutes of every family in the county."

Glass Blocks

People who live in glass block houses don't have to duck stones. Glass blocks are "in" these days.



They still perform their primary job of admitting light where regular window glass won't do. Now, though, glass blocks also come in a wide variety of shapes, sizes and colors that add attractive design touches.

In an entry way, for example, colored glass blocks admit light to this often dark area, and they help make the home inviting, too. If the entry is small, a strip of a few blocks will do. It it's good-sized, an entire panel, in sections as large as three by five feet, is easily made up.

Board Aids Clean-Up Campaigns

By KATHY REDMOND
Spectator Staff Writer

Neighborhoods planning clean up-paint up campaigns can rely on the Columbus Board of Realtors for needed assistance.

One of the more than 50 services provided for by the board is the supplying of personnel to work with neighborhood groups to make the campaigns successful.

The first urban renewal project in the nation, which consisted of the renovation of two condemned houses on old West Mound Street, was undertaken by the Board.

Since then, the Board has continued to purchase, remodel and resell older homes.

"This is done to show people what can be done toward slum clearance by private interest groups," L. I. Chambers, executive vice-president of the board, said. "German Village is a perfect example of what can be done by private interest groups."

The board also puts out a number of monthly, bimonthly and annual publications which are sent to member real estate agencies to aid prospective home buyers in selecting a home.

Among these are "Homes For Sale Photo Guide," a monthly publication which gives a picture, short description and estimate of homes for sale in Franklin County; the multiple listing service which provides for members a day-by-day listing of homes for sale, including a picture and complete description, and the detransfer reference manual, an annual publication which gives property evaluations in different areas.

For the members, the board conducts a mandatory education program for all new salesmen. The free, 60-hour course teaches fundamental principles of selling.

The board also provides members with monthly sales seminars, recreational activities, library service, arbitration service, which settles disputes and misunderstandings between realtors and individuals, and a tenant rating bureau, which lists names of those considered as good tenants and those who are prone to ignore rental obligations. These services are free to members.

The board works with city and county councils in setting up zoning and rooming house codes and in enforcing codes. It assists the board of education in selecting school sites by appraising property and negotiating with owners.

The board is made up of class A, class C, salesman, associate, affiliate, honorary, non-resident and life members.

Only licensed real estate brokers are eligible for class A membership; officers of lending institutions and title companies are eligible for class C membership.

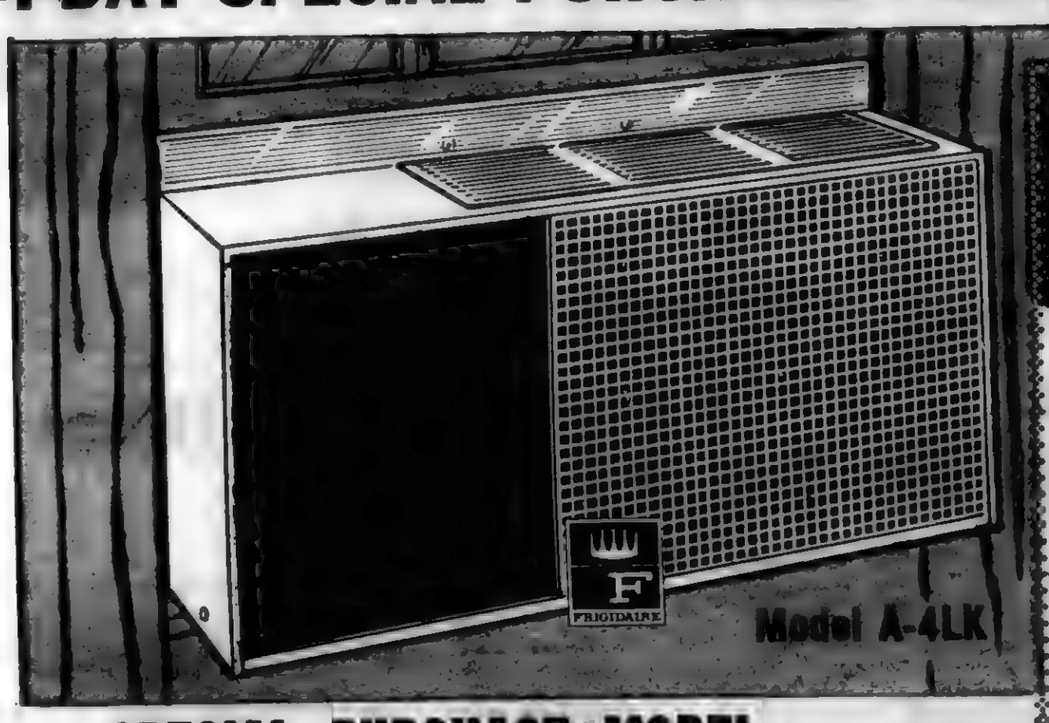
Licensed salesmen associated with class A members are qualified as salesmen members and associate members are those who are interested in the board's activities but do not qualify for any other membership.

Affiliate members are owners of a "legal or equitable interest in real property" who are interested in the board's activities. Honorary members are those who have performed a distinguished or unusually valuable service for the board.

Non-resident members are those who have their principal place of business outside the Columbus area who otherwise qualify for class A membership. Life members are members who have retired from the real estate business and have performed satisfactory service for the board.

Officers are elected annually from the class A members.

The board is governed by a board of trustees consisting of nine class A representatives, two class C representatives, the chairman of the multiple listing committee, two representatives from the salesmen division and the officers.



Founded in 1908 by 36 men, the board now has more than 1,700 members. It is located at 200 E. Town-st.

SELF-HEALING SIDING

New entry in the home improvement and construction field is steel siding that "heals" itself when "wounded." Zinc coating is the healing agent that gives galvanized steel siding its protection against corrosion. If siding is accidentally scratched or gouged, coat protects the exposed steel by electrolytic action.

Hardesty Village Brings New Idea To Columbus

A major new concept in home ownership is rapidly taking shape on the near west side. Hardesty Village, a planned community of Central Homes, Inc, is an entire area of Town Houses.

Although well-known in many major cities, the Town House idea of home ownership is new in Columbus. Through maximum utilization of land and the ability to install utilities in the most efficient manner possible, basic costs are substantially reduced over conventional methods, according to William E. Loving, Jr., president of Central Homes. He added that continuing maintenance costs of the building exterior and of the grounds themselves are also reduced to an absolute minimum.

When complete, Hardesty Village will comprise 266 Town House units. These will all face park-like areas and it will be possible to walk to any home in the community without once having to cross a street, making it an ideal, safe area for children.

A large swimming pool area is the center of the main recreation facility, while tennis courts, children's play areas and common greens complete the picture. A large service center of stores, and professional offices is planned for the immediate future.

All care of recreation and greens areas is under the charge of the Hardesty Village Homeowners Association, relieving the individual owner of the time and money-consuming chores normally attendant with the standard home.

Units range from two to three bedrooms with up to three baths. Each has its own private patio area and two-car parking area, full basement and all are completely air conditioned.

Prices start at $30 a month, including principal and interest, Loving said. A point-by-point comparison of prices between the Town House concept and standard building costs shows a tremendous savings, he added. And there are many facilities included in the Town House ownership that are unavailable in the standard home, except at prohibitive cost, Loving said.

Hardesty Village is located south of West Broad Street at south of West Mound Street at in Road, five minutes from down-town Columbus.

Modern Bathrooms Feature Lavish, Decorative Features

Not so very long ago, the bathroom was strictly utilitarian. It had three basic fixtures, a couple of towel bars and a medicine cabinet. When it came to decor, there was little or none.

Now all this has changed. Bathrooms have come into their own, says the Plumbing-Heating - Cooling Information Bureau.

They're bigger, and they have real style. And, they can be decorated to fit the general decor of the rest of the house, thanks to a new and greater variety of fixtures and accessories.

Among recent trends that are catching on fast are decorated bathroom fixtures, with authentic classic as well as modern designs. Less than a half-dozen years ago, such fixtures were available only as hand-painted custom items. Today, they are widely available from many manufacturers, in many designs.

Design names indicate style variety — for instance, "Tangier," "Provincial," "Wheatland," "Early American," Victorian Garden." The designs are fired into the fixture and do not wear off.

Decorated fixtures include lavatory bowls, water closet seat tops and tanks. To complete bathroom decor, there are matching patterns in tissue holders, faucet handles and even towels and wallpaper.

In keeping with this trend to elaborate, opulent bathrooms, many manufacturers of faucets and other bath accessories are making luxury items. There are gold-plated faucets, soap dishes, tissue holders, plus faucets shaped like swans, mermaids, dolphins and a host of other figures.

Decorated fixtures are somewhat higher priced than those in white or plain colors, but their growing army of fans think they're worth it.

ADDING A BATH

Adding an extra bath or powder room is easier, thanks to new space-saving fixtures which can be installed in corners. An old pantry, a closet or the space under a stair well or at the end of a hall are areas big enough for bathrooms.

'Pick Up The Paint Brush' Is Advice To Homeowners

To protect the home exterior and improve its appearance, pick up the paint brush and pitch in.

This advice comes from the trade publication, Building Supply News, which points out that house painting isn't the difficult job many homeowners may think.

New quality paints are easier than ever to apply, do a better job and give longer-lasting results. They can be brushed, rolled or sprayed on any surface in less time, with less effort, the editors say. First step is to determine the amount and kind of paint to use. It's poor economy to use bargain paints, since a good paint gives better-looking results and lengthens the time before it's necessary to paint again.

Estimate one gallon of finish paint for about 500 square feet of surface, and one gallon of primer for about 450 feet.

Local building supply dealers can advise about the type of paint best suited to the job, and provide information on the variety of specialized paints available for different types of surfaces.

Painting exterior walls is only part of the job. The do-it-yourself painter will want to freshen up doors, windows and shutters at the same time.

To handle these areas, here are suggestions:

Doors. Panels should be painted first, then the rails that separate the panels, then the top, bottom and sides, and the outside edges last. To get at the edges better, remove the door and lay it on a trestle.

Windows. The slender rails separating the glass should be painted first, then the top and bottom sash, the side sash, the frame and finally the window sill. To prevent splattering, cover the edges of the glass with masking tape.

Shutters. before painting, remove shutters, lay them flat on supports and wash clean. The same applies to screens and storm windows.

Now It's Easy To Wallpaper

One of the quickest ways to "remodel" a room is with new wallpapers.

Colorful wallpaper can help complete room remodeling projects in decorative fashion, or, where the budget does not permit a structural change-over, skillful use of color and pattern in wallpaper will "remodel" a room's appearance.

For the do-it-yourselfer, innovations in wallpaper serve to make life much easier.

Factory pasted and trimmed papers speed up the job of hanging, and those not pre-trimmed need little work to be made ready.

Plastic coated paper is fast becoming a favorite. The coating seals in color, and makes spot cleaning easy.

Yet another inlovation is removable wallpaper. Special lining goes between paper and wall. When it's time to re-paper, just loosen a corner of the wallpaper and peel it off.

FOUR ELEMENTS

In decoratng a room, there are four major elements which should be considered. They are walls, floor covering, draperies and upholstery or slipcover fabrics for furniture. In this regard, wall decoration can provide the connecting link which ties together the draperies and the floor covering and at the same time it provides a background for the furnishings.

Planning Comes First In Remodeling Your Kitchen

In kitchen remodeling, the chief aim is usually for a combination of more work-saving efficiency with more attractive appearance. No matter how much time and work are saved, the homemaker knows she'll still be spending a lot of time in the kitchen. Naturally, she's interested in the charm and personality of her "headquarters."

Good planning is the basis on which all else rests. Plan it carefully, organize it thoroughly — and the modernized kitchen will be both a smoothly-running workshop and a setting for whatever decorative effect the homemeker prefers.

Four widely-used kitchen layouts are: The one-wall, where appliances, cabinets and countertops are placed along one wall; the corridor, where they are placed along two facing walls; the U, where the work area forms a U; and the L, where two adjoining walls are used. Of these, the U and L shapes are generally considered more efficient.

A well-planned kitchen contains a refrigerator-freezer center for food storage, a range center for cooking and a dishwasher-sink center for clean-ups.

In addition to the appropriate appliances, each center should have sufficient cabinet and countertop space, so supplies can be kept where they are used, and work can be done at that spot.

Since most kitchen walking is done between refrigration, cooking and clean-up centers, it's best to locate appliances — refrigerator-freezer, range, dishwasher — in a triangular pattern: each appliance set at the point of an equidistant triangle. Modern appliances bring new advantages that add to the working efficiency of each kitchen center.

A large-capacity, no-frost refrigerator-freezer will hold an average family's food supply for a week, saving trips to the market. No-frost feature ends messy defrosting.

New ranges offer greater capacity and cooking efficiency. Many models are available with double ovens and separate temperature controls.

Now It's Easy To Wallpaper

One of the quickest ways to "remodel" a room is with new wallpapers.

Colorful wallpaper can help complete room remodeling projects in decorative fashion, or, where the budget does not permit a structural change-over, skillful use of color and pattern in wallpaper will "remodel" a room's appearance.

For the do-it-yourselfer, innovations in wallpaper serve to make life much easier.

Factory pasted and trimmed papers speed up the job of hanging, and those not pre-trimmed need little work to be made ready.

Plastic coated paper is fast becoming a favorite. The coating seals in color, and makes spot cleaning easy.

Yet another inlovation is removable wallpaper. Special lining goes between paper and wall. When it's time to repaper, just loosen a corner of the wallpaper and peel it off.

FOUR ELEMENTS

In decoratng a room, there are four major elements which should be considered. They are walls, floor covering, draperies and upholstery or slipcover fabrics for furniture. In this regard, wall decoration can provide the connecting link which ties together the draperies and the floor covering and at the same time it provides a background for the furnishings.

Planning Comes First In Remodeling Your Kitchen

In kitchen remodeling, the chief aim is usually for a combination of more work-saving efficiency with more attractive appearance. No matter how much time and work are saved, the homemaker knows she'll still be spending a lot of time in the kitchen. Naturally, she's interested in the charm and personality of her "headquarters."

Good planning is the basis on which all else rests. Plan it carefully, organize it thoroughly — and the modernized kitchen will be both a smoothly-running workshop and a setting for whatever decorative effect the homemeker prefers.

Four widely-used kitchen layouts are: The one-wall, where appliances, cabinets and countertops are placed along one wall; the corridor, where they are placed along two facing walls; the U, where the work area forms a U; and the L, where two adjoining walls are used. Of these, the U and L shapes are generally considered more efficient.

A well-planned kitchen contains a refrigerator - freezer center for food storage, a range center for cooking and a dishwasher-sink center for clean-ups.

In addition to the appropriate appliances, each center should have sufficient cabinet and countertop space, so supplies can be kept where they are used, and work can be done at that spot.

Since most kitchen walking is done between refrigration, cooking and clean-up centers, it's best to locate appliances — refrigerator - freezer, range, dishwasher — in a triangular pattern: each appliance set at the point of an equidistant triangle. Modern appliances bring new advantages that add to the working efficiency of each kitchen center.

A large - capacity, no - frost refrigerator - freezer will hold an average family's food supply for a week, saving trips to the market. No-frost feature ends messy defrosting.

New ranges offer greater capacity and cooking efficiency. Many models are available with double ovens and separate temperature controls.

Ugly Duckling House Turns Swan

By JANE ROBINSON
Spectator Staff Writer

When Mrs. Kathryn Hart moved into her German Village home at 792 City Park 30 months ago, her friends were convinced she had invested in a private "chamber of horrors."

Almost 100 years of neglect and misguided attempts at renovating had transformed a once solid little duplex into six rooms looking as if they were waiting only for a coup de grace from a friendly bulldozer.

MRS. HART KOWTOWED to the views of the skeptics to the extent of hanging a huge poster of Dracula and another of Frankenstein, but she knew "There would come a day."

To her becoming a "Villager" was fulfillment of a dream begun almost a decade ago. Then, after a visit to the first home restored by Frank Fetch, her imagination had been captured, she had become a charter member of the now famous German Village Society and vowed to someday call German Village "home."

The Siebert Street Elementary teacher is attempting to keep the rehabilitation of her "dream house" on a more or less pay-as-you-go basis. Thus when she moved in, her "idea book" and her huge white tom "Spooky," underarm, little had been accomplished except steaming away layer after layer of postbellum wallpaper and paint.

BUT GRADUALLY working hand in hand with village craftsmen who soon assumed the status of friends, she saw the house reveal the charm and personality she had felt in her heart was there.

Following rather loosely a Williamsburg theme, Mrs. Hart wants to spice Early American design with the atmosphere of an old English pub.

Although the living room with its ceiling candelabra and shuttered windows has assumed a bit more "elegant" air than she had intended, she is determined that the kitchen which she is planning with Phil Klentz will be "strictly pub." She visualizes it dominated by a portrait of "The Highway Man" which she wants Ivan Pusecker, German Village artist, to undertake.

THIS SUMMER when Mrs. Hart is finally able to steer away her paint brushes (interior painting is the one phase of the restoration toward which she maintains a "I can do it myself-attitude") she will cross her fingers and order the incongruous stucco veneer stripped from her street-side wall.

If her hopes that the exterior brick can withstand sand blasting prove false she realizes a new wall is the only solution.

Another challenge coming up is that of the garden where she plans a grape arbor patio patterned after one behind a historical tavern in Williamsburg, guarded by a gazebo-like shelter house.

IGNORING THE FACT that restoration in German Village with an army of workmen and a hand that never flinches from writing checks can result in a 90-day wonder, Mrs. Hart is taking it easy.

Sometimes impatient without a magic wand to make her dreams come true overnight (a key to Fort Knox would do as well) she comforts herself with the thought that five years from now (her tentative target date) she will be happy to live with the ideas she has adopted so slowly.

And besides, what true restoration devotee wants to get done in a hurry?

It's been proved time and time again in German Village that paint and sawdust get not only into one's hair, but into one's blood.

WHEN A HOME is done there's nothing left to do but find another relic and start all over again.

THE LONG LIVING ROOM with its lateral walls of mellow brick and the oval walls formed of open shelves and shattered cupboards, broken only by a window seat is a far cry from the two cramped rooms in existence before Mrs. Hart made a decision to tear out the dividing wall. A previous owner had converted the former double to a single-family dwelling, but allowed the wall to stand.

ONE OF THE focal points of interest in Mrs. Hart's home is the stairway which she believes unique in German Village. Doing away completely with the dangerously steep enclosed stair well (even a generally sure-footed dog learned its hazards the hard way) Mrs. Hart designed it with the landing serving as a walk through between the dining and kitchen areas.

THE FRANKLIN STOVE, ordered from New England, is accented by a brass lion, imported from England. Set at the base of an artificial-brick chimney which blends with the bricks of the original walls, its flue is accessible through the small doorway to the right which also provides storage area.

ONE CORNER of the kitchen, yet untouched, with its peeling paper and exposed heat vent offers testimony to the condition of the entire house before Mrs. Hart took over. The cupboards to the right are slated to go and the windows behind them bricked in.

ORIGINALLY A BEDROOM, Mrs. Hart's bathroom is commodious, even featuring a walk-through closet extended the complete length of the room. Striving for an old world atmosphere she rescued the pedestal basin from an old home razed to make way for urban renewal. The footed-tub opposite the wall shown was saved from the junk heap when hearing of it crowning a rubble pile, she dispatched a truck to pick it up immediately, fearing it would not survive even a single night of exposure to vandals.

Home Intercom Systems Bring Sound Of Music

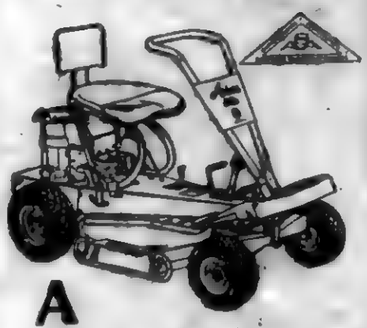
In the kitchen Mom says, "Time for dinner." Dad in his workshop, Junior in his bedroom and Sis on the patio get the message.

Communicating quickly with any member of the family is one of the recognized advantages of home intercom systems.

Checking on children's activities and whereabouts, monitoring a sleeping infant or talking from the kitchen to a caller at the front door are other uses and conveniences that make intercoms a popular feature in new homes — and a subject of interest to improvement - minded homeowners.

INTERCOM SYSTEMS can be added to many existing homes, and in most cases, the bulk of the installation can be handled by an experienced do-it-yourselfer. Some systems have been specially designed for ease of installation and come with complete installation instructions.

Among these are electronic sound systems with a new dimension — built - in music. Starting with the FM/AM radio, an integral part of most modern built-in sound systems, the music potential now goes on to include hi-fi, stereo or tape recorder jacks in the more deluxe systems.



THIS PROVIDES in addition to the many intercom functions the ability to pre-select entertainment sound and pipe it through the house.

MASTER STATION for a music-intercom, often located in the kitchen, includes FM/AM radio which can be heard throughout the home. GE music-intercom.

Imaginative Space Use Can Pay Dividends In Remodeling

Imaginative utilization of small space can pay big dividends in a home modernization program.

The cramped corner, that hard - to - furnish niche, becomes useful floor space and a design focal point with built-in units that mix style and functionality.

A wide, ceiling-high cove presented a remodeler with a stiff challenge in a kitchen-family room area. Distant from the kitchen work center and visible from the well-decorated family-leisure room, the niche had been an unused, barren wall area.

With a minimum of basic construction, a dry-wall soffit was lowered from the ceiling and the built-in unit installed, creating a desk-storage-communications center, featuring a handy extension telephone and house-wide AM-FM radio intercom system.

Designed to withstand the abuse of a growing family as well as provide lasting decorative beauty, the entire unit was surfaced with laminated plastic.

Household records, recipes and family paperwork are stored conveniently in the 12 spacious drawers, while larger items are kept out of sight behind closed doors.

Built-in desk and "communications center" makes good use of space in problem corner of a kitchen-family room. The entire unit was surfaced with Formica-brand laminated plastic.

Improvements Are 'Many-Sided'

When it comes to exterior remodeling, home improvement is a many-sided story — thanks to the many sidings now available for home renovation.

For just some of the many sides to the siding story, consider wood, asbestos cement, steel, mineral fiber, aluminum and vinyl. Add to these the masonry veneers; then, add the range of textures, finishes, colors to be found in every kind and category of siding. Many sided, indeed!

For the homeowner, the important sides to the story are these: improved home appearance, better protection, increased home value, reasonable cost, convenient maintenance.

How to choose the "best" siding? It isn't an easy question, since many modern sidings seem to offer the same basic advantages of attractive appearance, minimum maintenance and resistance to weather, fire, or other damage.

A homeowner may choose a certain kind of siding because it offers a special feature he particularly wants, or because he knows it has been widely used in his community, with successful results.

His building materials dealer can supply information about the advantages of specific sidings, and he is also in a position to know how various sidings perform in local use.

Some of the many sides of siding are:

WOOD

A practical and economical choice, wood siding is available in several types to create a variety of architectural effects, or carry out a special color scheme. Although wood usually requires painting or other refinishing, new prefinished plywood panels make maintenance easy, and are guaranteed never to crack, blister, fade or peel.

MASONRY VENEERS

Distinctive texture is often the reason for choosing a masonry veneer — brick, stone, simulated stone — as a home siding. The veneers offer a wide range of permanent colors, require no painting and have insulating properties.

ALUMINUM

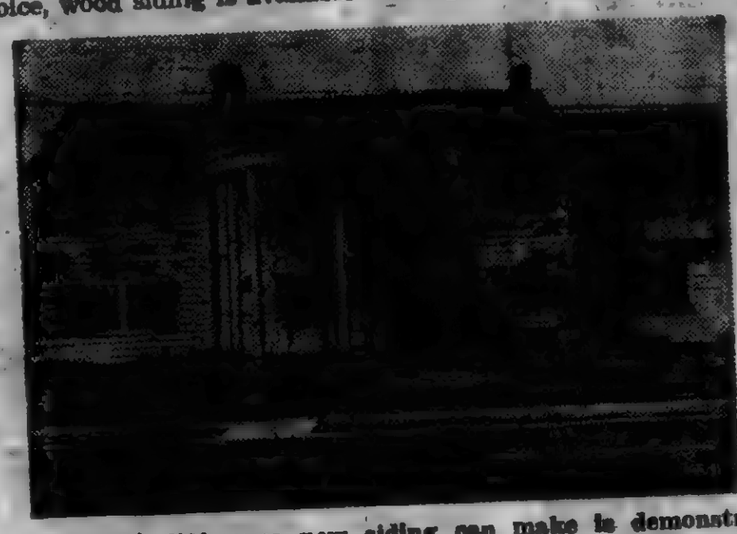
A modern low-maintenance material, aluminum siding offers such advantages as: no warping, rotting, rusting or cracking and no danger from termites. In addition to qualities of strength and durability, it presents an attractive variety of colors and finishes.

ASBESTOS CEMENT

Long-wearing and easy to maintain, asbestos cement siding is a fireproof, weatherproof mixture of asbestos fibers and portland cement. It resists rot, rust, decay, chemical fumes or corrosive salt air, and comes in a variety of shapes, textures, colors.

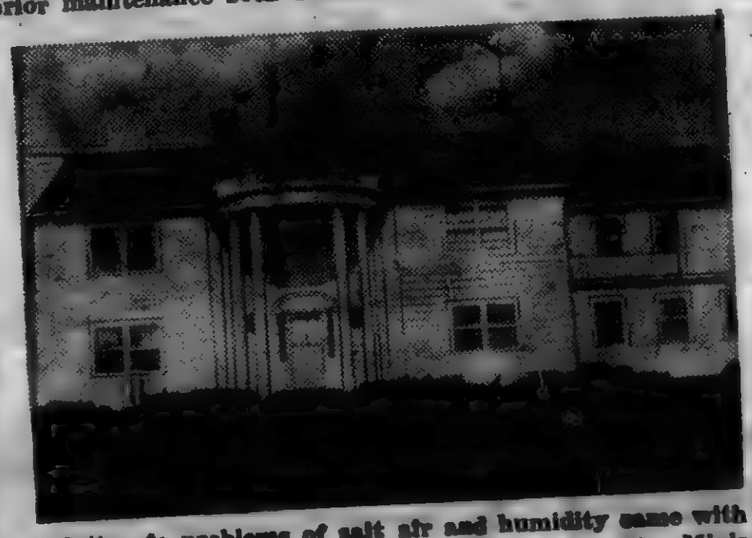
STEEL

Fire-resistant and vermin-proof, galvanized steel siding is available in a variety of colors. It is strong, dent resistant and does not need back boards because steel bridges the bulges of any old siding it covers, to create an attractive straight line appearance.



VINYL

In the modern, minimum maintenance category is vinyl siding. It will not chip, wear away, blister or peel; it is vermin-proof, resistant to fungus and mildew; will not support fire or electricity; stands up under unusual atmospheric conditions, say its protagonists.



Durable and easy to install, vinyl siding offers an attractive appearance, with no exposed joists or nailing.

MINERAL FIBER

Factory - finished mineral siding is color-coated with a durable finish of acrylic plastic. The siding, to which the plastic coating is bonded, is fireproof, warp-and-rot-proof. It installs directly over old walls, with no-staining nails in colors to match the siding.

Dramatic difference new siding can make is demonstrated in the "before" and "after" pictures here. Although Dr. Francis A. Hauck's home in Sea Isle City, N. J., was new in 1956, atmospheric conditions, attributed to the nearness of the ocean, made exterior maintenance both difficult and expensive.

Solution to problems of salt air and humidity same with the installation of solid vinyl siding, Dr. Hauck reports. Minimum maintenance, better protection from the elements and improved home appearance resulted. Exposed joists and nailing were eliminated.

Is Your Home Improvement Just An Attractive Nuisance?

Is what you're building an "attractive nuisance"?

Before a homeowner proceeds with an improvement project, he will be well advised to ask — and answer — this question, says an insurance authority.

"Attractive nuisance" is what a court in some states might call a certain aspect of property if it attracts a child or other passerby and the individual is injured by it.

A SWIMMING POOL, a driveway thata's ideal for skateboarding, a barbecue pit a doghouse that could collapse if a child climbed on it—these are all potential attractive nuisances.

Even a pile of lumber and bricks stacked ready for use could lure a youngster and hurt him. It too would be considered an attractive nuisance, states F. Harvey Cameron, vice president of the Travelers Insurance Company.

In fact, anything on the property that presents potential danger for a passerby, unless steps are taken to protect him, could cause a homeowner to be sued. Though the homeowner is not ordinarily responsible for what happens to trespassers, he is if he doesn't try to protect them from attractive nuisances.

THE HOMEOWNER is obligated to build a fence around his swimming pool, for instance. He should exercise reasonable care to keep youngsters from skateboarding down the driveway or playing near the barbecue pit.

Failure to take precautions can, in case of accident, cause the homeowner to be found guilty of negligence.

Negligence in such cases can be defined as the failure to do something which a reasonable and prudent person would do in similar circumstances. There is also negligence that arises from doing something a reasonable and prudent person would not do: jerry-bulding a structure that collapses and hurts someone, for example.

HOW CAN the homeowner protect himself against legal problems that can crop up if he's guilty of negligence?

He may already be protected, Mr. Cameron points out.

If he has a homeowner's insurance policy that includes personal liability protection, or a comprehensive personal liability policy, his insurance company will pay all sums for which he is legally obligated to pay as damages because of bodily injury or property damage, up to the limit of the policy.

It is advisable to examine the policy to see if the liability limit is a realistic one, Mr. Cameron states. Present coverage may be doubled or tripled, at nominal cost, to give needed increased protection.

Exterior Panels Useful To Brighten Up Home Fixtures

Plywood panels on the exterior of modern homes are gradually moving inside.

This comes as something of a surprise to the plywood manufacturers because they didn't plan it that way. Exterior panels such as Texture One-Eleven, reverse board and batten, rough or brushed cedar and striated panels were meant to be just that — attractive, durable exterior siding.

But builders and architects — even homeowners themselves — decided these attractive sidings were just as attractive inside today's homes.

Exterior plywood panels have been showing up indoors particularly in children's bedrooms, recreation rooms and dining areas near the kitchen.

Even in the living room, the panels can present an attractive, graceful appearance.

The reasoning behind this is sound, in view of today's trend toward casual, carefree living. In addition, these panels are easy to install, inexpensive to buy, and their rugged surfaces stand up well in home areas where children live and play.

Staining the panels is simple, and the finished product can look like a professional job, even done by the weekend handyman.

Many types of panels have lapped edges, making it simple for the amateur carpenter to install a complete wall with tight, inconspicuous joints.

Even more important to the do-it-yourselfer, plywood panels need not be joined at the seams with plaster and tape.

When panels do not have lapped edges, they are merely butted together to form an attractive wall surface. Installation on studs or over existing walls is speedy and easy.

Vinyl Wallpaper Takes Hard Wear

For heavy duty areas such as baths or kitchens where heat and steam may be big factors, vinyl wallpapers are a wise choice.

These papers are especially designed to look better for longer under adverse conditions. Because of their rugged qualities, they can be scrubbed for spot cleaning without going over the entire wall or ceiling areas.

Local wallpaper stores and departments carry selections of vinyl papers in handsome color and pattern combinations.

COMFORT BEGINS WITH GOOD HEATING SYSTEM

What keeps a house comfortable in winter? It isn't the fuel — it's the system!

Indoor comfort depends first of all upon the system used to heat a house and how that system is installed. The fuel — be it gas, oil, electricity or coal —merely powers the system.

So says the National Better Heating-Cooling Council, which points out that home comfort begins not with the choice of fuel, but with selection and installation of a heating system.

THERE ARE THREE major central heating systems on the market today: hydronic (hot water), warm-air and electric resistance.

A hydronic system, which showed the fastest growth of all systems in a recent market study centers around a small, compact boiler that heats water. The heated water, carried throughout the house by finger-sized tubing, instantly transfers heat into each room from floor-level baseboard heating units.

THE HEART OF a warm-air heating system is the furnace. The furnace heats air, which is circulated by a fan through a network of ducts. The ducts then deliver the air to registers located in each room.

In both hydronic and warm-air systems, the fuel may be oil, gas, electricity or coal.

Electric resistance is the third major heating system — and here the fuel must of course be electricity.

An electric resistance system operates essentially like an electric toaster. Individual baseboard heating panels are "plugged" into electric outlets, and they, in turn, produce heat.

A WISE SELECTION of a heating system is one that allows for future expansion and the later addition of air conditioning, automatic snow melting and/or zoning. The homeowner should also have a reliable contractor check the quality of the heating equipment and the installation, the Council advises.

The contractor will know if the thermostats are located in the best position, if the system is correctly balanced and controls properly installed.

He will also check to see if the system meets certain standards: for instance, has the boiler been approved by the Institute of Boiler and Radiator Manufacturers? Or, does the boiler or furnace have the approval of the American Gas Association?

These organizations maintain standards and criteria of performance for the entire industry, to assure the consumer that the furnace or boiler will produce the rated output.

Here's Way To Varnish

Is there a varnishing project on the agenda? For the smooth, bubble-free finish that sometimes seems so difficult to achieve, try this simple procedure:

Use a soft bristle brush of good quality.

Grip the brush by the ferrule, allowing the handle to rest between thumb and forefinger.

Dip the brush in the varnish, to no more than one-third of the length of the bristles.

Don't wipe off excess varnish on the rim of the can. Do tap the brush gently against inside of can. This removes excess, prevents dripping, yet leaves brush "loaded" with enough varnish for smooth application.

Centralized Air Conditioning No Longer Just A Luxury

No longer a rich man's plaything, central air conditioning is becoming a necessity in the life of the middle income homeowner. Today more than three million American homes are centrally air conditioned, and their number is mushrooming at a rate of 500,000 annually.

One reason for this rapid growth is that whole house air conditioning is not nearly as expensive as many people think. It can be installed in many moderately-sized homes for substantially less than $1,000.

Even larger homes — such as an existing eight-room house with a hot-air furnace and adequate ductwork — sometimes can be completely air conditioned for as little as $1,000.

This estimate is provided by the General Electric Company, one of the largest manufacturers of residential air conditioning systems.

If $1,000 is hard to come by —as it sometimes is— then it may help to know that central air conditioning can be readily financed.

In a new home, the bank, savings and loan association or other lending institution generally is willing to add the entire cost of central air conditioning to the original mortgage.

In existing homes, other financing plans are available.

In states where "open end" mortgages are permitted, the owner may add the cost of the air conditioning to the original mortgage and pay off the loan by extending his mortgage.

In some cases, air conditioning dealers can arrange financing for the homeowner through facilities of company credit corporations. Usually a small down payment is asked and the installments are spread over 12, 24, or 36 months at a fixed interest rate.

Banks and savings and loan associations usually are receptive to loans under Title I of the Federal Housing Administration law. These loans which may be paid off in as much as five years, are attractive because they are insured by the FHA.

A secured bank loan may be used if you own property, insurance, stocks, bonds, or other collateral and offer any of them as security.

The Federal Housing Administration has stated to its field appraisers that "within a few years, any home without air conditioning will probably be obsolescent." So, no matter how it's financed, central air conditioning is a worthwhile investment. Aside from the comfort and cleanliness it provides, it may help safeguard the home resale value.

To Hit The Roof! Tons Of Moisture

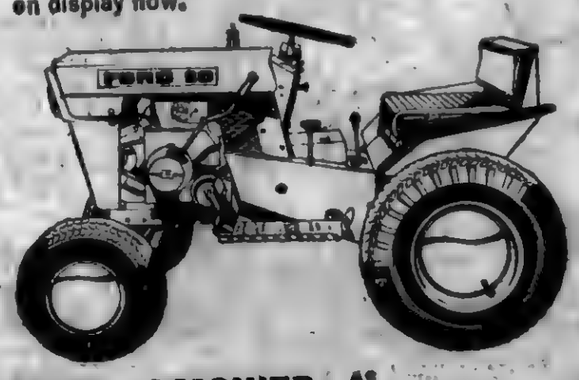
About 50 tons of moisture in the form of rain, snow or sleet hit the roof of the average home every year, according to the weather bureau.

This moisture can enter a home through vulnerable points on the roof or, as it sweeps off the roof, leak into the basement. It can carry away fertilizer and topsoil from the lawn, as well as damaging plants and shrubs.

A sound roof drainage system — guttering and downspouts, plus flashing at vulnerable points — can help to combat moisture damage problems. The cost of repairs to such a system, or installation of a new one where conditions require it, may well be less than the cost of pumping out a flooded basement.

Gutters and downspouts carry away water as it runs off the roof. Strips of sheeting, called flashing, seal out moisture at such points as roof ridges, valleys, corners, vents and around chimneys.

Components of a roof drainage system are available in several types of materials — among them, metals such as copper and galvanized steel or materials such as rigid vinyl.



Galvanized steel guttering and downspouts now offer do-it-yourself convenience. They are available pre-painted, with a special acrylic enamel protective coating baked on at the factory, and they can be installed with a new type of fascia bracket hanger and mastic sealant.

Used for roof drainage systems, rigid vinyl ranks high on the list of minimum maintenance materials. It requires no painting, will not interfere with TV reception, and withstands the impact of the elements—rain, hail, ice, snow.

TORO

.....The best power mower you can buy at any price!

CLIPPINGS BAG. It clamps on with one hand. It's big, and it has a heavy-duty bottom so it'll last. This bag plus "Wind-Tunnel"* housing also adds up to a fine lawn vacuum cleaner for leaves and litter. And, it's standard equipment. No strings or clips, no zippers to clog.

SAFETY SPIN-START. You wind up the "impulse" starter, step behind the mower handle, for safety and push the lever to "start" position. Chokes automatically.

MAGNESIUM HOUSING. It's the same lighter-than-aluminum stuff they use in airplanes.

FRONTWHEEL "POW-R-DRIVE." That's for safety and better control. (Ever try to maneuver a rear-wheel-drive mower in a tight spot? Usually it's in control.)

WIND TUNNEL HOUSING Creates a powerful suction under the housing that pulls the grass up for a more even cut. Disperses clippings evenly, ends clumping.

"AUTO-OILER."† This is a visual oil filler. Push the button and you're sure the crankcase is full. No funnels, no oily fingers.

3 OR 3½ HP, FOUR-CYCLE ENGINE. Starts easily, runs more smoothly than cheaper 2-cycle engines. No mixing of gas and oil, either.

CLEAN-OUT PORT. When you're through mowing, let the engine idle and run a little water into the clean-out port. The blade splashes it all around under the housing and washes it out like new.

"TRIMIT."† You know that grass along the sidewalk that won't stand up? This little device props it up and the blade clips it off crisply and neatly.

HEIGHT ADJUSTMENT. Hook your thumbs in the grooves and set the cutting height at any of six settings from ½" to 3". No tools needed.

Spring Turns Fancy To Clean-Up

Spring may turn a young man's fancy in certain directions, but the advent of the vernal season just naturally turns the homeowner's thoughts in the direction of "Clean-Up, Paint-Up, Light-Up and Fix-Up" needs. This is the time to check the home, repair the damage inflicted by time and Old Man Winter, and plan "Fix-Up" projects to improve home beauty and comfort.

In the "Clean-Up" sector, Mom traditionally takes charge of the room-to-room cleaning job. Dad and the kids can assist in special projects such as cellar, attic and garage clean-up campaigns. Now is a good time, too, to call in specialized help for big projects from rug cleaning to furnace cleaning. Check draperies and slipcovers for "spring cleaning" or replacement.

Outdoors, Dad can supervise the "Clean-Up" of lawns and garden, including removal and/or replacement of plants and trees. Here, again, the youngsters can help. Dad will probably want to assign some outdoor chores on a permanent basis.

PAINT-UP

The "Paint-Up" phase demands a thorough check-up both indoors and out. Perhaps paint touchups will do in some areas, but others will require a complete repainting, perhaps on a do-it-yourself basis. For the bigger jobs, it's wise to call in a professional.

"Paint-Up" really means "brighten-up and protect" — so it involves more than paint. Indoors, wallpaper and paneling, flooring and floor coverings are part of the picture.

Outdoors, the home exterior may need refurbishing, and if so, the possibilities are many, from a new paint job to residing with one of the wealth of new sidings available.

LIGHT-UP

The "Light-Up" side of the spring home overhaul demands both family effort and, probably, professional help. Increasing use of appliances and entertainment equipment means that an electric wiring check-up is in order, in most homes. Be sure to let a professional do this job.

In some cases, new lighting fixtures can be installed on a do-it-yourself basis. Such projects can be planned now, along with the addition of new lamps for good lighting and decoration.

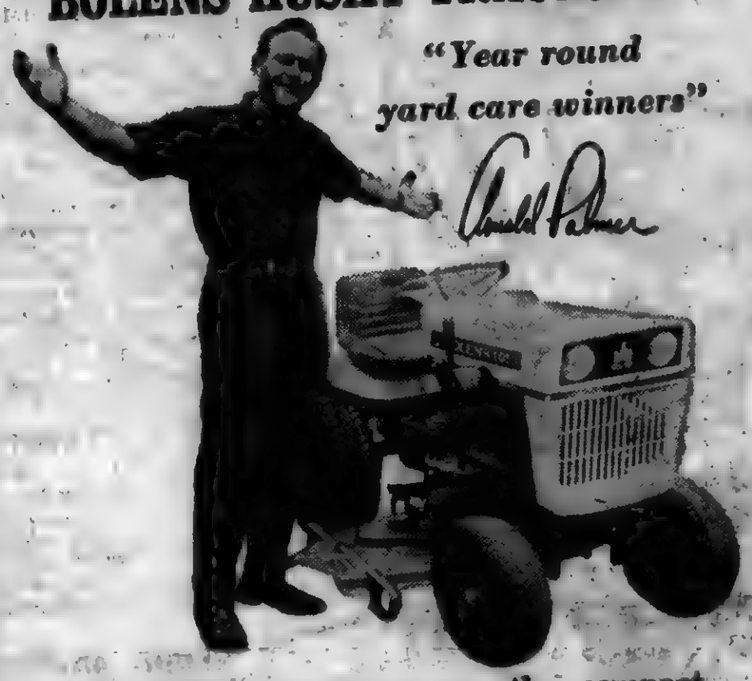
FIX-UP

Both repairs and remodeling come under the heading of "Fix-Up" jobs.

First, check home exterior for needed repairs in potential trouble areas. Examine foundations for cracked masonry and ground holes; inspect roof for warped, loose or missing shingles; check gutters and downspouts for clogged passages, weather-worn parts; and check chimney area for loose bricks and stones, missing mortar.

Indoors, heating and plumbing systems may need professional check-ups. Check walls and ceilings for cracks and bulges, floors for needed repairs or refinishing. Inspect doors and windows for air leakage, and make them weather-tight.

Repair needs may suggest a "Fix-Up" remodeling project. For instance, if a furnace check-up reveals that a replacement will be necessary in the near future, now may be the time to consider installing a central heating-air conditioning system.



LIGHT AGE

In her book, "Color and Personality," Audrey Kargere says: "In the new age of lights, tones and colors, public buildings such as churches and concert halls will epitomize the better principles of living . . . Thus we will see a greater use of pale green, which stands for sympathy, a greater application of yellow, since it lifts one into inspiration, and more blue, which brings peace and rest to the soul."

Beulah Brings Big Time To G-C

Over a period of more than 40 years, Beulah Park Race Track has become more and more an integral part of Grove City, not only furnishing 50 days of entertainment with its racing, but aiding and abeting the community's economics.

Before each season begins at Beulah Park, many residents of Grove City prosper from the rental of rooms and apartments for invading horsemen and jockeys. Merchants find business on the increase and restaurants thrive during the period of the meetings.

Back in 1923, when Beulah Park first opened, it was a half mile track and there was very little to indicate that it would one day be one of the state's sporting showplaces.

First real sign of progress came in 1933 when the track was enlarged to three-quarters of a mile and the final step toward "major league" recognition came in 1937 when the circumference of the oval was extended to a mile.

The year 1937 also was important in another respect for Beulah Park. Robert J. Dienst took over as president after four years as treasurer. Heading the track meant a challenge to Dienst and he met it directly.

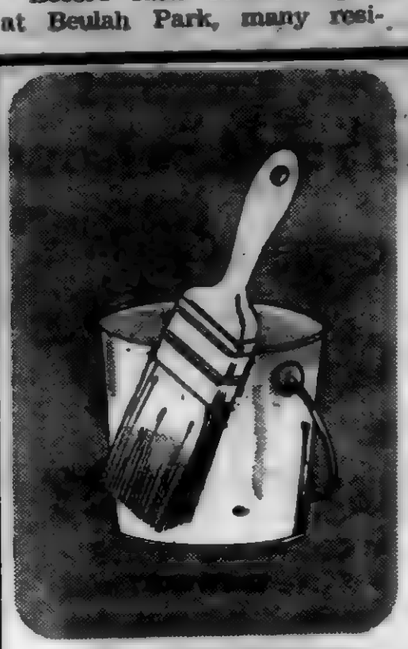
Since the time he took over and since 1959 when his son Robert Y. Dienst took command upon his father's death, Beulah has been on the move. The many changes have found favor with public, horsemen and officials.

The elder Dienst created a new barn area, enlarged the grandstand, built a patio, installed all the latest equipment used by the most modern race tracks and added to the track's parking facilities. He also constructed a new administration building which includes jockeys' quarters regarded as among the finest in the country.

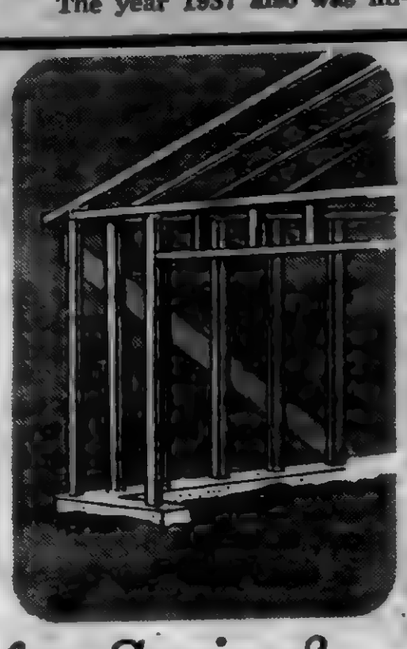
The younger Dienst has continued in the progressive footsteps of his father, enclosing and heating both stand and clubhouse, building new barns, further extending parking facilities, resurfacing of the race track, improvement in back stretch kitchen facilities and improved quality of racing.

Beulah's feature program for the coming meeting is the finest in the history of the track. Topping the list is the R. J. Dienst Memorial Handicap worth $7,000. Other important events on the schedule include the Chateaugay and Grove City Handicaps at $7,500, the Decathlon and Primary at $5,000 each, the Beulah Park Special at $4,000 and the Inaugural Handicap at $3,000.

Beulah officials make every effort to corral the best quality of horses. Stables from Florida, Arkansas, New England and as far west as Arizona are on hand to clash with the so-called "regulars." These stables often bring new jockeys to add lustre to the list of riders on hand.



Over the years Jim Bronnenberg of Indiana has been established as the winningest trainer in Beulah's history and Paul Ward, another Hoosier, holds that distinction among the jockeys. Ward, last fall, passed the 500 mark in victories at the Grove City track, and this feat brought him a special award from the track management.



Many of the top names in racing have been registered in Beulah's racing history. Ben Jones, Bennett Creech, J. B. Partridge, C. H. Trotter, J. D. Mikel and Rollie Shepp are among the noted trainers who campaigned while the list of jockeys who rode at Beulah includes five national champions, Lee Hardy, Harry Roble, Earl Dew, Ted Atkinson and Charley Burr.

Lending added significance to the "Beulah Story" has been the operation of River Divide Farm stable by the Dienst family. Many fine horses have carried the River Divide colors and each victory brought mention of the Beulah connection. Best of them all was Decathlon, the champion sprinter of 1956 and 1957.

MAKE HANGING GARDEN

An unusual fencing idea is offered by perforated hardboard, which provides hanging storage facilities outdoors, as well as a decorative look. It could be used, for instance, to create a hanging garden of potted plants.

Fence Will Protect Playing Children

At the outdoor living season, homeowners' thoughts turn to "exterior decorating" —landscaping, garden, building and furnishing a patio or terrace, developing games areas.

While such activities are under way, it's a good time to consider a fence, to set off the home and its surroundings, like a frame around a picture, to provide privacy and security, to define boundaries and to protect against wind.

Among the many types of fencing some choices are:

STEEL FENCING

Functional steel fencing comes in a variety of colorful and artistic forms, and gives the advantage of durability, easy installation, little maintenance and low cost.

One of the most versatile steel fences is the chain-link type, a "garden trellis" design made of steel chain-link mesh with a vinyl coating. The coating gives extra protection.

Chain link fences do double duty in performing the functions of a fence and allowing a high degree of visibility. If more privacy is desired, the link fence can serve as a trellis for vines, roses and other climbing plants.

Stock steel parts are available for do-it-yourself fence design and construction. Consult a buildings materials dealer or steel service center.

SOLID FENCING

Solid fences that insure privacy but do not cut off light can be created with translucent fiberglass-plastic panels, used in combination with wood or even cement blocks.

Such a fence may take many shapes and designs, bringing a "decorator touch" to the home setting or outdoor living area. Colors include a range of soft pastels and deeper hues.

Oriental "shoji" effects may be created with flat, white fiberglass plastic panels and black wood rails. Or, flat and corrugated panels may be combined, again using wool rail framing. Basketweave effects can also be achieved.

The panels have a smooth finish that makes them dirt resistant, and they sturdily withstand pitting or scarring.

LUMBER FENCING

In natural lumber fencing, versatility is a key factor.

Depending on purpose, the natural lumber fence can be solid and tall to achieve privacy or open and short to give airiness and visibility. It may be rough sawn or smooth, painted or stained, rustic or refined, according to preference.

Design possibilities range even more widely — among them, panels, louvers, wood "bricks," parquets, herringbone, latticework and basketweave effects.

For longer fence life, all parts which come in contact with the ground should be treated with a preservative.

HARDBOARD FENCING

Tempered hardboard, as a fencing material, shares many of the features and advantages of natural lumber — including versatility. In addition, it has been especially treated at the factory to give it extra endurance and weather resistance.

Both solid and open designs are possible with tempered hardboard since it will flex without cracking or splintering.

To assure better appearance and a longer-lasting fence, painting is recommended for tempered hardboard.

Children's Play Area is protected and opportunity for attractive garden setting provided by vinyl-coated steel chain link fencing. The fencing, available in a variety of colors, is ideal as a trellis for vines and offers the added advantage of durability, freedom from maintenance and low cost.

FOCAL POINT

Does your room have a focal point? Maybe it is a particular chair design, an attractively upholstered sofa, a dramatic fireplace or a group of pictures. Every room should have a particular point of interest and it's up to you to dramatize it. The main requisite for a focal point is that it be dominant, large or interesting enough to make an immediate and lasting impression on whoever enters or sits in the room.

USE SANDPAPER

To soften plastic-coated wallpaper for easy removal rub with a coarse sandpaper.

Smart Setup Saves Steps

Grandma really got around. Upstairs, downstairs, out in the yard, down in the basement and back to the kitchen was her usual Monday routine. Even though Monday was somewhat synonymous with laundry — a job that usually kept her hopping from basement to backyard—other daily chores continually demanded that she be elsewhere.

There's no need to be a marathon hiker today. With a truly efficient kitchen, including a complete but separate home laundry center, a homemaker's two biggest jobs — cooking and laundry — can be done at the same time and place. And laundry can be done the modern way — when it's needed, perhaps daily, without letting it accumulate into a major chore.

Cooking and laundry facilities can be separated, within a single room, according to a plan suggested by the Maytag Home Laundry Center.

The plan uses a counter eating area as a room divider. If the counter has an L shape, one arm can extend into the room for the eating area, and the other can go along a wall and contain cooking facilities, complete with appliances and plenty of counter space.

The sink may be located in the corner of the L, where it can be used for occasional laundry needs as well as for kitchen purposes.

The other side of the counter room divider provides the separate area for the laundry. In addition to a fully automatic washer and dryer, the plan calls for plenty of storage room in built-in cabinets.

To provide space where durable press articles may be hung immediately as they are taken from the dryer, a full-length closet may be located next to the dryer. Such a closet also will provide room for the ironing board.

Cupboard space for detergent, bleach, fabric softener and any other laundry supplies can be located next to the washer.

Further storage space is provided by other counter-level cabinets fitted with shelves that hold sorting bins for soiled laundry. Counter space on top of the cabinet may be used for sorting and folding the clean clothing.

The wall space over the washer and dryer offers decorative possibilities — perhaps for display of a mural.

RIGHT IN THE KITCHEN is location for complete laundry center, a design that lets the homemaker do most of her chores at the same time and place. Plan calls for L-shaped counter eating area, redwood plywood cabinets, automatic washer and narrower-width dryer, plus a colorful mural. Suggested by Maytag.

Built-Ins Great For Bedroom For Children

To make a bedroom for children attractive and practical on a budget, try built-in furniture, advises Interior Designer Bill Baker, of Westport, Conn.

Building in beds, desks and storage saves money, makes cleaning easier, and ends decorating problems with one stroke, according to Mr. Baker. His own children have a room where everything is built in.

Dusting Is Eliminated

"I made the beds myself in about an hour," explains Mr. Baker. "Using a frame of two by fours, I covered it with prefinished, washable paneling. The top of each bed is a piece of sturdy particleboard, and a piece of molding keeps the mattress from slipping off the box.

The mattress is latex foam rubber and rests directly on the particleboard. Since the latex foam is resilient, it is comfortable even without springs," Mr. Baker explained.

The beds are permanently built in and the box-like base is completely enclosed, so dusting under the bed is eliminated. Washable prefinished paneling covers the walls. Materials for the beds cost only about 20 dollars for each bed.

Prevents Clutter

A well-hung desk is another built-in feature. Mr. Baker favors the legless units because it is easy to clean under them, and they are good for doing homework.

He eliminated chests and bureaus by building in a combination closet-bureau-storage area in one entire wall. The storage area includes shelves and drawers (built inexpensively by Mr. Baker) that hold clothing. The entire area is hidden behind folding doors.

Virginia Homes Architects Work With Family In Mind

Virginia Homes offers this spacious sun deck as one of many family-oriented options on its new bi-level models. The deck can be constructed at the rear of the house or at the side above an optional garage.

For nearly 20 years, Virginia Homes, largest builder of homes, apartments and communities around Columbus, has kept the family in mind when designing new styles and opening new developments.

This year is no different. In fact, the emphasis on family-oriented homes and communities is the strongest ever in the company's significant history. At all four Virginia Homes communities around Columbus—Foxchase, Glenhaven, Southern Pines II and River Bend — families are finding all the ingredients of better living.

Style, comfort, convenience and lifetime durability are key factors in every Virginia home, whether it's a ranch, bi-level or split-level. Nearness to shopping, jobs, churches and schools is another vital point kept in mind when new communities are developed.

Only brand-name fixtures and appliances are used in Virginia homes, and flavorful options are becoming the rule rather than the exception when architects begin their plans. Half baths, second baths, family and recreation rooms, fourth bedrooms, large garages and all options welcomed by the modern family and available in many new models this year.

Another option which follows the trend toward increased outdoor fun is a sun deck available on various Virginia Homes bi-levels. Sometimes the deck can be at the rear of the house, at other times at the side of the house atop an optional garage. In either case the deck is reached from the kitchen-dining area by means of a sliding glass patio door. Also included are full deck railings and steps to the yard below.

A wider choice of flooring is also available this year—vinyl asbestos, wood parquet and carpeting. And these can be included in the mortgage. They can also be used in various combinations on certain homes.

New models are open daily, except Fridays, from noon to 8 p.m. Two new models have been built for inspection at Glenhaven. These are The Duncan, a three-bedroom ranch, and The Melrose, an exciting bi-level. Also available at Glenhaven is The Glenroth, another new bi-level.

At Foxchase, new models include The Sheffield, a three-bedroom ranch; The Hastings, a family-planned bi-level; and The Winchester, a beautiful new split-level. Also available for construction at Foxchase is another new bi-level, The Coventry.

The Elmwood, a three-bedroom ranch, is a newcomer at Southern Pines II. Another new design available in that community is The Juniper, a bi-level with fascinating features and options. Several other popular Virginia homes continue to be available at all communities, including River Bend, the prestige community on Clime Road.

Every Virginia home can be built in three different styles; and this year's new models now make a total of some 50 currently available.

USE PAPER

A good decorating solution for two rooms which adjoin one another is the use of companion wallcovering patterns. These patterns have been designed and colored to go together. Each is quite different from the other, and each can stand on its own merits as good decoration, either design-wise or color-wise, or both. At the same time, each enhances the other and makes it look even more beautiful as a home decoration.

All the furnishings are built in, in this handsome room remodeled by Designer Bill Baker for his two sons. Each boy has his own sleeping and study area. Beds are simple plywood boxes, topped with latex foam mattresses. Night stands, desks and walls are "homemade" of washable paneling. Here, Weldwood paneling.

Mad, Mod and Trad is the newest bag of trend-setting home furnishings styles now appearing in retail stores after having been previewed by retailers during the recent International Home Furnishings Market at the American Furniture Mart, Chicago.

There is just enough Mad to put sizzle in home furnishings styles, a great advantage these days when so many younger people are making their influence felt in home decorating decisions.

You can easily identify Mad by its kinetic relationship to current apparel fashions. Its visual trademark is op and pop artiness, like polka dots and geometrics on furniture. At its most smashing, ultra urbane, it presides in black and white but at its most adventuresome it goes color crazy.

So do believe your eyes when the next time you sail in on your local furniture store and are gaily greeted by a polka-dot chair ensembled with a wildly wavy geometric soft.

Mod becomes the conservative cousin of Mad, if you want a comparison. It is likely to have such stable materials as aluminum or steel, shiny- or satin-finished, combined with distinctive woods in low-key, oil-type finishes and glass, and rough textured fabrics alternating with velvets on deep-cushioned, weltless sofas, chairs.

The newest Mod — or modern — is clean and uncluttered but definitely not stark. It is now the category to watch. Designers show signs of having been stirred by the spirit of '76 (1976!). They appear no longer apologetic about stepping on prologues from design's past. You can be sure that the modern you choose now will age gracefully because its own traditions have taken firm root.

Trad (a "cool" abbreviation for tradit'onal) comprises just about all familiar style periods predating what is now designated as modern. In this category are the popular design elements from early, colonial and federal America, as well as those from Italy, France, Spain and England. Years of reproducing and refining continue to provide a wide range of choices for varied modes of living and decorating while also satisfying the "collector" instinct.

If a single influence is dominant among the latest home furnishings designs, it may well be that of universal urbanization. The City Look appears to be the means of expressing the better, more affluent life everywhere.

But style boundaries are unrestrictive. In fact, they are unmarked. Designers through their new offerings, give you the freedom of mixing styles and periods. For example, this design daring may put an Italian style case on French legs, or a linen-fold application on a modern case or table.

This license also encourages lavish blending in a room of pure-line modern pieces with antiques or reproductions from any design period. It is freedom inspired by a wide-worldliness, of kinship with the international city, to be applied with equal ease in the suburban house and the highrise in town.

Further supporting the "worldly mixer" decree is a wide choice of feature pieces, offered separately but also incorporated frequently in a collection. Here is the helpful answer for those seeking to give high tone to a room or area, with a library table, a hall chest, a wine cellar, a desk, a gentleman's chest, or an armoire in any conceivable style from William and Mary to modern. And a great many of these gain added distinction from the use of accent color finishes.

To be seen also in unprecedented variety are modern sofas and chairs that literally entice and invite you to fold up as in arms of comfort. Some of them, besides being outfitted with "happiness is" cushions and bolsters, have such pet covers as fur, both fake and real, velvet and corduroys.

For other wanted effects on modern softs and chairs there are covers in natural or simulated leathers, matted felts, suede prints, glen plaids, and more checks and linens.

When not completely upholstered a number of the sofas and chairs gain extra richness from wrap-arounds executed in rare rosewood or other luxury wood outlines.

Ottomans now come in an extravagant number of sizes. The larger ones even outgrow their chair companionship, supply generous seating when company overflows. And when the proportions get really ambitious, you may even find them tagged as a "harem" lounge.

Fabrics on traditional sofas come in an embarrassment of choices, aimed to accommodate every conceivable decorating intent or scheme. Abounding are silks, satins, damasks, matelasses, moires, taffetas, in addition to velvets, corduroys, leathers and other popular coverings.

Fabric colors are at least as beguiling as their textures. For example, evoking the effect of eternal spring are pinks, from dusty to luscious raspberry pale to zesty yellow or subtle celery-to-lemon greens, from apple to a sun-washed yellow green, and delicate apricot.

Today's popular styles, according to a recent wood industry tabulation, are ranked in the following order: modern; the combination of Early American, American Colonial and Federal; Italian; French (more formal than provincial); English, and Spanish.

Walnut is rated the most widely used furniture wood. However, pecan is closing ranks as a runner-up with cherry and maple also figuring prominently in new stylings. Oak, mahogany and butternut are among other fine domestic cabinet woods you may choose from in a wide range of styles to suit your personal home decorating preferences.

Banks, S&L's Lower Interest

Columbus loaning agencies will be loosening their purse strings this spring, according to spokesmen for the Ohio Bankers Association and the State Savings and Loan Association.

"The tight money situation which began last summer has eased considerably," said Neil Milner, spokesman for the Ohio Bankers Association.

"A good indication of this is that the interest rates on borrowing have been lowered. Money is still not as plentiful as it has been in the past but there is still a sufficient amount available to homebuilders and other borrowers," he said.

"Late last year the prime rate was up to 6 per cent but has now eased to 5½ or 5¾ per cent," Milner added.

Phil Moseley, director of advertising and promotion of State Savings and Loan said that the tight money situation began to ease off last fall when the federal government raised the insurance of money in banks from $10,000 to $15,000.

"This was one measure that encouraged more people to bank their money and created a stable interest rate. With this, the thaw began and the tightness loosens," Moseley said.

"Columbus is better off than most areas because we have such stable employment," he added. "We are a real growth area."

Both men saw a strong indication of more house building to be done the rest of this year in the Columbus area.

"The home building industry should pick up its stride this year with the new interest rates for borrowing down from its previous amount."

Moseley explained that the homebuilding in 1966 was down 25 per cent from 1965. "We're going to be up over '65 this year," he declared.

Cover Floor To Reveal New Decor

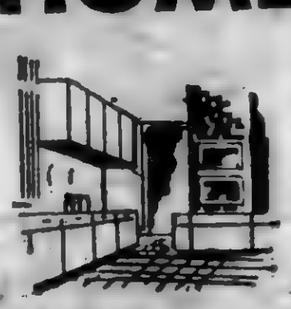
Floors can have as many cover-ups as TV's secret agents.

According to the trade journal, Building Supply News, a good floor covering can be the clue to successful room modernization. And the variety of practical, attractive new materials makes proper flooring selection a relatively simple caper.

Biggest floor covering news, says the magazine, is resilient materials. Building supply centers report that vinyl asbestos tile alone accounts for more than 50 percent of their floor covering sales. They estimate that sales of all types of resilient flooring will increase as customers realize that "there is now a resilient covering to suit every taste and every room in the home." They predict a growing popularity for vinyl roll flooring, vinyl asbestos tile, vinyl tile, asphalt tile, linoleum and ceramic tile.

The attraction of resilient flooring is that it is comfortable to walk or stand on, easy to care for, has a low noise level, is resistant to spills and stains, and comes in a wide range of good-looking, versatile — even exotic — colors and designs. Consistent improvements are increasing their appeal.

There is now, for example, a type of weather-resistant resilient flooring that can be used outdoors on concrete patios, sundecks, balconies and pool areas. Style has been heightened with the introduction of stone, wood, marble, travertine, brick and sculptured brick patterns in several floorings.



The choice of the right resilient flooring depends largely on the type and condition of the room's present floor, Building Supply News points out. In general, any resilient covering can be installed on suspended floors, over basements or crawl spaces where there is no danger of moisture. Linoleum tile, cork tile and felt-backed sheet vinyl are not recommended for below-grade installation, where concrete is in direct contact with the ground and moisture or alkali problems exist. For ongrade installation where the foundation slab is thick and offers more protection than a regular basement floor, most of the new coverings can be used.

Since the characteristics and installation procedures vary with each flooring, it is best to discuss planned use and present flooring with your building supply salesman before you buy.

DECORATOR PANELS

New decorator patterns in three - dimensional self-sticking vinyl wall tiles are introduced by the Decro-Wall Corporation. Designs include Delft, Mediterrania, Granada and Fleur-de-lis. Tiles are applied by peeling backing paper from the panels, then pressing panels on wall.

Here's How To Build Attractive Tool Shed

What about outdoor storage?

Providing generous storage space for home gardening tools and bulky outdoor equipment is the objective of a new plan for building a three-compartment, plywood-paneled tool shed. The shed, which presents both an unusual and an attractive appearance, is designed to store equipment with well-organized convenience, while protecting it against the weather.

A HANDY do-it-yourselfer should be able to build this plywood tool shed for about $175, says U.S. Plywood, originator of the plan.

The shed provides three separate areas.

A center compartment runs diagonally across the building to create a large section for yard tractor or power mower. Access to this space is provided by two hinged doors which meet and form a corner when the shed is closed.

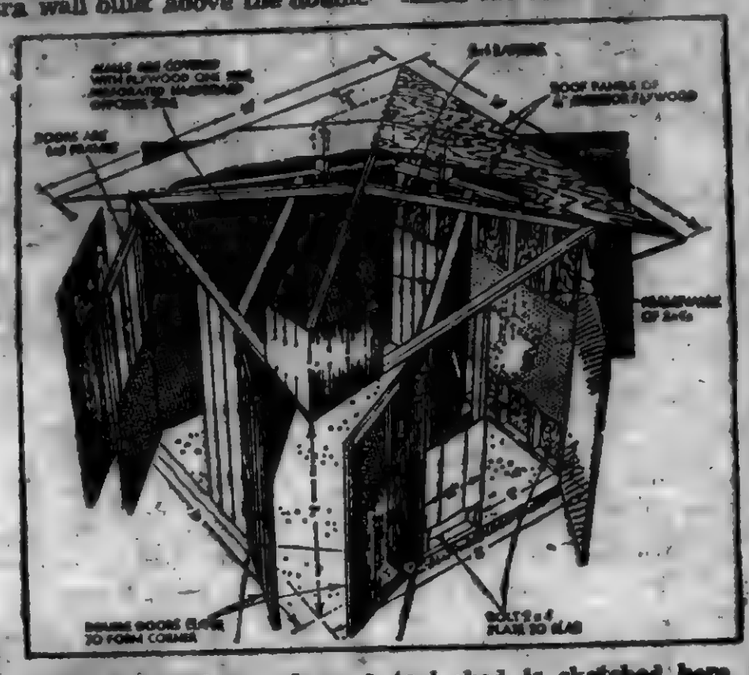
Two smaller triangular a-eas at each side are enclosed by one-panel hinged doors. Since doors swing outward, hardware should be rustproof.

DOORS AND some interior walls are lined with perforated hardboard for hanging such items as rakes and hoses. This leaves valuable floor space clear for odd-shaped tools and equipment.

Directions for building the plywood tool shed are:

Use slab of concrete about four inches thick to form the foundation and floor. Set bolts into soft cement around the perimeter (two on each side) with threaded portion exposed, to provide anchor for two by fours at bottom of each wall frame.

WALLS CONSIST of a two by four framework of vertical studs spaced 16 inches apart center to center. The diagonal two by six roof rafters intersect in the center where they can be reinforced with angle irons screwed to the inside faces.

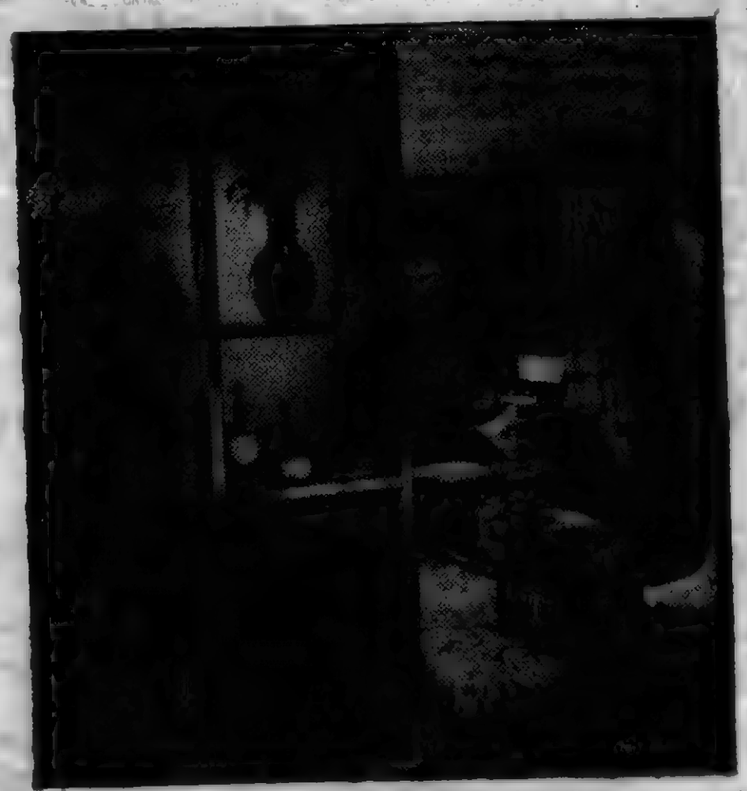


The roof consists of three-quarter-inch plywood nailed up in sections to cover the rafters.

For doors, first assemble a framework of one by threes, then cover inside with perforated hardboard and the outside with exterior plywood.

Frame out all of the walls first, using doubled two by fours in each of the corners. Roof rafters should be nailed up next, installing the longer continuous one across one diagonal and then cutting two pieces to fit across the other diagonal.

THESE rafters are notched where they rest on the top plate of the walls in each corner. The one-piece rafter rests on top of a short length of extra wall built above the double doors and the back corner. The rafter that crosses this wall slopes downward at each side to rest on the top corners of the wall framing.



This creates a sloping roof which pitches diagonally to each side to help insure drainage while still providing open space for ventilation underneath the roof.

Plan for building plywood tool shed is sketched here. The shed offers storage for garden tools, outdoor equipment, could also be used for play and sports equipment. Estimated cost for do-it-yourself construction is $175, says U.S. Plywood.

Three compartments provide generous outdoor storage space, in completed tool shed. Any exterior-grade siding may be used for outer walls. Here, rustic rough-sawn surface of redwood Plantex siding adds a decorative note. It's from U.S. Plywood.

MODERN DECORATIVE accents for interiors are provided with new architectural plastic panels, used here for a room divider. Other uses include interior shutters, luminous ceilings, door facings and background shelving. "Dorene" panels by Celotex.

Nails Headed Costly Metals

What do names like Flat-Point Rose, Fine-Rose and Rose-Sharp make you think of? Elegant silverware patterns? Fine china designs?

Actually, they were hand-wrought 18th century nails. Nails were expensive in those days because of the tedious procedure involved in making them. Metal plates had to be cut into small, thin rods, then heated in a forge and hammered into shape on an anvil. The heads were shaped in a vise.

Today, modern machines turn out nails at the rate of 10 to 1000 a minute, depending on size. Building supply centers display literally hundreds of nails of different lengths and head designs appropriate for every imaginable home or building use. And because of precise production methods, each nail is standard — the same size, shape and strength as others of its kind.

Wall Paneling Easy to Install

Even a novice do-it-yourselfer can panel a wall with modern paneling materials. The installation procedure is simplified, and little or no finishing is required.

The rewards of a wall paneling project are well worth a handyman's time and effort. Paneling can enhance the good looks of any room, and offers long-lasting durability with practically no maintenance.

Whether you decide to panel a basement, attic, family room, den, living or bedroom, you can select appropriate wood panels from the wide selection at building supply stores. You may prefer to install unfinished panels and do the finishing yourself, but if minimal time and trouble are your aim, prefinished panels will probably be your choice.

Accessories Provide Showcase For Modern Design

Gone is the stereotyped look of a room perfectly coordinated but without a shred of personality. It's the accessory pluses that express the occupant's individuality—making it a signature room.

Interior design, circa 1967, is a sweeping change from the sterile interiors sometimes found in the past. They may be jumping but they're not monotonous. They come under various labels, including City Mix and Mod-Modern, but the underlying theme is a blending of old and new with a sense of gaiety.

The amateur decorator realizes the home is a showcase for the whole family—it advertises the tastes, interests, hobbies and hospitality. It expresses beauty, fun, the joy of living —as well as its manifold practical functions. And this season's homemaker has enough taste, education, travel and courage to be bold about decorating. She isn't afraid to experiment and to have an opinion in furnishing the rooms that serve her and her family.

"Rebellion" by Donald Opper, Associate A.I.D., is a powerful excursion into the "Mod" of the big beat. Red plushy chairs flank a white Hell Cart-on-Wheels. A long low sofa in bold black and white, glass and chrome tables are from the "In" collection designed to generate excitement.
Krechler Manufacturing Company

"Remembering the 'Thirties'" has been captured in a room setting by Designer Morris F. Fisher for the Jackson Chair Co., Inc. The designer has created overstuffed capacious chairs in shiny olive and champagne plush that are reminiscent of the Jean Harlowe era. A lounge chair and ottoman covered in tweed are built on a sleigh runner base. It's an interior with green-tinted glass tables and an abstract repeating the olive, royal blue, purple and champagne colors.

How is this achieved?—the cautious may ask, eager to latch on to an approach that sparkles. There are guide lines. But after that the homemaker is advised to strike out on her own. She will find the continuous searching for ideas and improvement stimulating.

It's possible to have a charming crowded and aristocratic hodge-podge of beautiful or cherished objects without ever touching the high fashion whimsies. This, of course, is the ultimate, and comes from a lifetime of living and collecting. This is the European ideal.

Basic furniture is likely to give the room its stability and permanence. It's possible to have vintage furniture or the popular styles of today in which comfort and fashion bear little relationship to past historic periods and still spark the whole with the decorating idiom of the moment. Large pieces may spell 18th century English, old world Spanish or Italian, or American antiques and combine with contemporary.

The City Mix or splendid assembly of traditional and modern might include a large crewel hanging or a piece of armor or a Calder mobile. Brilliantly colored abstracts on easels, walls, and floors, with a tiger rug thrown in for good measure, is a favorite way to dramatize a room. Rugs, mirrors, musical instruments, lamps, pillows, silver and unexpected collections handsomely displayed can give character and significance to the home. Not forgetting books, in any type decor.

Approaching a happy blending of New-Old, from the other vantage point, the room with modern furniture will find the purity of line softened and given depth and warmth to heirloom accessories — fine porcelain, stonewear, artifacts, lamps, wood sculpture, and exotic greenery. Draperies and area rugs contribute to textural interest.

This season's coordinated approach is more subtle than a monotonous matching. It's a time of bold stripes, dizzying configurations and polka dots, of oversized graphics and patent leather, and dramatic ceramics. This is Mod Modern. Such a room gives a guest the startling impression of a blur of color and motion but the experience is pleasant and later the visitor can separate the many components.

Designer William Pahlmann is one of the designers who advocates letting a room come alive with the choicest of possessions. He points out that Europeans prefer discriminating clutter to mass-produced sameness. There's nothing wrong, and much to shout about, in a beautiful mass-produced sofa, because today each piece may have more than 100 interpretations according to the fabric, pattern and line preferences of the owner.

COLOR A FACTOR

Colors are major factors in illumination. They have a significant bearing on sight. And it is well to remember that the right colors seldom cost more than wrong ones. Most important, it is color in the surroundings that have a psychological power for good or bad. They bring about basic sensations which influence emotions and are responsible for the building of behavior patterns.

NEW PERIOD

America is believed to be entering a Baroque period in its decorating tastes. What is it? This style originated in the late 16th century and is characterized by sweeping flattened curves, exaggerated scale, and a general effect of opulence, often created by the use of rich, fantastic and exotic motifs.

Factory Fresh Housing Seen As Coming In Home Design

By JANE WOLLERMAN
Spectator Staff Writer

The home you buy in the next decade may be delivered to your lot in a truck. The workmen will unload it, set it up on a prepared foundation, shift the walls to suit your family's needs and have it ready to live in within just a few weeks.

The siding will be made of material which never needs painting or other maintenance. The roof will never need repair or replacing and the inside materials and fixtures will be equally care-free. And it should all be with us before 1984.

These are the predictions of Professor Whalen Bowser of the Ohio State University Department of Architecture.

"We've been on the brink of factory made housing taking over a large part of the home market for 30 years and it will come soon. Factory construction can make use of new materials and methods in a way in which the local contractor never could. These homes can be made in the factory with the economy of the mass production method then put together on the scene by a few highly skilled tradesmen. The labor cost will be high per hour, but much less labor will be required. Housing costs can be reduced substantially by this method," he said.

Most of the present housing in the country consists of "builders" homes which are put together by a contractor from a selection of rooms and plans. These houses are constructed in about the same manner that was used 100 years ago and with more or less the same materials.

Only in architect-designed and built houses will home owners get the latest in materials and design. Not many such homes are built and one of the major problems is finding local contractors who can do the work.

While you are waiting for the break-through in the factory built home, you could settle for restoring or remodeling an older home.

"Homes built in the 20's and 30's were soundly constructed and were of reasonably good design. A house that is sound in its basic construction is well worth doing over to suit your needs," the professor said.

He considers the restoration of German Village an excellent example of the good results of "fixing up" older properties.

"The architecture of the Village is very homogenous. It is not German, but it is a good style and deserves to be preserved," he said.

Homeowners Becoming House Painting Pros

If you're a homeowner, chances are your home improvement program for the year includes some painting. You'll probably do most of the interior work yourself, and many of you will also tackle heavy exterior jobs.

Home painting has become a popular do-it-yourself project, according to the trade journal, Building Supply News. It reports that homeowners account for 60 percent of the annual half-billion dollar paint sales of building supply centers. At present, homeowners do 55 percent of interior painting and about 15 percent of the exterior work. Both figures are expected to increase.

The reasons for this, says the magazine, are high labor costs for professional painting, and the availability and reliability of new quality paints. These paints are easier to apply, fast-drying and more durable. Some are chalk and blister-resistant, others can be applied to a wet surface, and some ease clean-ups because brushes can be rinsed out in water. Time and labor-saving equipment like rollers and spray guns has also simplified painting for the handyman.

If you are a beginning home painter, Building Supply News cautions against two mistakes right from the start. Don't stint on the cost of good paint or the amount you plan to use. The magazine notes that cheap paints are not bargains if they give poor results and only last a year or two. Neither is it economical to use one coat of paint when two will give you a longer-lasting, better-looking surface. Your best bet is to use reliable brand name products and to follow the manufacturer's directions carefully.

One problem amateur painters may have is not knowing which paint is best for a particular job. Building supply retailers advise that there is a "right" paint for every surface. If you don't know the difference in paints, ask the salesman's advice. He can also recommend the proper tools and application methods. Most supply centers carry a full line of paints, primers, thinners, removers and painting equipment.

One aspect of painting you can't afford to overlook is proper surface preparation. Experts warn against trying to save time by applying new paint to a grimy, blistered or peeling surface. Faulty surface preparation is a major cause of paint failure and can negate all the time, trouble and expense you've invested in the job.

Before painting, check the surface for trouble spots. Fill in cracks, repair loose plaster, dust off dirt and wash off grime. Be sure to scrape off peeling paint and caulk when necessary around windows, door frames, tubs, sinks and tiles.

To insure satisfaction with the completed job, always choose your paint colors carefully. Pick colors you can live with happily for a long time. Bright red may be your favorite color and fine for an accent, but wide expanses of it may dismay you in a very short time. When selecting exterior paints, consider the color of neighboring houses and the shades of your roof and site. A house color should blend with its environment, not battle with it. Your building supply retailer can give you some hints on color trends and coordination, and show you samples from which you can make the right choice.

If you prepare the surface properly, use good paints, suitable colors and the right equipment, you can achieve professional-looking results even on your first house painting project.

BORROWING RATES DOWN

1967 Home Building Outlook Bright

By WALTER TAYLOE
Spectator Staff Writer

Officials of the Homebuilding Association of Greater Columbus have a "most enthusiastic outlook" for the 1967 building season in Columbus.

Robert P. Flath, Association executive director, and William S. Fannin, 1967 president, agree that the current "loose money" situation will enable builders to build more homes this year, thus giving homebuyers a wider selection from which to choose, than anytime during the last five years.

According to Flath, last year's high interest rates seriously injured the building business. "Builders could not afford the interest, consequently fewer houses were built." He further stated that people interested in buying homes in 1966 suffered because they too could not afford the higher interest rates plus there were fewer new homes from which to select.

The industry also suffered because building employment was down, and skilled craftsmen sought different jobs, the director said. "As a matter of fact, there is still a shortage of skilled people in the building trades."

Fannin said he could not make a projection on the increase of new buildings that would probably be built in 1967 because "the building season doesn't really get going until later in the year." He did say, however, that a "heavy" upswing should be evidenced in the Columbus area by the latter part of the year and early 1968.

If Columbus is hit by a building "boom," it may not last indefinitely. Fannin said the relatively high rates banks and saving and loan companies are now paying may soon be overshadowed if the war in Vietnam continues.

"If the government finds itself financially short, it may boost the interest rates on savings bonds. People will then invest more heavily in the government," he said.

Flath said should such an increase be made, borrowing rates at banks will undoubtedly go us. "Tight" and 'loose' money is just a question of supply and demand." He said if people stop putting their money in banks, a money shortage will occur and borrowing rates will soar.

"When rates are up," he said, "the building business is down."

Homeowners Offered Guide To First Aid Procedures

Although many homeowners rival professional craftsmen with their prowess at do-it-yourself home improvements, statistically the average home is still the most accident-prone place in the nation. And it becomes even more so when the home handyman starts his work.

"Do-it-yourself" enthusiasts should be as much concerned with accident prevention and proper first aid procedures as they are with the ambitious projects they undertake," advises Dr. John Henderson, medical director of Johnson and Johnson and first aid authority.

"The really well-equipped home handyman should have adequate first aid equipment on hand to cope with emergencies. This is best accomplished by keeping a comprehensive first aid kit in the workshop."

Dr. Henderson offered the following tips to avoid some of the most common injuries encountered in home improvement work:

• If unaccustomed to physical labor, avoid lifting heavy objects. If heavy lifting is necessary, do it properly; do not lift by using back or abdomen muscles alone, but take advantage of the stronger muscles of the legs. Wear gloves to avoid blisters, minor cuts and scrapes.

• If the project calls for reaching high places, use a ladder—and never try to use a makeshift platform, boxes or chairs. Inspect ladders before using, for defects such as loose rungs and weakened hinges. Always have a helper standing by at the bottom of the ladder, to hand things as needed, and to prevent the ladder from sliding.

• When working with power tools, make sure they are properly grounded to avoid the possibility of shock. Check the manufacturer's instructions and observe all recommended safety procedures no matter how trivial they might seem.

When accidents do happen, it is important to treat injuries promptly. Dr. Henderson says. Proper first aid prevents infection, promotes healing and comforts the patient until medical help is available.

Here are his suggestions for treating the most common injuries encountered by home handymen:

• Working with tools, the incidence of cuts, bruises and scrapes is high. These should not be ignored simply because they are minor injuries, since the danger of infection is always great. On superficial wounds, cleanse with sterile gauze pads, soap and warm water. Apply antiseptic from the first aid kit and dress the wound with an appropriate bandage.

• On deep or extensive cuts, the first consideration is control of bleeding. Do this by applying firm pressure on the wound. Cover with a dressing and get medical aid. Do not try to cleanse a "dirty" wound —one in which foreign bodies are imbedded — but rather cover with gauze and get medical assistance.

• Strains and sprains should be checked by a doctor because of the possibility of other conditions, such as fractures, which may not be detectable by a layman. To comfort the victim, immobilize the strained area.

BENDING NAILS?

To make hammer-and-nail jobs go more smoothly, check the hammer. Grease, oil, dirt or paint on the face of a hammer can cause nails to bend, or cause the hammer to glance off the nailheads.

Vote Against Ohio Bond Commission

★ ★ ★ ★ ★

OBC, Local Races Top Ballots

Two proposed amendments to the Ohio Constitution and hot races in primaries in Whitehall and Columbus will top East area ballots in Tuesday's primary elections.

Heading the ballot throughout the state will be state issues 1 and 2, the legislative reapportionment amendment and Gov. James A. Rhodes' Ohio Bond Commission proposal.

The OBC proposal would create a commission to control all state capital spending. It would eliminate the present constitutional requirement that the voters approve all state bond issues. The reapportionment resolution would put into the constitution the present apportionment system, with 99 House members and 33 senators.

In Whitehall, a hot race for the Republican mayoralty nomination between Councilman Lester Ballenger and former mayor William Holzhause is grabbing most of the interest. Both seek the right to oppose incumbent Democrat Paul Haytcher, who is unopposed in the Democratic primary.

Columbus voters also have a mayoralty contest on their hands, with three candidates seeking the two spots on November's non-partisan ballot.

In the Columbus race are Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner, the only Democrat; Hilltop funeral director Jerry Spears, the endorsed Republican candidate, and Councilman Ronald DeVore, running as an unendorsed Republican.

Ten men are seeking eight spots on the November council ballot. The only incumbents seeking re-election are Republican Ronald Sedgwick and Democratic Council President William Hoermle.

On the Whitehall Republican ballot, there are races for city treasurer, councilman-at-large and in Ward Three. Incumbent Francis E. Shaeffer is opposing former Treasurer and Mayor Walter B. Moling for treasurer; John A. Bishop, Theodore R. Harmony, Robert B. Mickey and Incumbents Linn L. Hiatt and Raymond E. Shipley are seeking the three councilman-at-large nominations and Sally S. Coady is opposing Karl J. Stimmel in Ward Three.

On the Democratic side, there are races for city treasurer and council nominations.

Stephen A. Harris is opposing William E. Mason for the treasurer's nomination; Howard M. Hazlett, Patrick J. Mann, incumbent Marvin H. Levine and incumbent Ward Four Councilman Gilbert O'Shaughnessy are seeking the three at-large nominations and Loren F. Mason and Donald H. Patrick are vying for the Ward One nomination.

Columbus voters will also be asked to approve a City Charter amendment providing a probationary period for new city employes and giving all

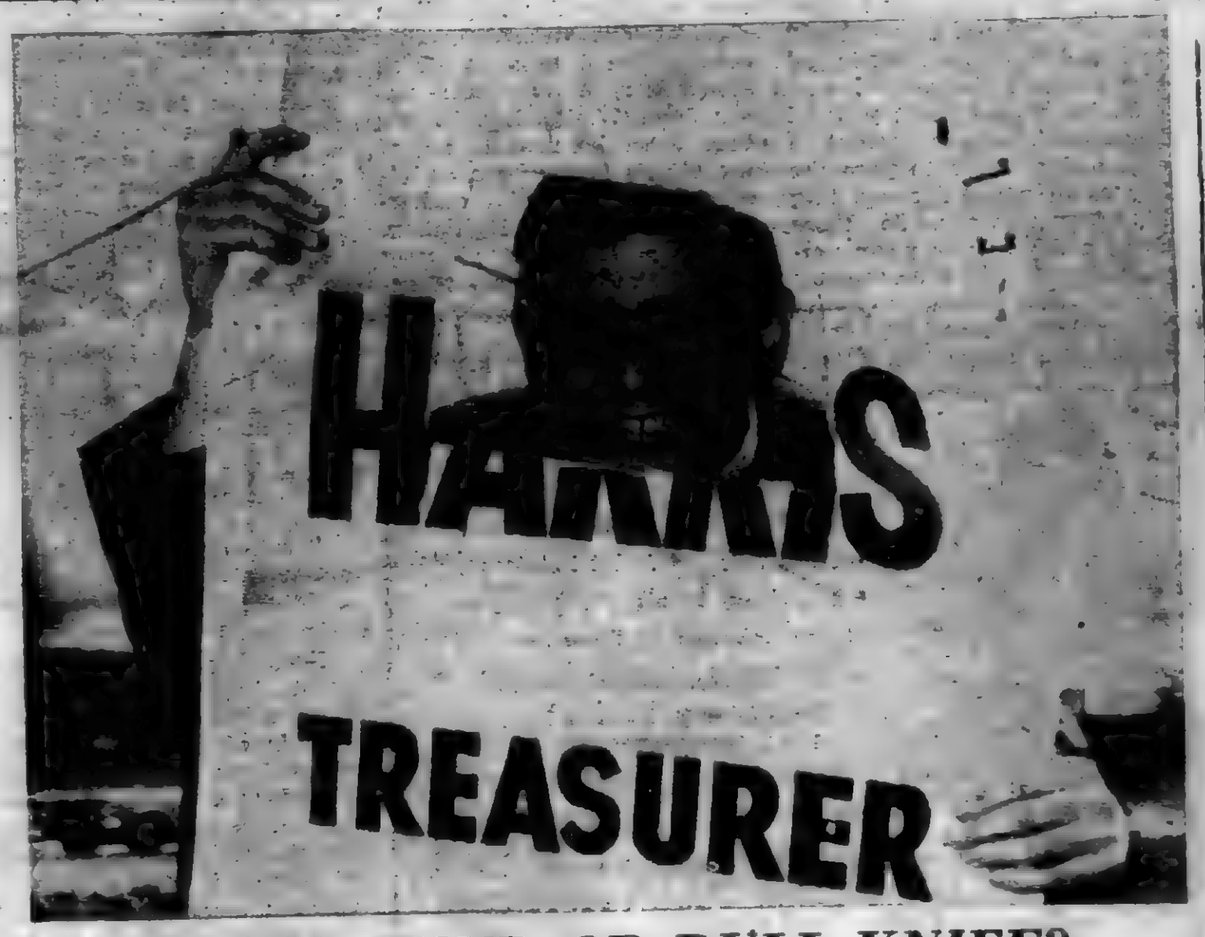
Don't Forget! Turn Those Clocks Ahead

Here's another reminder.

On Sunday at 2 a.m., Columbus, for the first time in years, will switch to Eastern Daylight Savings Time. Daylight time will be in effect until 2 a.m. on Oct. 29.



All you have to remember is to turn your clocks AHEAD one hour before turning in Saturday night. In other words, if you go to bed at 11 p.m., set all your clocks ahead to midnight

The Franklin County Board of Elections also reminds that the change in time will not affect voting hours on Tuesday. The polls will be open from 6:30 a.m. - 6:30 p.m. as usual.

SHARP WIND OR DULL KNIFE?

Stephen A. Harris, Democratic candidate for city treasurer in Tuesday's Whitehall primary, found out that Mother Nature doesn't play political favorites when it comes to blowing down campaign signs. But he wondered if it was more than a sharp wind that got at the sign he's peering through here. "I think it was something more like a dull knife," he said. The 28-year-old accountant's signs turned up with square cuts right where the name goes.

OSU Honors Topper

Isadore Topper, prominent local attorney; philanthropist and civic leader, was honored Saturday as "Councillor-In-Chief" by the Ohio State University College of Law in a surprise ceremony at the university.

Topper was honored specifically "in gratitude for his leadership and upbuilding of the OSU-College of Law." He is presently serving as head of the college's National Council, fund-raising branch of the alumni association, and is one of the College's leading benefactors.

Supreme Court Judge C. William O'Neill presented Topper with a plaque and oil portrait presented by Law College alumni and friends. The plaque cited Topper "as one distinguished for all time in the annals of the college" and "for faithful and inspired service to the profession you love."

Topper's rise to prominence is the classic "rags to riches" story. The oldest sons of immigrants Michael and Rebecca Topper, he sold newspapers on the streets of Toledo at the age of 5 to help bolster the family's meager income.

He worked all during the time he was in high school, then attended the University of Toledo, where he completed undergraduate work, and the OSU College of Law. He had enough money to pay his tuition at OSU but a friend had to loan him an overcoat to get him through the winter.

In his next to last year of law school, Topper decided to quit and attempt to pass the bar exam without completing his degree work. In those days, a degree was not a prerequisite for practice. Topper passed the bar, but a friend loaned him $150 to allow him to stay in school and obtain his law degree.

He first got into politics by running against an organization candidate for Republican precinct committeeman. That eventually led to a career as assistant attorney general under John W. Bricker. During that time, he rewrote all of the state's liquor laws and is considered the leading authority on Ohio liquor legislation.

Topper left the attorney general's office in 1937 to enter private practice. He is considered one of the most effective lobbyists in Ohio and is best known for representing major distilleries and wineries as well as the Buckeye Licensed Beverage and Food Dealers Association.

He is also an unofficial but respected advisor to the Republican Party in Ohio and is often consulted by Republican leaders or candidates who find themselves in a tough race. His luncheon table at the Neil House is a gathering spot for politicians, newsmen and civic leaders seeking discussion and advice.

He and his wife, Ida, live at 55 S. Remington-rd in Bexley.

Cycle Dealers Back State Safety Legislation

The Mid-Ohio Motorcycle Dealers' Association stepped in line last week behind legislation presently before the state lawmakers, urging mandatory safety measures for Ohio cyclers.

Over and above support of the proposed statutes, MOMDA recommended: (1) making high (ape-hanger) handlebars unlawful, (2) making the minimum length of handlebars 23 inches and (3) not making goggles, face shields or windshields mandatory at the present time.

A Sham - - A Fraud

Ohio voters are being asked to vote next Tuesday on a sweeping change in the state constitution—Governor Rhodes' Ohio Bond Commission amendment.

The Spectator Newspapers call upon responsible citizens to vote against this proposal. It also urges all responsible newspaper editors in the state to read Supreme Court Judge C. William O'Neill's recent dissenting opinion in the bond commission case and then react editorially.

Issue No. 1 flaunts the very constitution it seeks to amend. Governor Rhodes knows it. The legislature knows it. And the four judges of the Ohio Supreme Court who stood on their judicial heads to permit the issue to go on the ballot know it.

The law is quite clear, as Judge O'Neill points out, in requiring that constitutional amendments must be submitted to the electors at a general, not a special election.

On this point both the law and the logic of the law are being ignored.

Secondly, the Ohio constitution states very plainly "When more than one amendment shall be submitted at the same time, they shall be so submitted as to enable the electors to vote on each amendment separately."

Judge O'Neill states "An examination and careful study of the proposal before the court indicates there are at least four major purposes" included in the OBC amendment.

"It does not seem reasonable," he continues, "that a citizen should be asked to vote on a proposal containing such sweeping, diverse, and unrelated proposals, and be faced with a single choice that requires the voter to vote yes for all four of them, or no against all four of them."

"This can only lead to the corrupting of the constitutional amending process and to the undermining of constitutional government," O'Neill warns.

The third and final legal point in question is whether the condensed text as it appears on the ballot properly describes the proposal.

As O'Neill points out, the most important proposal in the amendment creates the Bond Commission with broad sweeping powers. It would seem logical then that the voter should be informed as to the make-up of the commission.

However, the only words in the text relating to this are "providing for the organization thereof."

No mention is made of how many members of the commission, by whom they are appointed, or if elected, the length of terms, the qualifications, how and by whom they are removed from office or how many votes are required to act.

"On these matters of omission alone, the condensed text is fatally defective," O'Neill notes.

The major thrust of the proposed amendment is to allow the commission to create state debt beyond the present limit without a vote of the people. The text does not tell the voter this, except to refer to "section 1 of said article."

"This is meaningless as a description for even the best educated and most intelligent voter," O'Neill insists.

"It can be said with fairness and restraint," O'Neill stresses, "that no voter, upon reading this text, would even know, let alone understand some of the most important, essential, salient and controversial features of this proposal, and that the best educated and most intelligent voter would be confused and misled by its language, organization and by what it mentions in contrast to what it fails to mention."

Such deceptiveness, O'Neill concludes, "sets a dangerous precedent for the future" and "it undermines the very foundation of representative government."

In spite of the governor, in spite of the legislature and the court, there is still time for the citizenry of Ohio to preserve for itself its constitution and its right to vote on public debt.

With a deep respect for the continued government of Ohio by law and not by men, The Spectator Newspapers urge voters to vote against Issue One.

Urban Roulette

The Biggest Fraud

By ROBERT BURDOCK
Editor and Publisher

BURDOCK

The biggest fraud in the political history of Ohio will be foisted off on the voters next Tuesday.

Only a relative handful of voters—chiefly party activists, vested interests and misguided, if well-intentioned, citizens—will cast ballots.

There is little interest in next Tuesday's election, except for the Rhodes administration's Ohio Bond Commission proposal.

It is a proposal so sweeping and so alien to representative government that if it had to be brought before Ohio voters at all decency would dictate that it come at a general election when a greater majority could express its will. But fearing the judgment of the people, the Rhodes administration railroaded it through a rubber stamp legislature and onto the primary ballot.

The Ohio Supreme Court, by a shaky 4-3 partisan ruling, allowed it to remain on the ballot under the cloudiest of circumstances.

And now, unless the Ohio Bond Commission is beaten by an aroused electorate, Ohioans will wake up Wednesday morning without their constitutional right to limit debt by their own vote. A Rhodes-named and Rhodes-controlled group of five men will have almost limitless control over all state capital spending throughout the next 10 years. Public control will be lost, abandoned to wanton political ambition.

The state legislature in its fear of reprisal let the people down.

Trade associations and chambers of commerce, still foolish enough to believe that they can make deals with the devil, let their members down with weak-kneed endorsements.

The big city press of Ohio, which has sat back and watched its metropolitan areas crumble, has bartered away its professional soul for promised state aid — no matter what the unquestioned cost or the political expediency.

And now finally, the Ohio Bond Commission reaches its final test — the people themselves. Either Ohioans vote "No" next Tuesday to control state debt, or lose that right forever.

Objects To Cartoon

To The Editor:

I am very disappointed that you should choose the Herblock cartoon on gun laws out of the many you have available to print. It is a very obvious smear of the National Rifle Association loaded with distorted facts and emotional appeal, and false characterization.

The NRA is made up of 800,000 citizens whose hobby is shooting and who are actively interested in gun sports and will speak out for the 30 to 40 million gun owners in the U. S. The NRA has had a proud part in our national heritage by promoting gun safety and good marksmanship since 1871.

The cartoon depicts the NRA as opposing gun laws. This is a half-truth used to smear the NRA, for though it opposes laws that would impose red tape and costly restrictions on the purchase, possession and use of arms it has been encouraging laws that would impose severe penalties on those who use guns to injure or coerce another or commit a crime. We are for laws aimed at the criminal, not at the gun so as to harass honest citizens. The cartoon depicts 17,000 gun deaths as though they were murders. Actually 9,500 were suicides, 2,200 accidents and 5,300 were murders, less than one-third.

How relevant are the proposed gun laws to the crime problem? The 1965 FBI report of serious crimes shows that firearms were used in only 3.2 percent.

The prevention of crime is a very complex nvolved and difficult problem that no one has produced an adequate solution for. Could this gun law battle to be a smoke screen thrown up by an ineffectual administration?

No Faith In OBC

To The Editor:

It is interesting to note that Gov. Rhodes has enlisted OSU president Novice G. Fawcett in his noisy line of tub-thumpers for the Ohio Bond Commission (via letter promoting same sent to OSU alumni last week).

The good president has far more faith in the OBC's promise of bigger and better things for Ohio Education than I, a humble alumnus of OSU.

The fact that my right to vote on the use of my money will be preempted by the OBC apparently is of no concern to the president.

I don't know where Mr. Fawcett marshalled the funds to print this bit of Rhodes' propaganda but I have my suspicions.

Quite humorously, OSU's request to me to help fill the alumni coffers arrived one day after the pro-OBC letter and found its resting place alongside the propaganda sheet — in my wastebasket.

That's pretty poor timing, fellows!

Ex-OSU supporter.

leo rennert ★ A Californian Looks At Rhodes—III ★

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third in a series of articles on the Rhodes administration by Leo Rennert, staff writer for California's McClatchy Newspapers group.)

To keep expenditures for elementary and secondary schools at current levels, California would have to hike local property taxes by more than $400 million a year if it switched to Ohio's method of financing education. In Ohio, public schools can count on state support for only 25.2 per cent of their income. In California, state apportionments cover 38.7 per cent of school expenses.

Ohio's much lower state effort and its correspondingly greater reliance on local taxes can be traced to the hold-the-line fiscal policies of Gov. James A. Rhodes.

Like California Gov. Ronald Reagan, Rhodes endorsed the desirability of a 50-50 local-state school finance formula when he first ran for governor.

But once in office, when he had to choose between boosting state support for education and maintaining "fiscal stability," he chose the latter.

Teacher salaries in Ohio once were above the national average. Now, the average Ohio salary of $6,534 is $287 below the national norm of $6,821 and $1,916 below California's average of $8,450. It is also at the bottom in the latest teacher pay ranking of states in the Great Lakes region.

Rhodes acknowledges that Ohio has problems in meeting school needs at the elementary and secondary levels.

But he has been reluctant so far to commit himself to a specific boost in state aid or a method of raising the necessary extra revenue.

The Ohio Education Association, an affiliate of the National Education Association, has announced that it may seek imposition of nationwide professional sanctions against Ohio's school system if Rhodes and the legislature fail to raise state apportionments.

But others are more skeptical. Tom Flinn, professor of political science at Oberlin College and an expert on Ohio politics, believes Rhodes will propose only "a little bit more — nothing very dramatic."

There is a great temptation within the Rhodes administration to pass on any extra costs for education to the local level.

Instead of boosting state taxes, Rhodes aides are talking about giving local districts greater authority to raise their own taxes, or creating taxing districts which would encompass several local school systems.

Ohio educators are prepared to oppose such an approach on the ground that heavier reliance on local taxes would only increase gross inequalities in financial resources from one community to another.

In California, Dr. Ronald W. Cox, associate state superintendent of public instruction, has pointed out repeatedly that there is only one effective way of equalizing financial support for local school districts — massive doses of increased state aid.

So far, Rhodes has declined to take this course. And that refusal offers strong evidence that unionism among teachers is bound to spread at the expense of old-line professional groups.

The Cleveland Teachers Union, for example, just forced its school system to the brink of a major strike and emerged with substantial contract gains.

The Ohio experience indicates that the California Teachers Association may lose appreciable rank-and-file support to its more militant rival, the California Teachers Federation, AFL-CIO, if school budgets get caught in any prolonged austerity freeze.

william s. white ★ Not Swinging But Solvent ★

WHITE

Prime Minister Harold Wilson is feeling the hot breath of angry English voters — not excluding many a supposedly unselfish, salt-of-the-earth working man from his own Labor party — against his heroic attempts to make England a bit less "swinging" and a bit more solvent in this world.

Wilson's Spartan program to shore up Britain's economy — at the cost not only of controls on business but also of freezes on wages — has now had shaking consequences. In municipal elections across the British Isles, his Labor party has just dropped 150 city council seats. Worst of all, for the first time in 33 years it has lost control of the Council of Greater London.

The irony of it is that Wilson has been locally repudiated in many places, though again not nationally, and the opposition Conservative party has correspondingly triumphed, on an issue in which his is the truly sound position in the whole lot.

For what he is doing to the economy is profoundly conservative, in the best and most responsible sense of that term, since his whole purpose is to restore Britain's historic position as an effective overseas trader in an increasingly competitive world. It is anti-featherbedding; it is anti-pie in the sky; it is prudence and pro-common sense.

All the same, it is perfectly clear when one examines these local election returns that Wilson is being hit in the eye not only by the Conservatives in his opposition but by thousands of labor union members in his own house.

The truth is that not since he became Prime Minister has he taken any action so sane and so courageous as has been his action on the economic front. The truth also is that while the Conservative party is inevitably the gainer in these returns, it is essentially a shabby and highly unmerited victory.

If anything is clear, it is that Britain simply must pull up her socks, or rather allow her socks to be pulled up for her by such as Wilson, if she is to survive as a great power. Her national bank account is very low, and the notion of more and more pay for labor with less and less work and more and more wholly unfettered short-term profits for business could literally sink her in a matter not of decades but merely of years.

Still, what was done here to destroy the very basis of England's economic power has long since been done and the process is historically irreversible. This means that Britain must at minimum develop, at all costs, a powerful and thrifty island economy to stay afloat at all; and this will still be true if and when the haughty Charles de Gaulle of France and other European powers may condescend at last to allow Britain to enter the European Common Market.

The plain fact—and this, too, is irony in the extreme—is that Harold Wilson, nominally a socialist though he is, has grasped the nettle of Britain's deep bread and butter problems with greater skill and higher bravery than his conservative predecessors had ever shown. If his own Labor party people are to continue to turn upon him, the resulting tragedy may be worldwide in scope and meaning and may clearly affect the United States itself.

marquis childs ★ Upsurge Of Population ★

CHILDS

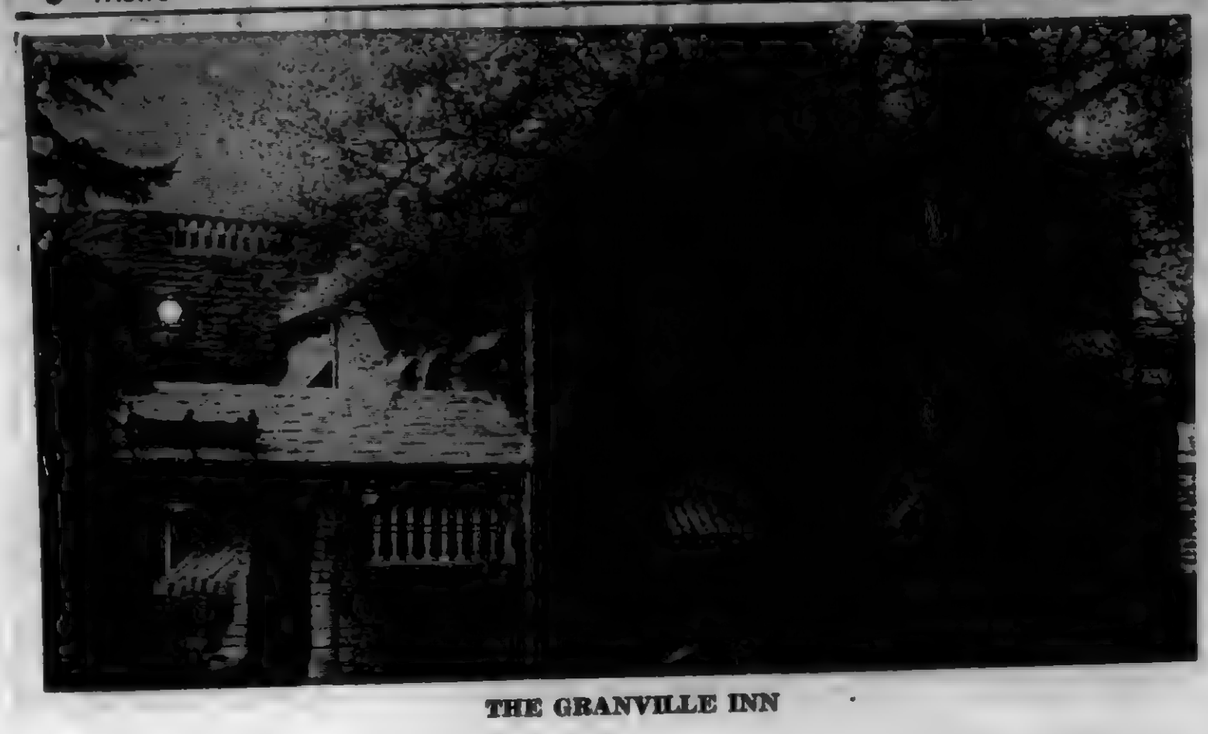
Bailing out a leaky boat with a teaspoon—that is what the effort is like thus far to stem the upsurge of population threatening to overwhelm the earth's resources. An important change in American policy could, however, mark the beginning of a more meaningful attempt to defuse the time bomb of the population explosion.

While it got little notice, William S. Gaud, administrator of AID told a Congressional committee that as part of AID's family planning program the United States will furnish contraceptive materials to countries requiring them. Until now AID has furnished only technical and advisory help for population programs, training and research.

The amount spent on this marginal effort has been tiny. Out of the economic program for the current fiscal year of $2.1 billion, less than $9,000,000 goes into family planning. Of that amount, $5,000,000 is a loan to Turkey to spread information about techniques to carry out family planning.

The cautious steps have been taken as the full meaning of death control — the conquest of ancient plagues limiting the growth of peoples —without birth control is evident. The summit meeting in Punta del Este and before that the session of the International Planned Parenthood assembly in Santiago, Chile, pointed up the urgent need for action in Latin-America where the population will double before the end of the century. Many of the Americas must import food to maintain a bare level of existence for constantly multiplying peoples.

AID has just put out a report showing startling contrasts in rates of population increase around the world. The rate for Latin-America is 2.9, over-all for the less-developed countries 2.5. The percentage for the developed countries is 1.1, the United States 1.2. In Italy, where the Roman Catholic Church is the official church, the rate is 0.7 only slightly lower than Denmark and the United Kingdom with 0.8.



Statistics for many underdeveloped and newly independent countries must be partly guesswork and they err on the optimistic side. Costa Rica shows a growth rate of 3.8, which far exceeds the growth of the gross national product. This last is true for many countries—the number of mouths to feed outstripping the resources to feed them.

Caution is still the keynote of AID's approach to family planning with stress on the request that must come from the country wanting help. Some advocates of the desperate need to bring food resources into balance with population growth urge that establishment of family planning programs be made a condition of economic help.

Any effort to persuade or coerce sensitive underdeveloped countries into taking contraceptive material would kick up a political storm. Still under study is how to go about providing such help. A possible model is the loan to Pakistan of $168,000 in Pakistan currency for a joint enterprise with an American drug company to manufacture the contraceptice pill as well as eight other drug products.

Of the total AID request for the next fiscal year of $2.53 billion $20,000,000 is budgeted for family planning. Double the current figure, it is a gain, although still a small beginning on an immense problem.

THE GRANVILLE INN

Granville Inn Called Elegant, Relaxing

Take thirty minutes of traveling, a nice spring day, an appetite for good food and elegant, yet relaxing atmosphere and you will be pulling up outside the Granville Inn.

Sallie Jones Sexton is the proprietress of this Tudor-style Inn which caters to dinners, luncheons, businessmen's meetings, seminars, parties and lodging facilities.

Quite dominate throughout the Inn is the touch of Sallie—her love of horses can be seen in paintings by James Reynolds. Also, the main lounge is decorated in tapestry and draperies using horses as their main theme.

Upon entering the inn, one is immediately surrounded by a warm and friendly atmosphere.

This is obviously due to the respect by those working at the inn for their "boss." In turn, Sallie has a special concern and regard for those on her staff.

The main dining room is called "The Peacock Room" which takes its name from two enormous murals by James Reynolds.

Antiques are displayed and in use throughout the inn adding to the overall relaxing, comfortable and charming atmosphere.

Want to take a trip? For a Sunday afternoon traveling excursion, this is definitely a must.

Curtain Call

Edited By Claudia Elkins

'Mary, Mary' To Close Season

For wholesome entertainment, the stage to head for is Village Little Theater, First Community Church on Cambridge-blvd.

Viewing the first act of "Mary, Mary" in rehearsal this past Monday presented many moments of seeing a well-directed show by Larry Greene.

"Mary, Mary" is a situation comedy dealing with a couple in the process of divorce. Enough said as this is one of t[illegible]se charming and delightful plays that all ends well. The audiences will derive good entertainment from this charming play.

Of the five actors presented on stage, only one is somewhat weak, Dave Scott as the husband. This is his first acting experience yet he comes through with promise.

Others on stage are delightfully entertaining as each has developed character in the mind as well as physically.

Carol Gregg as Mary is charming yet her role is the hardest to overcome as she must portray a changed personality in respect to the upcoming divorce. A bit too sophisticated, but well done.

Beatrice Kitchen as the prospective wife is powerful, yet too dramatic in spots. A very good contrast of the two women is accomplished.

Curt Meeks as the lawyer-friend is the mainstay with his perfection in acting very obvious.

The Hollywood actor as characterized by Jack Johannigman presents a rare treat with his portrayal. He sets the pace in many scenes and is very natural in his role.

This is no doubt one of VLT's better productions of the season. Do not shirk this one for here is well-presented.

Production nights are tomorrow, Friday and Saturday at 8:30 p.m.

UCC Asks Rhodes To Fight For Uniform AFDC Grants

The United Community Council believes that the General Appropriation Bill will defeat efforts to secure 100 per cent of minimum welfare standards on a state-wide basis for the 150,000 Ohio children supported through Aid to Families with Dependent Children.

O. A. Donnenwirth, UCC president, has written to Gov. James Rhodes taking this stand. He condemns leaving the decision to each county whether it will match on a 50-50 basis funds allocated to bring ADC payments from 78 per cent of what is recognized as necessary for minimum health and decency to 100 per cent. He contends it violates the intent of an earlier bill aimed at uniform standards throughout the state.

ACCORDING TO the current proposal, the $17,500,000 allocated to ADC program would be available only to those counties which raised matching funds. (For example, it would be necessary for Franklin County to raise $1,168,128 for the period of May through December, 1967, to be eligible for state aid over that required to maintain the present 78 percent minimum standards.)

Donnenwirth's letter also points out that the latest bill deviates from the "equitable formula" set up in the 1965 Bill under which federal, state and local responsibility was divided on the basis of ability to pay. (Franklin County, under this formula is responsible for 9.05 percent of the non-federal share of ADC financing.)

UCC has called attention to the discrepancy between the concept of intended use of the $17,500,000 annual state appropriation by the State Welfare director and that by the deputy director of the Department of Finance, Howard Collier.

THE STATE WELFARE Director has stated that a county must raise payments to 100 percent of standards before being able to request release of additional state money.

Collier states an error of concept in drafting the bill exists, and that the State will share on a 50-50 basis the cost of raising ADC grants to ANY level above 78 percent. In asking the governor to re-examine the General Appropriation Bill, Donnenwirth states UCC recognizes that increased revenue may be necessary to assure an ADC program financed at the 100 percent level.

Toward meeting this possibility, the Ohio Council of Churches is circulating petitions to the governor and the Ohio Assembly in which the signer declares his willingness to pay $3.50 a year in additional state taxes for each member of his family to bring minimum standards of food, clothing and health care to 150,000 children on Welfare.

THE PETITIONERS also state their willingness to consider the recommendations of recognized tax experts on the most equitable methods for levying this tax in Ohio.

The Club Doctor

By Muriel Miles

DEAR CLUB DOCTOR: I belong to art clubs and we had a "paint-out" in the park yesterday. I called several of my girls to try to be there. I was the only one who came. What would you do in my place?

EXASPERATED

DEAR EXASPERATED: I'd brush it aside and chalk it up to experience. And with no tinge of censure, I'd tell of the fun I had.

When the next paint-out comes along, the girls may very well ask you about attending. But nagging will never get them dabbing. Reduce the risk of repetition. Pin them down to more definite arrangements—car pools, perhaps, or all of you meeting beforehand so that you can go together.

Even artists, it seems, need more than a sketchy invitation.

DEAR CLUB DOCTOR: When we have a luncheon or dinner, we believe people who tell us they're coming and make our reservations accordingly. Usually, only half show up and the club is stuck with the rest of the tab.

What can we do to get all the people who make reservations to come? Or should we reserve for only half the number.

RSVP CHAIRMAN

DEAR CHAIRMAN: If you're betting on half and they all show, just try selling another ticket to Mrs. Famished who was turned away!

Give up the gamble. You can't win when your revenue or your reputation is at stake. And why leave it to chance? Collect in advance.

Missionary To Speak

Mrs. Mirian Ness, a missionary from Kenya, East Africa, will be the guest speaker at the 10:30 a.m. Morning Worship Hour at St. Paul Evangelical Congregational Church Sunday.

Mrs. Ness and her husband Carroll, are associated with the Africa Inland Mission.

And So It Grows

Small trees and shrubs injured by the unseasonably low temperatures in May last year need some pruning now to prevent disease from spreading.

The injured parts of these plants make ideal places for disease-causing organisms to enter and even kill certain branches. You can identify these spots by noting sunken areas with small dark structures the size of pin heads. All dead and infected wood should be removed, according to Ohio State University Extension plant pathologists. Burn or bury the canker-infected branches and spray the shrubs with fixed copper (50 per cent) using two pounds per gallon of water. Several applications this spring may be helpful.

Vegetable plants sensitive to cool weather can be planted sooner if you put protectors over them. While the most common protectors include the specially treated hat-like cones, you can improvise many others by using bushel baskets, wax-treated paper containers and hampers.

You can use these protectors on direct-seeded crops such as cucumbers, melons, and squash as well as the transplanted crops such as tomatoes, peppers, and eggplants.

Punch holes in the tops of the paper caps or cones to let moist air escape. Remove the caps during the days when temperatures are above 60 degrees, and stop using them when frost danger, night or day, has passed.

Petunas grow in a variety of shapes and colors and are almost foolproof to grow, even if you don't claim a green thumb. The easiest way to start them is with the plants, instead of seed.

Set them where they'll get full sun and in a soil that is well drained. When you water the plants, be sure to do it thoroughly. Avoid light sprinklings. If plants become tall and leggy during the season, cut them back to about four inches. They'll bloom again in about four weeks.

Black and purple raspberries should be topped to encourage the development of strong, fruitful, lateral branches. According to Extension specialists, you should snap off with your fingers or cut with a pair of shears the top three to four inches of the new shoots as they develop.

Top black raspberries when the shoots are about 24 inches high and purple ones when they reach 30 inches, if they are grown without supports. When grown with supports, the shoots may be allowed to grow six to eight inches more. Simply pinching out the tips or removing large segments of shoots has not proven so beneficial.

Lawn clippings left on the lawn help thin stands of lawn grasses, say Extension turf specialists. The clippings conserve moisture, keep the soil cooler, and permit re-use of the fertilizing materials in the grass.

However, clippings left on thick stands of grass may hinder the lawn by increasing disease problems, contributing to thatch build-up, and marring the appearance.

Mowing frequently will reduce clipping problems to a minimum, since the short pieces of grass can disappear among the grass blades. But if the lawn has gone unmowed until a windrow of hay follows the mower, remove the clippings.

Governor Rhodes

KEEP TAXES DOWN PUSH PAYROLLS UP

Fellow Ohioans:

In the special election on May 2, we have an opportunity to further the progress of our great state by approving the proposed Ohio Bond Commission to create more and better jobs and to put into law the legislative apportionment plan now in effect under a federal court order.

Ohio is moving ahead at an unprecedented rate.

We are number one in industrial development. We are fast becoming number one in many other fields. We must meet the rapidly expanding needs of our people. We must fight unemployment.

Our towns, cities and counties need help to develop their resources to the fullest. We need to increase our efforts to provide more and better jobs, better education, and more opportunities for all Ohioans.

The Ohio Bond Commission will give Ohio well-planned, orderly growth and development. It will mean 100,000 more jobs for Ohioans. It will put our state on a sound footing to meet the challenges ahead.

Every OBC project must be approved by the Ohio Legislature. Definite limits have been set for the amount of money the state can use for OBC projects.

Passage of Issue Number 1 will set the stage for the greatest period of growth Ohio has ever seen. It will mean a continuation of responsible progress for all Ohioans.

Issue Number 2 deserves your support because it will put into law the present system of legislative apportionment, already approved as a fair plan by a special federal court, in conformity with the U.S. Supreme Court's "one-man, one-vote" ruling.

Ohio needs your help on Issues 1 and 2. I urge every voter to support them to keep taxes down, to push payrolls up, and to help provide more and better jobs for Ohioans.

Vote YES May 2

YES [X] ISSUE NUMBER ONE

YES [X] ISSUE NUMBER TWO

Help Make Ohio Number One

Sincerely,

James A. Rhodes

German Village Edits Souvenir Publication

The German Village Publishing Co., Inc., has been formed for the publication of promotional and souvenir materials of German Village.

Formed with Jim Gruett and Don Scully as editor and business manager respectively (both men are associated with the Old World Bazaar at 555 City Park) the "Villager" is in the form of a monthly newspaper designed to resemble publications of a 100 years ago.

Interspersed with shopping news and news of the chicken thieves which were infesting the north end of the city in 1868 are included in the first issue.

It also reports the statement of an earlier President Johnson who apparently was not as "vocal" as LBJ. He issued the comment that he had not sent any message to the new Congress as he had no communication to make.

According to early information "new publication with a refreshing old look" is already being mailed to German Village visitors from 18 states and four foreign countries.

Miss Donna Robinson Becomes Bride Of Mr. Gary Howard

The Westgate Methodist Church was the scene of the recent marriage of the former Donna Robinson and Gary Eugene Howard with Dr. Albert L. Slack officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Donald R. Robinson, 93 Woodlawn-av, and Mr. Howard is the son of Mrs. William L. Lockhart of Gahanna and Mr. Billy Howard of Portsmouth.

Given in marriage by her brother, Charles R. Robinson, Mrs. Howard chose Mrs. Donald M. Robbins as her matron-of-honor. Other attendants were Mrs. James C. Horn, Mrs. Charles R. Robinson and Miss Paula Lockhart.

The bride's silk peau de soie and Frenche Pointe de sprit lace A Line gown featured a scoop neckline, short sleeves and an empire bodice of seed pearls. The detachable watteau train had a peacock sweep and quadruple bow and streamers. Her crown of lace and jewels held a veil of illusion. She carried a full sheath of Duchess glamellias accented with polished camellia foliage.

The attendants wore floor length gowns of yellow silk organza fashioned in the easy sheath silhouette. The molded bodices of re-embroidered lace feature oval necklines and elbow-length sleeves. Satin banded the empire waistline and floating panels of lace flowed from the backs of the gowns. Matching Dior bows held their circular illusion head pieces and each carried sheath cascades of white daisies.

Mr. Geoffrey R. Shuman served as best man and ushers were Messers. Donald Robbin, Larry L. Snider and Ronald Z. Emmonds.

Following the reception held at the church Mr. and Mrs. Howard left for a two-week honeymoon in Pompano Beach, Fla. They are now at home in Woodbrook Park.

The bride is a graduate of West High, attended Ohio State University and is employed as a legal secretary. The bridegroom also attended Ohio State and is a graduate of North High School. He is the co-owner of the Zig-Zag club.

PAL Official Ties Clean-Up In With Fire Prevention

When the Program Against Littering committee met with representatives of neighborhood councils last week to kick off the local clean-up campaign which is coordinated with Fire Prevention week, Jim Yoder presented them with vivid statistics.

The Director of Sanitation for the City of Columbus stated that of the fires in which $1.8 billion of property damage is caused annually, 12,100 are directly due to the accumulation of rubbish.

OF THE DEATHS resulting from fire last year, 572 came from fires originating from rubbish.

With open city trucks dated up until the first week in June by neighborhoods to pick up the refuse not ordinarily collected by packer truck, Yoder pointed out the magnitude of the task with the report of the 62 truck loads picked up in five days from Schultz Avenue to the Scioto River between Broad and the Pennsylvania Railroad. The trucks weighed in at 132 tons net weight.

Stating that the removal of old cars has been delegated to the safety department Yoder asked residents with inoperable junkers call the Service Department to insure their prompt removal.

REFERRING AGAIN to the debris which is the responsibility of the sanitation department, he asked that all discarded lumber be cut into four-foot lengths, that brush be tied in bundles and that whenever possible, other rubbish be placed in cartons.

He also stated that the city employees are not permitted to enter private property for pick up, and that residents should place all rubbish on the curb line.

This week, Good Will bags bearing fire prevention slogans ("Clean-up Intention is Fire Prevention. Beauty is a Bonus") went home with school children throughout the city.

LAST YEAR the response to this campaign was tremendous, according to Yoder, with 21,544 filled bags being returned to the schools where they were later collected by Good Will trucks.

Area Cindermen Head For 'Specials'

By JACK WITTENMEIER
Spectator Sports Editor

Area cindermen will need their biggest assist of the spring from that ole' moody weatherman with eight track "spectaculars" logged during the coming — "busiest-yet" — week of the '67 campaign.

Brookhaven (Bearcat Relays), Hilliard (Hilliard Invitational), Heath (Heath Invitational) and the Dayton Relays kick off the jam-packed week of activity Friday evening.

ON THE HEELS of those four specials come Relays at Bellaire and Liberty Union Saturday. Tuesday finds West hosting the annual Hilltop Relays and Wednesday initiates the first of league meets with the Franklin County running at Canal Winchester.

Another Wednesday special —the Mifflin Relays — has been cancelled for this spring due to lighting problems at the Cowpuncher field.

HILLTOP RELAYS

WITH THE flourish of trumpets, the 21st annual Hilltop Relays will get under way Tuesday at West High's Magly Field.

The pole vault will kick off action at 6 p.m. with running events beginning one hour later.

Host Rufe Glass' Cowboys are defending champions and will match their talents against those of City League mates East, Central, Eastmoor, Marion-Franklin and Brookhaven who appear in the Hilltop lineup this spring (event is run on revolving basis), allowing all CL schools a chance to compete).

ADMISSION will be 50 cents for all — at the gate.

West's Glass lists East and Central as pre-Relay favorites but won't discount his own Cowboys who have impressed this spring themselves.

For example, two-miler Chuck Starkey (best time — 9:49) and half-miler Steve Seyfried (best time — 2:00.8) are both unbeaten this season and should give the home crowd plenty to hoot about, along with Bronco 440 and 880 relay units which now hold existing school marks in their events.

HERE ARE the existing Hilltop standards:

100 — Smith (Central), 9.9, '49; 220— Lundy (East, '63), Covington (South, '53) and Smith (Central, '50) — :22.4; 440 — Moseley (Central), :51.4, '32; 880 —Mattie (Walnut Ridge), 1:56.2, '65; MM — Boddeugh (E-M, '66) and Slate (West, '56) — :14.9; SHUTTLE HURDLES — East, :58.9, '63; 440 R. — Central, :44.6, '43; 880 R. — Central, 1:31.4, '43; MILE R. — Whetstone, 3:28.1, '65; TWO-MILE R. — Walnut Ridge, 8:13.8, '65; SP — Marshall (East), 50'3½", '65; D — Marshall (East), 154' 2½", '65; PV — Brown (Whetstone), 12'4", '66; BJ — Hairston (Central), 22' 3½", '61; HJ — Ferry (West), 6'0", '28.

HILLIARD INVITATIONAL

WITH '66 pacesetters Jerry McAlister and Pete Miller back again this spring, host Hilliard looks like the early favorite to recapture honors Friday in the ninth running of the Wildcat Invitational.

Sprinter McAlister scored 18 points and field man Miller copped two firsts as Hilliard downed runnerup Delaware, 86-51, for the '66 crown.

Delaware will be back again this time, along with hopefuls Grove City, Franklin Heights, Pleasant View, Walnut Ridge and Grandview.

THE INVITE, which will contain the regular 15 track and field events, gets under way at 6 p.m. with prelims — running finals set for 8 p.m.

Admission will be 50 cents.

Here are the existing records:

SP — Jim Johnson (Marysville), 53'11", '63; D — Pete Miller (Hilliard), 174' 4½", '66; PV — Dale King (Hilliard), 13'2", '62; HJ — Bill Newman (Hilliard), 6'3", '63; BJ — Tom Gard (Hilliard), 20' 11½", '66; 2-M — Jerry Docherty (G-C), 10:50.8, '66; HH — Ron Kirk (Hilliard), :15.1, '62; 100 — Tom Gard (Hilliard, '66) and Bill Homes (Hilliard, '65) — :10.2; MILE — Jim Docherty (G-C), 4:27.1, '66; 880 R. — Hilliard (Humes, Weaver, Burleson, Kenney), 1:24.5, '65; 440 — Jerry McAlister (Hilliard), :51.4, '66; LH — Ron Kirk (Hilliard), :20.2, '62; 880 — Paul Rehder (G-C), 2:01.2, '65; 220 — Bill Humes (Hilliard), :22.5, '65; MILE R.— Grove City (Gorman, Peester, Dercy, Willis), 3:36.6, '64.

FCL MEET

A NEW champion is already guaranteed for Wednesday's first league meet of the season —the Franklin County running at Canal Winchester.

Last year's champ — Reynoldsburg (which nosed out the perennial hosts at the wire)— is no longer an FCL member.

Early favorite among the six-school lineup (New Albany, West Jefferson, St. Mary, Dublin, Academy and C-W) looks like Ron Weldy's West Jeff Rough Riders who lost little via graduation and have looked most impressive to date.

SINCE THE FCL field has been shortened, prelims (beginning at 3 p.m.) will be run in only the 100, 220, high and low hurdles. Finals should get under way by 3:30.

The FCL meet includes all 15 regular track and field events. Admission will be 25 cents for students and 50 cents for adults.

Here are the existing records:

HJ — Rice (W-J), 6' 3", '64; PV— Sayler (C-W), 11' 7½", '39; D — Peters (Hamilton Twp.), 141' 10", '64; SP — Peters (H-T), 50' 7", '64; LH — Rice (W-J), :19.9, '64; HH — Binns (Gahanna), :14.7, '56; 100 — Draudt (Academy, '61) and Skeen (H-T, '63) — :10.1; 220 —Donaldson (C-W, '65) and Miller (Groveport, '62) — :22.5; 440 — Burke (C-W), :51.4, '66; 880 — Alspach (C-W), 2:03.2, '63; MILE — Doren (New Albany), 4:41, '61; 880 R. — Academy (Schoene, Kirk, Shepard, J. Larrimer), 1:35.2, '64; MILE R. — Academy (Schoene, Kirk, Shepard, J. Larrimer), 3:37.2, '64; BJ — Moore (Marion-Franklin), 22' 4½", '56; TWO-MILE — Lipovich (Academy), 10:26.5, '65.

HEATH INVITATIONAL

REYNOLDSBURG, Canal Winchester and Carroll will lead the local parade of 21 combatants vying for the Invitational title Friday when field prelims get under way at 4:30 p.m.

Other Central Ohio squads included on the guest list are Cardington, Fairfield Union, Granville, Lakewood, Licking Heights, Licking Valley, New Albany, Watkins Memorial and West Muskingum.

Defending champion is Reynoldsburg, which outdistanced West Muskingum (45½ to 36) last season by taking four firsts.

RUNNING prelims begin at 4:40 p.m. with the high hurdles, and running finals should get started around 7 p.m.

Championship and runnerup team trophies will be presented along with another cup for the Invitational's top individual performer.

The Invitational will include all regular 15 track and field events. Heath is located on the south edge of Newark.

REYNOLDSBURG'S Monty Hayes has already bettered both existing pole vault and quarter-mile marks this spring and Terry Miller has equaled the high jump record.

Here are the existing records:

LH — :21.9; 100 — :10.5; 880 R. — 1:37.5; MILE — 4:37.5; MILE R. — 3:46.5; SP — 47' 1½"; PV — 11'6"; HH —:16.4; 880 — 2:02.9; 220 — :23.3; 440— :54.9; D — 140' 8"; BJ — 20'3½"; HJ —5'11".

BELLAIRE RELAYS

THREE EASTERN Franklin County squads — Gahanna, Whitehall and Eastmoor — will represent the Central District at Bellaire Saturday in "the" prestige meet of the spring.

The 13th annual Bellaire running, as usual, will attract the finest cinder squads from five states — Ohio, Kentucky, West Virginia, Pennsylvania and distant Maryland.

Action Saturday will get under way with the high hurdle prelims at 9:30 a.m., finals in the same event kicking off that section at 2 p.m.

CLEVELAND Glenville won last spring's Bellaire Relays, outdoing runnersup Cleveland East Tech and Cleveland St. Joseph. Gahanna, which placed 11th, was tops among area squads.

Here are the existing Bellaire marks:

100 — 9.7; 220 — :21.4; 440 — :48.7; 880 — 1:57.5; MILE — 4:21.5; HH — :14.5; LH — :19.2; 880 R. — 1:30; MILE R. — 3:22; 2-M.R. — 7:49; MEDLEY RELAY — 7:43.3; SHUTTLE HURDLES— 56.85; BJ — 22'5½"; D. — 165'10"; HJ— 6'6"; PV — 13'6"; SP — 57' 6¼".

DAYTON RELAYS

TWO CITY League strongboys — East and Central — will stop off at the 17th annual Dayton Relays Friday evening, both looking for improved finishes this spring.

Lee Williams' Tigers placed seventh (17 pts.) behind champion Dayton Roosevelt last year, taking firsts in both the sprint medley and mile relay events.

Central finished far down the line of entrants but figures to do much better this time around on the basis of excellent showings so far this season.

EAST'S Williams is especially pointing to the mile relay — an event in which no Ohio quartet has bettered his Bengals in competition this spring.

East's crew of Darryl Cochran, Trent Harris, Tom Watson and Eugene Hadden have recorded a best time of 3:25.1 this year.

All field events begin at 5

pin news

Keglers' Korner

BY NORMA EIKENDALL

It was big news when Worthington's Jim Berry (a 193 averager) popped a 781 in Akron at the 63rd annual Ohio State Men's tourney.

Elder and Epler Truck Stop, averaging 914, and 3C Lanes, carrying 906 average this winter, are competing in the the Woman's International Bowling Congress' 1967 Championships which opened April 13, in Rochester, N. Y.

A SEASON'S high of 792 was rolled by Ron Schaffner in the Main Classic League. Gary Slyh came up with a 726 in the same league and Hal Evrad hit 702 at Western for their first 700 of the season. Phyllis Waderker used a 258 game for a 633 series at Aero and Ethel Wiese led with 277 for a 666.

A new marathon bowling record has been claimed by Bill Halstead of Tampa, Fla. He bowled continuously for 175 hours, 25 minutes for a record of 1201 consecutive games. He had only one hour of rest each 24 hours. The previous record was held by Richard Dewey, O'Fallon, Mo., who bowled 1073 consecutive games in 1964.

Like golf, too, bowling is not physically violent. You'll sleep like a top after three or four games. It is good exercise — principally because it gives the abdominal muscles a much needed workout.

THE SMART thing to do, in the beginning, is to ask one of the attendants at the bowling center to give you some tips—provided you don't personally know some kegler who will be delighted to do that for you.

Neither of them will charge you anything (bowlers are like that!) and one or the other will be able to show you how to keep a larger percentage of your balls on the lane bed.

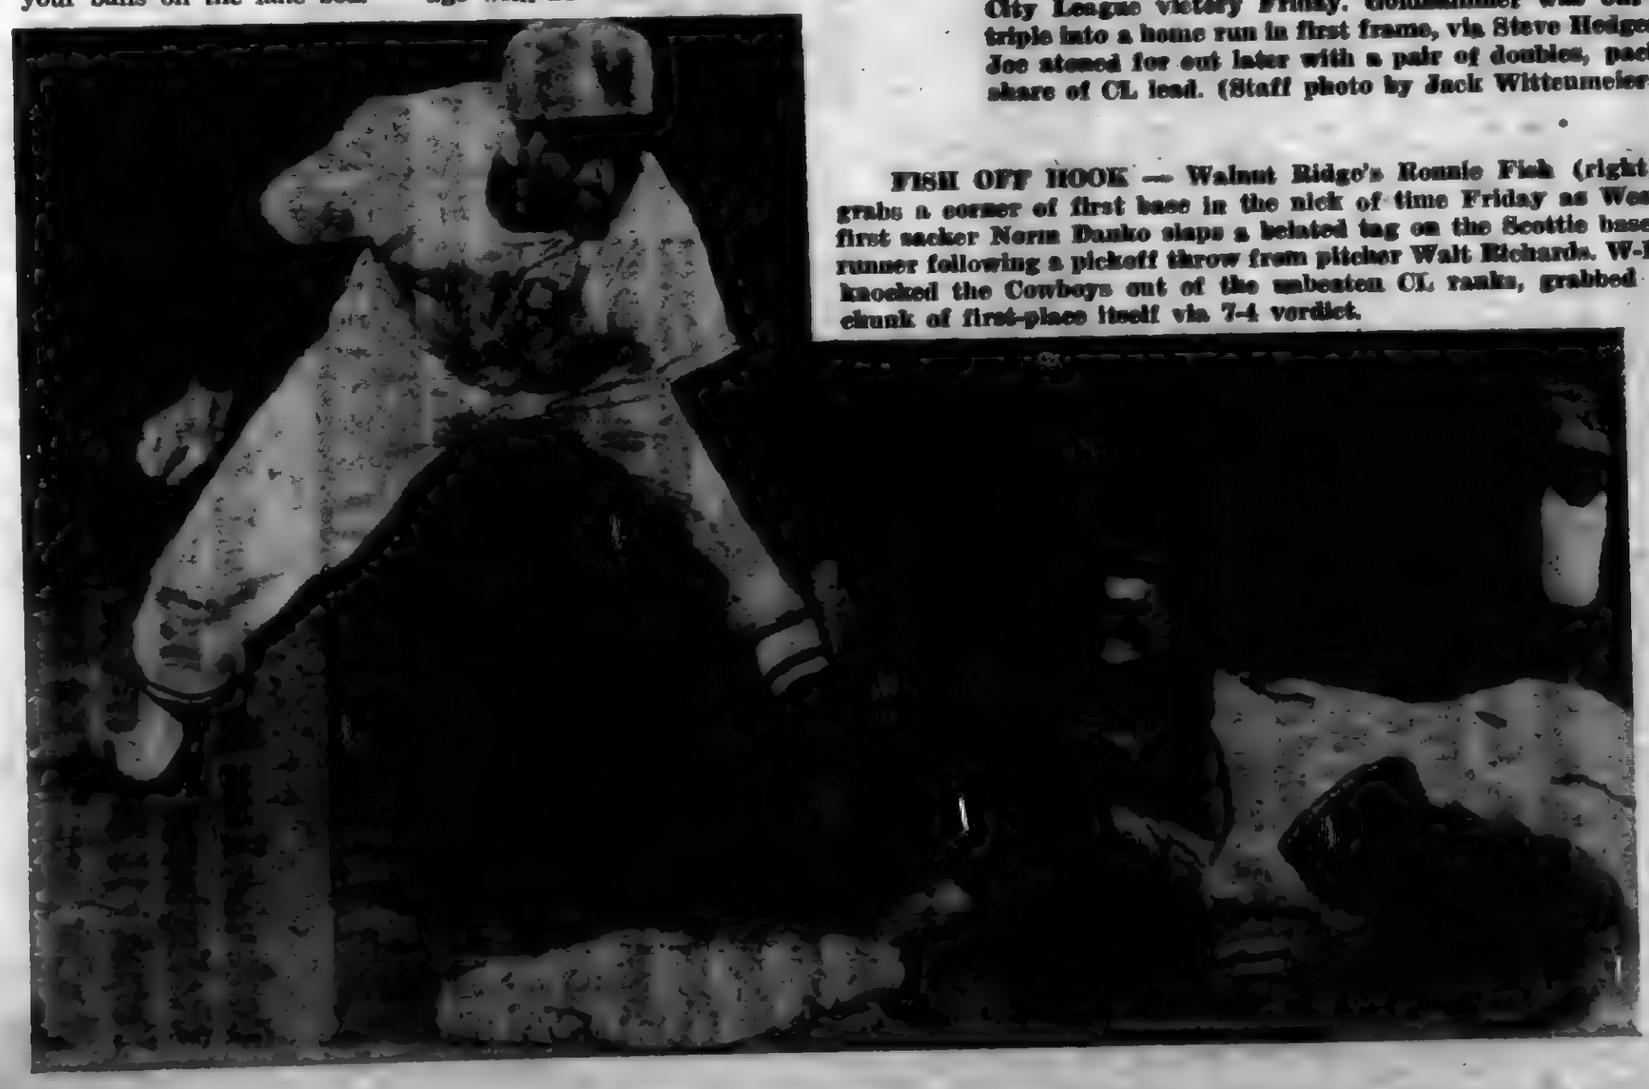
They'll emphasize the necessity of the straight arm; the importance of a three-or four-step approach rather than the flat-footed stance; the advantage of keeping your feet wide apart; the necessity of bending at the hips; the reason for rolling the ball rather than throwing or bouncing it.

AS YOU progress they will demonstrate the difference between the "straight cross" and the "hook" delivery; the reason for seeking a "1-3 pocket" rather than aiming flush for the head pin; when to bowl from the left-hand side of the lanes rather than the right; how to "shave" a pin [illegible] shooting the spare ball on a "railro[illegible]" and other things to improve your game.

Grade School Diamond Loops Start Today

Defending CYC Southeast division champs Christ the King open title defense Wednesday afternoon.

The Cougars of Coach Wally Teeters closed a pre-loop schedule with 5 wins against 4 losses including a dandy no-hit performance by plucky Steve Leslie, Saturday in a 16-0 win over Zanesville St. Thomas in the second game of a twin-bill. CTK copped the opener 6-4 on Paul Kiener and Gerry Weisgerber's mound work.



Other league members opening grade school action Wednesday are Holy Spirit, St. Catharine, Corpus Christi, St. Matthew, Rosary, St. Thomas (Columbus), St. Pius and St. Ladislas.

Teeters' combine have been led in the hitting department by Jim Wile, who owns a .565 average with 14 rbi's.

A YOUNG MAN'S FANCY ETC.

Ah, springtime — when a young man's fancy turns to - er - baseball. Above, an immovable object (West catcher Ted Decker) meets an irresistible force (Walnut Ridge's Joe Goldhammer) at home plate during Scotties' 7-4 City League victory Friday. Goldhammer was out trying to stretch his long triple into a home run in first frame, via Steve Hedges-to-Norm Danko-to Decker. Joe atoned for out later with a pair of doubles, pacing Highlanders to win and share of CL lead. (Staff photo by Jack Wittenmeier).

FISH OFF HOOK — Walnut Ridge's Ronnie Fish (right) grabs a corner of first base in the nick of time Friday as West first sacker Norm Danko slaps a belated tag on the Scottie baserunner following a pickoff throw from pitcher Walt Richards. W-E knocked the Cowboys out of the unbeaten CL ranks, grabbed a chunk of first-place itself via 7-4 verdict.

Get Fast Start

Bill Barr's Eastmoor netters have gotten off to a fast start this spring, winning four of their first five matches.

Setting the pace have been unbeaten doubles performers (5-0) co-captain Brian Friedman and Jeff Schneider, E-M's second doubles pair — co-captain Rod Ishida (3-1) and Rick Levy (3-0) — have also guided the Warriors to their fine start.

Other E-M net performers this spring are: Steve Handler, Len Comeras (both 4-1), Mike Silberstein, Phil Miller and Steve Hameroff.

The Warriors' next test comes tomorrow (Thursday) when West visits the E-M courts.

Young Ric Diffee gets a ride from Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner as the mayor proclaims "Childhood League Week in Columbus" for May 1-7. Looking on are Mrs. Stephen Auch, next to the mayor, and Mrs. Robert G. Lape.

Mayor Issues Proclamation Honoring Childhood League

May 1-7 will be "Childhood League Week" in Columbus, recognizing Columbus' program for "slow learning" children between the ages of four and seven.

Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner proclaimed "Childhood League Week" as the league planned for its annual show, "The Merry-Go-Round," to be held May 6 at the Hartman Theater.

The league operates the Childhood League Pre-School for Slow Learners at 850 S. 18th-st, a non-profit, non-sectarian, interracial school for youngsters who because of birth defects or emotional handicaps are in the "slow learner's" range of 50-79 I.Q.

More than 80 women are in the group, headed by Mrs. Keith DeVoe. The school has small classes, half-day sessions and special features such as mother-child swim classes under Red Cross instructors. Playground equipment is designed to promote motor skills.

On hand to receive the proclamation were Mrs. Stephen Auch, 2201 Cambridge-bl, and Mrs. Robert G. Lape, 2333 Brentwood, along with young Ric Diffee, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Diffee, a student at the school.

The 1967 edition of "Merry-Go-Round" will be directed by Peter Thomas of New York's Jerome H. Cargill Producing Organization. The show features lavish production numbers, old-fashioned picnic scenes and scenes from the Roaring Twenties to fit its theme, "The Good Old Days" in Columbus.

Proceeds of the show help support the school. Tickets for the show and dance which follows are available from Mrs. Charles Gilbert, 1678 Sunridge-rd.

Tickets Available For Tomato Fair

Tomato Fair membership tickets are now on sale to help finance the fair activities to be held in conjunction with the Fourth of July celebration.

The tickets will entitle holders to the swim meet, dances and the door prizes. Interested persons may purchase the tickets from any member of the Tomato Fair Committee or call Donna Rush, membership chairman, at 866-7850.

A parade for the Fourth of July celebration is in the planning stage by the Tomato Fair Committee. All organizations are urged to fill out the coupon below and be represented in the parade.

Money for the entry fee will be returned in the form of prizes, according to Dr. Morgan Heflin, chairman of the parade committee.

Walnut Hill Plans Growth With Area

In June, a full-time minister for the Walnut Hill Methodist Church will be selected who will move into the new parsonage at 846 Alburn-dr in Hamilton Meadows.

This move is a part of the overall plan through which the congregation plans to continue its history of leadership and service in the community which began in 1804

ACCORDING TO Rev. Charles Titko, Walnut Hill pastor who also serves the Obetz Church, the long range plans for the expansion of the Walnut Hill Church were formally approved last week following closely the recommendation submitted by the planning committee chaired by Robert Koontz, assisted by Mrs. Hazel Hann, Lowell Garrison, Kenneth Moore and Attree McClish, Sr.

With 12 acres on Rathmell Road known as the Sherman property recently acquired by the Columbus District Methodist Union for the benefit of Walnut Hill, a Capital Funds Crusade will begin under professional leadership in the immediate future.

However, contingent upon the growth of the community and the Church, Titki predicts that relocation of the church to the new site will not become a reality for another five years.

CURRENT MEMBERSHIP goals of the rapidly expanding church (membership over the past 10 years has increased 159 percent and contributions to the church jumped 40 per cent in the past year alone) is 400 members. Membership now stands at 167.

However with subdivision development predicted to spiral (1,000 new homes have been built in the area in the last decade, and 480 more are anticipated through 1969) it is believed it is impossible to predict ultimate church enrollment.

Titko stated that the purchase of the Herbert Dudley property as a parsonage should be finalized this week, although possession will not be given until May.

With a down payment of $4,200 made (from a fund raising campaign which was over subscribed) a FHA mortgage has been secured on the balance of the purchase price of $17,948.65.

The trustees of the church have also been authorized to sell the property on Rohr Road donated to the church by Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Dill as a parsonage site with the proceeds applied against the mortgage.

ACCORDING TO Titko, there is no consideration being given to razing of the old church which is approaching its 100th anniversary. He explained that if community growth keeps pace with that anticipated, there will be use for both new and old facilities.

Another important move made at the meeting which is considered a landmak in Walnut Hill's history of progress is the resolution to begin planning to insure perpetual care of its cemetery.

Surprise Party Honors Boy On 11th Birthday

By ISA BARRETT

Young Ricki Lorentz celebrated his 11th birthday last Sunday afternoon with a surprise birthday party given by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Lorentz.

Guests included Billy, Kristy and Marci Foster, Jimmy and Sheryl Slonaker, Mike Slonaker, Ginny and Cathy Cutler, Sam Van Schoyck, David Hall, Kendall Weeks and Kim Rice.

Miss Otta Snouffer of Powell, Ohio, and Morton Oldham of Reynoldsburg were quietly married at a Tuesday evening service at the home of the bride.

The Rev. Charles Kirsch, pastor of the Reynoldsburg Methodist Church was the officiating minister. The bride is a retired school teacher and the groom is a retired farmer.

The new office of Dr. Snow, located on Main Street just west of the former Methodist Church, should be completed soon.

The W.S.C.S. of the Reynoldsburg Methodist Church held its monthly meeting in the church sanctuary, Tuesday evening, April 18.

District Vice-president Mrs. Carl W. Schewfer was the guest speaker. Hostesses were the Martha and Phoebe circles.

Mr. and Mrs. James Boren have returned to their home on South Lancaster Avenue after spending the winter in Florida.

Mrs. Nelson Hickman was a guest lecturer at the Solaqua Club, located on East Broad Street, last Thursday.

Mrs. R. L. McClarren entertained the pre-school committee of the D.A.R. last Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Evans left by plane April 19 for a two-weeks visit with their son, Jim, and his family in Pensacola, Florida.

Lee Wollam, an employee of NAA has received a promotion which has taken him to McCallister, Okla. His family will soon join him there.

MISSES PET

Little Cindy Yinger, 1096 E. Nocturne-rd, remembers happier days when this picture was taken. Her dog Chico disappeared Sunday, April 2, and she hasn't been able to find him since. Chico is a brown, white and black "whatchacallit" with a white tip on his tail. He was wearing a tan collar without dog tags. If anyone has seen the dog, he is asked to call 866-6191. The Yingers are offering a reward.

Defending District Nines Put On Spot

By BOB WHITMAN
Spectator Staff Writer

Defending Class "AA" Central District baseball royalty . . . Walnut Ridge and Franklin Heights . . . may have their prestigeous thrones threatened during first round 1967 Central District tourney action beginning Tuesday.

The Scotties, who rode into the Regionals last spring in something out of Cinderella, were paired with Newark (11-4) in Section Three play on the Walnut Ridge diamond.

ED LEWIS' Franklin Falcons face Ready (6-4) at Ready Tuesday in Section Two action.

Franklin Heights is currently riding in third place of the Metro League, where it finished second last year, while Walnut Ridge and three others (Whetstone, East and Marion Franklin) own the first spot in the City circuit.

WHETSTONE (7-1) drew a first round bye and will meet the winner of the Delaware (2-3) - North (6-3) games on May 4.

East (6-1) faces Bexley (1-3) and Marion Franklin (5-3) battles Metro leader Reynoldsburg (5-1) to round out the City frontrunners.

Current Catholic first placer, Hartley (8-2) hosts Hamilton Township (3-5) Tuesday while Mid-Eight leader Westerville (8-3) has the winner of the Brookhaven (1-7) - Eastmoor (5-2) next Thursday.

OTHER FIRST round action finds Fairfield Union (5-2) hosting Groveport (0-3), Hilliard (5-3) at Watterson (6-4), Marysville (4-4) hosting Northland (2-0), West (5-1) hosting Grove City (4-2), Central (1-6) facing Circleville (4-0) and Mt. Vernon (0-1) at Utica (3-5).

Veteran tournament drawing conductor Ralph Webster was back at his usual post Monday night at the drawings held at Williard's in Bexley. Webster has been sidelined with heart trouble since the night of the cage tournament drawings.

EYE ON THE ROAD

Driving and traffic and reading a map don't mix, warns the Columbus Auto Club. Motorists on long trips should plan their routes in advance, anticipating a change of direction. Last-second stopping or turning may result in an accident.

Maverick

with muddy shoes

RICHARD L. PAUGH

I am more and more convinced that Columbus and its leaders should be congratulated for their expert management of the recreational facilities and potentials of Hoover Reservoir.

It becomes a more ideal fishing spot each year.

DESPITE THE fact that early planners of the impoundment were too short sighted to buy the land around the water's edge, it is getting to be the finest walleye lake in Ohio.

PAUGH

I visited the Dam last week to observe the raising of the test nets. I was amazed at the number and size of the walleyes. There were people from Ohio State on hand to take scale samples, tag and get eggs from the netted fish.

They hope in the coming years to retain Hoover as a test lake in order to study the entire environment of the fish population.

DESPITE HEAVY pressure from all manner of groups to get the horsepower raised on Hoover, the City Administration has proclaimed it a fishing lake are is ready to stand back its its edict.

The last two years have seen many Ohio fishing lakes turned into raceways and the same so-called outdoorsmen have made noises in the direction of Hoover.

I am assured by many within the City's leadership that the noise is just that — nothing more. Last week at the Waterways Activities Committee meeting, it became apparent that the sailboaters and the fishermen at Hoover were getting into each other's way.

THE SAILBOATERS were quickly reminded that their clubs use City of Columbus reservoirs only at the pleasure of the City and at Hoover, the sailors are second in importance to the fishermen.

Hoover reservoir offers almost anything the angler could wish for. Down through the channel, its walleye trolling is considered to be in the top three in Ohio.

The coves and bays along the eastern shores are loaded with big mouthed bass and plump blue gills. The northern reaches are nesting grounds for bass until June 15 and abound with carp for the bow fishermen.

UNDER THE high banks of the western side, crappies are just four feet down, waiting for you to dangle a saucy minnow.

If you are a worm-on-the-bottom-type fisherman, try anywhere along the gentle sloping banks. A fat, nightcrawler can get you a good sized catfish or walleye any day in the week.

By next year, the new boards will be installed on the dam and Hoover will be eight feet deeper. This will make the shoreline longer and more interesting. In many places, the City will find it necessary to buy more land. They are supposed to own 20 feet above the water line.

IF YOU don't have a boat or would rather stream fish, below the dam there is a great challenge to the fly fisherman. All the fish found in Hoover are also found in great aboundance below.

From what I saw in the test nets, Hoover Reservoir could very well come up with a new record walleye this year.

'Hockey Hounds' Boost Checkers

The Columbus hockey Checkers received a shot in the arm last week with the formation of the "Hockey Hounds," a group dedicated to boosting the local IHL club.

The "Hounds," led by Western Electric supervisor Bill Kelley, will be identified by bright red jackets with an insignia on the breast pocket.

They have set a goal of 1000 season tickets and 108,000 total attendance for the '67-'68 home season — an average of 3000 per game.

The group will be limited to 10 members, will make speaking apperances and talk hockey on behalf of the Checkers.

For further information about the "Hockey Hounds," call Kelley at 885-1080.

Big Bill vs. Dr. Jerry

Big Bill Miller and Dr. Jerry Graham will face off in the feature bout tomorrow in pro-wrestling action at Cooper Arena.

Other matches on the card include: Igor vs. Bolo; Chief White Owl vs. Big Mike Loren; Volkoff Brothers vs. Prince Pullin and Lou Klein. Action begins at 8:30 p.m.

WATCH SLOWPOKES

Slowly moving tractors and other farm vehicles are added driving hazards during the spring planting season, says the Columbus Auto Club-AAA. Motorists should reduce speeds and prepare for emergency stops in areas where farm equipment is likely to be on the roads. The safest way to pass a tractor is to reduce your speed, trail along behind it until you see adequate clearance ahead, and then pass.

Hawk Cindermen Sweep Pair; Parry, Hadden Earn 'Triples'

Host Walnut Ridge finished sixth (24 pts.) behind winner Whetstone (91 pts.) at the Scotties' Invitational Relays last week as 12 of 16 existing marks fell by the wayside.

The Scotties contributed to the record assault themselves with a two-mile relay first (Ion Sancho, Steve Williams, Roy Barber, Rick DeFourney) in 8:22.1.

PLACES BY hurdler Bruce Baker, fieldman Fred Browning and high jumper Chuck Bosse allowed Gahanna-Lincoln 5½ points at Saturday's Toledo Relays won by Cleveland St. Joseph (32 pts.)

Jim Palmer's Hartley Hawks made the biggest noise in the dual meet department, topping Hamilton Township (72-55) and Wehrle Memorial (99½ to 27½).

Craig Wingo (BJ, HJ) and Bob Fowle (HH, HJ) were double winners vs. H-T while Wingo, Fowle and Kevin Astley (100, 220) won twice against the Wolverines.

BEXLEY SPLIT a pair, downing Franklin Heights, 78-49, and losing by an identical score to BAC-mate Grandview.

Winning every running event by the mile relay, the Lions shot down the Falcons with Tom Erwin (BJ, HJ), Glenn McAllister (both hurdles) and Carl Friedland (100, 220) showing the way.

Hurdlers McAllister and Bill Reynolds provided the lone firsts in the Grandview meet.

EASTMOOR (73½) topped Grandview (57) and Reynoldsburg (28½) in a triangular meeting before running in powerful Arlington and losing, 83-44.

Jack Parry paced Warrior triangular scoring with wins in the discus and both hurdles events. Terry Miller was Reynoldsburg's lone double winner (BJ, HJ).

Parry again showed the way vs. Arlington with victories in the disc and high hurdles while Phil Starks (BJ), Dave Lewis (two-mile) and Dwight Cartier (220) got the other E-M firsts.

WEST NOSED out East, 60-58, despite another outstanding performance by the Tigers' Eugene Hadden (won BJ, 220, 440 and anchored East's winning mile relay quartet).

Two-wins by Bruce Baker (both hurdles) and Ron Doran (100, 440) helped pace Gahanna to an 86-41 win over Brookhaven.

Linden (72) beat Walnut Ridge (55½) and North (37½) in a triangular match with Ion Sancho (mile), Rick DeFourney (440), Roy Barber (880), Al Brandt (shot) and Ken Hoff (PV) picking up the individual Scottie firsts.

M-F's Ross Nabs No-Hit Club Status

Marion - Franklin sophomore Otis Ross became the third pitcher this spring (and 19th overall) to gain admission to The Spectator's "No-Hit Club" last week with a hitless effort against Linden.

Ross, who fanned 11 and walked two, joined the club via a 1-0 decision over the Panthers. The Red Devil hurler will receive a certificate from The Spectator commemorating his effort via M-F coach Charlie Maloney.

Rainouts, Overworked Shade Dulls Raider Flag Optimism

By JACK WITTENMEIER

Spectator Sports Editor

The old Boston Braves, NL pennant winners back in 1948, had a magic pitching formula called "(Warren) Spahn, (Johnny) Sain and rain."

The Braves allegedly won the flag with two "stoppers" and some rather uncanny cooperation from the weatherman. (Incidently, it stopped raining by World Series time and Cleveland won, four games to two).

REYNOLDSBURG diamond mentor Dan Brown (despite his Raiders' lofty position atop the Metropolitan League) is concerned about that same type of formula this spring—with a reverse twist.

The rain has been falling at the wrong times for Dan and after a 16-14 knock-down, drag-out win over Westerville last week the Raider field boss is wondering if he has any more than one stopper on the premises.

Consider Reynoldsburg's rather crowded schedule this week: at Teays Valley (yesterday, too late for press deadlines), Hamilton Township (home, this afternoon), Franklin Heights (home, Friday), Westerville (home, Tuesday) and Groveport (home, week from today).

ADD TO THAT one or more games in the District tourney this coming week and it's easy to see why Dan is shaking his fist at the elements.

On the brighter side is the Raiders Metro position after last week's action. While Reynoldsburg blanked Pleasant View, 4-0, Whitehall and Franklin Heights (stand behind Raiders with one loss apiece) each socked former co-leader Teays Valley.

Once again, it was the story of Gary Shade's strong arm and big bat vs. the Panthers. Besides spinning a two-hit, eight-strikeout game, Gary banged a triple and a two-run homer.

SHADE'S first-inning triple scored Tim Wolfe for the only run Gary was to need. Phil Nolan's single then plated Shade.

The 16-14 win over Westerville obviously wasn't quite that cut and dried.

There were plenty of Reynoldsburg hits (14) but even more Wildcat safeties (16). And all the enemy runs and hits came at the expense of the remaining two-thirds of the Raiders' mound corps — Steve Pinnick and Dave Meredith.

MEREDITH picked up the win but needed a side-retiring effort by Shade (whose allowed but one run in 36 innings pitched this spring).

Hitting leaders vs. Westerville were many—Tim Wolfe (three singles, two RBIs), Phil Nolan (double, single, six RBIs), Shade (triple, homer, three RBIs), Denny Spires (single, double, two RBIs) and Ken Buck (home run, one RBI).

Shade even capped the big (and winning) six-run seventh frame. Spires' bases-loaded double scored two in that inning and Wolfe's single plated another, but it took Shade's clutch three-run homer to turn defeat into victory.

GARY'S hitting productivity during the week raised his BA to a squad high .462—followed by Tim Wolfe (.424), Spires (.375) and Nolan (.348).

Ohio Voters Smash OBC Proposal

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Ballenger Wins Big In Whitehall

THE EASTERN
SPECTATOR
OHIO'S LARGEST WEEKLY NEWSPAPER

Columbus, Ohio, Wednesday, May 3, 1967

Vol. XI, No. 35—Total No. 451 | Second Class Postage Paid at Columbus, Ohio | 274-1155 | 10 Cents

Ohio voters turned a solid thumbs down on Gov. James A. Rhodes' pet Ohio Bond Commission proposal Tuesday night and were dragging legislative reapportionment down with it.

In Columbus, Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner got a resounding vote of confidence and will oppose Hilltop funeral director Jerry Spears in November.

OBC, despite smug predictions of easy victory coming out of the Statehouse, got off to a bad start and trailed through the night. With 50 per cent of the vote counted, it was winning in only one county, Guernsey, and was winning there by only 66 votes.

Sensenbrenner garnered 54,246 votes to 23, 816 for Spears and only 5,682 for Councilman Ronald DeVore, the unendorsed Republican. Spears blamed the poor GOP showing on general apathy by Republicans.

Former Democratic Rep. Jerry O'Shaughnessy led the 10-man race for eight spots on the City Council ballot in November, with Democratic Council President William P. Hoermle a close second and incumbent Republican Roland A. Sedgwick third.

Others gaining nomination were Charles R. Petree II, Clifford A. Tyree, Edwin P. Brinkman, Robert T. Forman and Lawrence E. Hughes. Forman barely edged Frank Fetch for the eighth slot while Donald L. Henry finished far behind the field.

Columbus voters approved the city charter change on the suspension of city workers, 35,790-31,880. Franklin County voters defeated OBC but approved the reapportionment amendment.

In Whitehall, it will be incumbent Democratic Mayor Paul J. Haytcher against Councilman Lester Ballenger and independent Ellis Bailey in November's runoff.

Ballenger won his spot on the ballot with a convincing 987-766 victory over former Mayor William Holzhause in the GOP primary.

Incumbents Raymond Shipley and Linn Hiatt and John A. Bishop clinched the three GOP nominations for councilman-at-large and will oppose Councilmen Gilbert O'Shaughnessy and Marvin Levine and newcomer Pat Mann in November. Bishop edged out Theodore Harmony by only three votes for the third GOP spot.

Former Mayor and Treasurer Walter B. Moling won a chance to try again for the treasurer's post when he whipped incumbent Francis Shaeffer in the GOP primary while William E. Mason nosed out Stephen A. Harris for the Democratic nomination by a slim 57-vote margin.

In the only council ward races, Karl J. Stimmel bested Sally S. Coady for the GOP Ward Three nomination while Donald Patrick edged Loren F. Mason by only four votes, 118-115, for the Democratic Ward One nod.

THEY'LL REIGN FOR RAMS

Contestants at Friday's Whitehall Relays should be spurred to winning efforts if only to receive their trophies from this quintet of lovely Ram Relay queens. Whitehall queens include (foreground, from left): seniors Sue Hampl and Debbie Parker. Back row: junior Kathy Vanderburg, freshman Dena Shipman and sophomore Debbie Landis.

Report Due Thursday On Experimental Job Program

Columbus' 103 equal opportunity employers will gather at a breakfast meeting Thursday at the Southern Hotel for a report on a unique job interviewing program that is taking the jobs into the centers of unemployment.

The program is jointly sponsored by the Columbus Plan for Progress Committee and the Columbus Metropolitan Area Community Action Organization (CMACAO).

Under the plan, CMACAO staff aides in centers at 771 E. Long-st and 1189 Dennisonav seek out job-hunters and take their applications. Business representatives visit the centers two days a week to discuss job openings with applicants.

Roy Klass of Western Electric, chairman of the Plan for Progress Committee, told the equal opportunity employers in an invitation letter that "we believe this program is proving to be a success. But we would like you to draw your own conclusions after hearing the results."

Aiding in the program are the Development Committee for Greater Columbus, the Ohio State Employment Service and the Urban League. The Thursday program will include remarks by Kennard Day of Westinghouse Electric Corp.; the story of CMACAO's involvment by Will Hellerman of Nationwide Insurance, president of the CMACAO board of trustees; Klaas' report on Plan for Progress' participation and concluding remarks by Frank Leppert of Battelle Memorial Institute.

In Memoriam

Whitehall's Henry J. Maxfield is dead. And, by today's standard for measuring greatness in the community, his passing might not merit more than the usual obituary notice.

But, notwithstanding his lack of wide public acclaim, he was an extraordinary man.

There were many more people who had a passing acquaintance with Henry than those who knew "Max" well. He was much too shy and modest for a participant in the arena of politics, thus his depth of knowledge, his keen perception and his clarity of expression were the more amazing when gleaned from a kitchen table caucus.

He was twice unsuccessful in tries for elective office. And he was as gracious in defeat as he was exuberant over the victories of his fellow partisans. And there are those who hold elective office in Whitehall who owe a share of their victories to the sound counsel and tireless support Henry always so willingly gave.

A man of excellent academic background, Mr. Maxfield could quote with equal accuracy the great writers of the past and the leading figures of the present. And if he was known as a non-conformist to some of his "acquaintances" his friends knew the warmth of his deep compassion and firm convictions.

Happily for us, the Henry Maxfields really are not so rare in our community. Hopefully, we will take the time to become better acquainted with those of his quality who still are with us.

We feel sure that Henry would agree with the general theme of these remarks—if only we had used some other person as the example.

Realignment Proposed

A public hearing will be scheduled in the near future on the State Highway Department's proposed realignment of U. S. 62 between downtown and Port Columbus.

The relocation would route U. S. 62 east from downtown on Broad Street, then north on U. S. 23 (N. Fourth Street) to 17th Avenue, then east on 17th to the existing U. S. 62 at Cassady Avenue.

Existing U. S. 62 goes east on Broad to Nelson Road, then north on Nelson to the new freeway section.

Frank Williams, division deputy director at Delaware, said the realignment would spend traffic from Port Columbus to the north and northwest sections of the city. It would add a total of three miles to the state highway system.

Big Change Coming

Beginning with next week's edition, the seven Spectator Newspapers will be published on Thursday instead of Wednesday.

The change is part of our continuing effort to bring to you all the news of your local community—the news you can't get elsewhere, coupled with what we feel is Central Ohio's finest editorial page and the tops in in-depth features.

So that you may get the best service out of the new publication day, we will change the display advertising deadline to 5 p.m. Monday and the editorial deadline to noon Tuesday. Publicity releases should be in our hands, however, no later than 5 p.m. each Monday to guarantee use in that week's editions.

The classified advertising deadline will remain unchanged at noon Tuesday.

We know you'll like the expanded coverage you'll find beginning next week in The Spectator.

Bold New Path

Colorado's legislature has struck out on a bold new path with its pioneer law legalizing abortion in certain instances.

For too many years, this nation has had its head in the sand when it comes to birth control legislation. The result is a continued population boom most of it hitting the poor, who can least afford it.

Ohio took a small step in the right direction several years ago when it restored to Planned Parenthood Associations a tax exemption as a charitable institution. That let the associations carry out their vital work without having to pay burdensome state taxes.

The situation is rapidly becoming critical. If the population is permitted to continue to grow at its present fantastic rate, the entire world will soon be overpopulated.

There are indications now that even the Catholic Church, long the arch-enemy of birth control, may be ready to soften its stand. Recommendations made to Pope Paul VI by a special commission call for a reconsideration of the church stand on artificial birth control.

What is needed now is a concerted effort on the part of federal, state and local governments to meet the crisis rather than running from it. This could be done easily and inexpensively through government-operated birth control clinics, particularly in depressed areas.

There were promises in January that the 107th General Assembly would be one of the most active and progressive in history. It hasn't been so far, but it could make a name for itself in history by taking a long, hard look at the crisis in our population.

Noble Gesture

The resignation of attorney N. Victor Goodman from the Columbus Movie Review Board got far too little attention from the community.

Goodman's action was the climax of a running feud between the young attorney and the board's policies. As Goodman explained it, the board was, in his opinion, disregarding recent Supreme Court decisions on free speech in its approvals and disapprovals of films.

The final straw was the board's ridiculous action in the case of "I, A Woman," which was confiscated from the World Theater because it was allegedly obscene.

Perhaps the only way to guarantee freedom of expression in films in Columbus would be for the entire board to follow Goodman's lead and resign in protest of the rising tide of censorship.

The Asphalt Jungle

By ROBERT BURDOCK

BURDOCK

If you want to convince yourself how lucky you are to live in Metropolitan Columbus, take a trip to Cleveland.

Cleveland has become an asphalt jungle, strangled by its suburbs, a stenched cesspool of air and water pollution, a city in whose bowels the cancer of racial strife is spreading like a malignant growth.

The city's urban renewal program is floundering badly and its highway system is a sad joke, compared to Columbus and Cincinnati.

Clevelanders are in a mass rout to the suburbs, abandoning the central city to escape the plague.

This city which once bred giants now spawns political midgets.

The city still boasts two of the largest and, by many standards, best daily newspapers in the country. But in the gigantic struggle between the two for supremacy, the city itself sometimes has suffered.

To become mayor of Cleveland, for instance, a man must incur the blessings of both newspapers and once elected he becomes their lackey. Should he offend either, his head is pummelled smartly. Cleveland's newspapers have made political bums out of some very capable officials, both in and out of Cleveland. They have also made silken political purses out of many a sow's ear.

Hence, in Cleveland it has become very difficult to attract men of talent and integrity to office. Men of ability in Metropolitan Cleveland, for the most part, don't even live in Cleveland any more, let alone run for public office.

As a result, only men of very small bore come up between the two mighty cannons of the press.

The City of Columbus has just emerged from a comparatively high level political primary. Two fine men will soon begin to campaign in earnest for mayor of one of the finest cities in the nation.

It is to be hoped that this campaign will be joined on the basis of issues, not personalities, and that the editorial clubs will be used with proper restraint.

It is not always necessary to ruin one man in an effort to elect another.

Praises Dr. King

To The Editor:

Re: Goldwater's column of April 19, in which he refers to Dr. Martin Luther King as attacking ". . . the United States and all its people . . . and preaching . . . unrelieved hatred for the United States."

If Mr. Goldwater bombed as he writes we'd all meet in "kingdom come" considering his inaccurate and irresponsible remarks. At no time does the former Senator bother to substantiate his charges; at no time does he quote. Apparently he uncovers his facts in the same manner that he "educates" his reader.

I think it prophetic that the Nobel Peace prize was awarded Dr. King at Stockholm in 1966 and equally significant that the Swedish government, among other things, withdrew its ambassador from Saigon (April 19, 1967) because that government did not "represent the majority of the people."

Dr. King, as a conscientious clergyman, has concerned himself with morality and justice, and has done so in a responsible manner, preaching non-violence and standing ready to accept the consequences of his remarks. I bothered reading Dr. King's comments as reported, and could find no such allegations as found in Mr. Goldwater's article. Rev. King did say that ". . . I love America and want to see our great nation really stand up as the moral example of the world."

Dr. King is, in my opinion, an asset to our country in having the intestinal fortitude and intellectual honesty in speaking up, as an individual, when he feels our nation is following an immoral course of action . . . Better to have individuals like that, even when wrong (if wrong), than the citizen who closes his eyes, mouth, and heart, and is "right."

A precedent has been set, may I add. At Nurenberg we hanged "patriotic" Germans who claimed that the state's moral authority transcended their own. An immoral war is hardly less than immoral if it is prosecuted by a democratically elected government.

leo rennert ★ A Californian Looks At Rhodes—IV ★

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fourth in a series of articles on the administration of Gov. James A. Rhodes by Leo Rennert, staff writer for California's McClatchy Newspapers group).

* * *

In 1960, an Ohio mother with three children received $170.81 a month under the Aid to Dependent Children program.

In 1966, after steady increases in the cost of living and the emergence of poverty as a national concern, this same family received $170, a drop of 81 cents.

The U. S. Civil Rights Commission, after taking a look at this trend, issued an "urgent" report recently calling Ohio's relief payments "grossly inadequate."

After an on-the-spot investigation of conditions in Cleveland, the commission concluded that Ohio's welfare programs "have failed to meet most of the basic needs of beneficiaries and have failed to assist them in achieving self-sufficiency."

Inadequate welfare payments, it reported, have resulted in deficient diets, insufficient clothing and substandard housing.

"The major impact of this failure," the commission declared, "has fallen upon Negroes who must also face obstacles of racial discrimination in other aspects of their lives."

The commission's report placed the responsibility on Gov. James A. Rhodes, who likes to boast that he keeps a tight rein on state expenditures.

The roots of the problem, the commissioners reported, can be traced to "the failure of the state of Ohio" to appropriate sufficient funds for its needy citizens.

Ohio was not exactly known for having a liberal welfare program before Rhodes was elected governor in 1962. But since then the state's share of relief programs has dropped from $82.4 million to $80.3 million while federal contributions have risen from $100.3 million to $119.6 million.

The commission was particularly incensed that ADC payments in Ohio have not measured up to the state's own minimum "health and decency" standards.

In 1960, when an Ohio ADC family of four received $170.81 the standard was $200.95. Last year, when payments had dropped to $170, the standard had risen to $224.

Cash payments thus fell from 85 to 76 percent of the state's own minimum relief guidelines during the six-year interval.

The reaction of the Rhodes administration so far has been limited largely to attempts to shift the responsibility to local communities and the federal government.

While Rhodes marks time, Tom Weiler, assistant county welfare director in Cleveland, warns that "very, very serious" poverty problems cannot be swept away.

"I don't know how some of these people exist," he declared.

The Rev. Charles W. Rawlings, executive director of the Metropolitan Affairs Commission of the Cleveland Council of Churches, is considerably more outspoken.

"As long as we keep people hungry, there will be more riots," he said.

"Ohio has some of the nation's richest cities. Yet, Cleveland has the most dilapidated slums in the country.

"Yet Rhodes exerts no initiative. He's completely cold and callous about human beings," he said.

barry goldwater ★ Are Liberals Really Reactionaries? ★

GOLDWATER

Scratch a modern, so-called liberal and you find the worst sort of reactionary. In certain key issues, for instance, there is no apparent difference between the thinking of these liberals and that of the men who have run the major totalitarian states of our time.

Take the draft.

Sargent Shriver, Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz and our old standby, Robert Strange McNamara, the alleged secretary of defense who doubles as assistant President, all have similar views of the draft. These men are accepted as models of modern liberalism.

Old-fashioned liberalism — to which I subscribe — was based purely and simply on the freedom of people to make their own way, free of government control.

Look at the modern liberals and the draft.

Sargent Shriver, in a statement that would have sounded familiar in Berlin or Rome of the Thirties, has testified that he would like to see every American boy and girl registered with the government at the age of 16.

Out of this pool of government boy-and-girl-power, youngsters would be plucked to serve not only in the military but in any other government servitude to which the minds of men like Shriver might stray or drift.

Willard Wirtz feels that when a young man fails to meet draft requirements the federal government would force him to get in shape, either mentally or physically. This, presumably, would be accomplished by clapping the youngster promptly into some sort of government health farm or mental hospital. What would emerge, of course, would have to meet the Wirtz standard.

These so-called liberals, who want to fasten a domestic fascism on our young people, are simply following the line originally set by Robert McNamara who, months ago, suggested turning the draft system into a social system in which every young American would be compelled to serve the state.

McNamara, the most antimilitary of our public officials, would not, of course, suggest that this service be in the military. Presumably looking forward to the day when he has abolished the military altogether, he suggested that service could be in the poverty program, the domestic peace corps, job corps or any other phase of regimented government service.

The Americans for Democratic Action, the official fount of liberal wisdom, has come along with their version. It, too, helps expose the fact that so-called liberals, when they speak of the draft, have no concern for personal liberty or for principle.

But what about ADA? They think anyone who disagrees with a particular war should be excused from the draft. They don't discuss the notion of personal liberty.

The faction that jammed the draft-disagreement resolution through the ADA's recent convention was simply trying to express their disagreement with the Vietnam war.

It is absolutely safe to assume that no such action would have been taken if the draft involved getting troops to invade Rhodesia or South Africa. And so it goes, down the line, with so-called liberals.

"I must study politics and war that my sons may have liberty to study mathematics and philosophy. My sons ought to study mathematics and philosophy, geography, natural history and naval architecture, navigation, commerce and agriculture, in order to give their children a right to study painting, poetry, music, architecture . . ."

These were the words of that stouthearted founding father, John Adams, who like all the Adams tribe looked piercingly into the future of the land he loved. They were the keynote of the Report of the Commission on the humanities sponsored by three learned societies and made up of distinguished scholars, educators and public leaders.

The report recommended creation of a foundation supported by the Federal government for advancement of the humanities. This was established as the National Endowment for the Humanities. An educator with an outstanding record and a droll sense of humor, Barnaby Keeney, former president of Brown University, was named chairman. At 52, Keeney, put aside his career to come to Washington. He is now embattled in a dispute which he finds difficult to reconcile with the broad concepts laid down by Congress.

It is a dispute that John Adams would have found utterly incomprehensible. Adams was saying that war and politics are not the end of a society. He was looking ahead to the time when the infant republic should have so set its course that the third generation would have the opportunity to release the highest creative talents in poetry, the arts, music.

A House committee has just cut the requested $5 million for the humanitites to $3 million. One reason is economy, the mounting cost of the war in Vietnam. But behind the economy talk is a motive that would baffle John Adams and the other thoughtful, deeply committed men who founded this nation.

Both the humanitites endowment and a similar endowment for the arts, headed by Roger Stevens, are patterned after the National Science Foundation. Even for the most suspicious Congressman science is respectable. That is one reason for the imbalance with scientific research getting fantastic sums out of government while the few millions doled out to the arts and humanities are given the cold treatment. Out of the astronomical defense budget of $71 billion, perhaps as much as $7 billion goes for research. With the research of other departments and NASA added the total would be well over $10 billion.

In making their case, proponents of the humanities point out what other Western nations — Canada, France, Britain — are doing. With about one-tenth of the population and less than 10 percent of our Gross National Product, Canada is spending this year through the Canada Council $5.6 million for the humanities and in the following fiscal year will spend more than $10 million.

The struggle in Congress is not ended, since there are stout advocates of the humanities program. But in the light of America's affluence, the battlefield is incredibly narrow.

Theater Notes

By CLAUDIA ELKINS

The movie, "Hombre," is a stark realism of the true "western life" filmed and directed for entertainment.

It is now showing at Town and Country and Great Western Cinemas. It no doubt will be playing for a while longer —the longer the better.

There is no trash to filter through—either through story or through the spoken lines.

"Hombre" is an insight of two ways of life — Caucasian or Indian. From this overall picture the audience is allowed precious and exact moments with each person on the screen.

Money plays the key role as the story unfolds with this in essence being the basic reason why all these characters traveling on the highway of life are brought together to either conquer or be conquered by each other.

This film runs 111 minutes. These are precious minutes as tension, drama, realism and suspense unfold. This is a fine film with an above average cowboy story and above average acting.

Paul Newman as "Hombre" in tantalizing saucy and is in full reign of the character. Richard Boone as "Grimes" is somewhat mediocre. A surprise is in store for those seeing Billy Lee portrayed by Peter Lazer. He shows great promise and really knows his business with regard to the character. This was pretty hard to convey as he honestly looked like he had never shaved.

If you like cowboys and want to take a stagecoach ride that is packed with human frailties then mosey on down to Town and County or Great Western Cinemas.

Students Get Demonstrations, Tour From Local TV Station

This past Saturday, WLW-C television was host to 13 high school juniors as "Broadcast Journalism Seminar For High School Juniors" was held.

Meeting in the conference room of Channel 4's studios on Olentangy River Road, the students registered and became acquainted just in time for a keynote address by Richard E. Reed, general manager of Channel 4.

The address was aimed at the future of broadcast journalism and the opportunities for trained men and women.

A tour of the facilities with commentary by news director, Hugh DeMoss, was followed by a lecture and discussion concerning news philosophy, coverage, modern news techniques, news sources and problems of a television newsroom, by DeMoss and others on the staff.

The students were Thomas Heffernan, Maureen Smith, Al Cornelius, Jan Farr, March Rehr, Stan Simmons, Barbara Lemler, Stan Bradway, Cheryl Robinson, Kim Black and Janet Solt.

After lunch, the students were given a 10-minute outline of a newscast to be prepared by them which guided them through a demonstration of the tools of broadcast journalism and a demonstration of audio visual tools used by a radio-television newsman.

The students were allowed to work some of the equipment and interview each other on sound-film. This film was then taken through the step-by-step procedure of shooting to editing.

How to rewrite wire copy from the UPI wire and reading news copy was demonstrated. Then each student auditioned and several were chosen to participate in the actual recording of the practice session.

From here the students were shown the direction and production of an actual newscast — using the materials which were prepared by the students.

For a wind-up to this all-day session, a playback of the practice newscast took place with a summary.

Staff members participating in the tour were Bob Livingston, chief photographer; Dick Stark and Don Knapp, newswriters; Dave Sanford, WLW-C producer-director; Rod Warner promotion manager and Richard Thrall, program director.

'Music Man' To Premier At Vets Memorial Friday

Visiting River City, Iowa, this past Sunday at Independent Players brought to full focus how much fun and enjoyment can be derived from a musical.

This musical, "Music Man," has really got a music man by the name of Larry Weaver. He and some 90 cast members will be performing this Friday and Saturday at Veterans Memorial.

The production was well rehearsed by Sunday and in only a few places were voices weak — but one could not justly say that this would be a downfall.

The downfall "Music Man" has is that the curtain will come down too soon.

Every person performing behaves like a professional and treats his or her part as if it were the lead.

Weaver will definitely walk off with all honors in the star department as he glides through number after number.

Jerry Anthony as Marcellus is both agile and well accustomed to his role and does a fine job.

Mayor and Mrs. Shinn, Dick Herzog and Marty Dore, are not only cute but cozy.

Marian, Bobbie Shaw, the town librarian is pretty yet slightly weak in character as well as voice.

Looks like Friday and Saturday night will be Independent Players night out with the folks from Iowa. This community theater group deserves to be billed at least as semi-professional.

'Philadelphia Story' Is May Day Event

"The Philadelphia Story" will be performed at Capital University by the Masquers in Mees Hall auditorium at 7:30 p.m. May 5 and 6.

This sophisticated three-act comedy will be the traditional May Day Weekend play of the Capital University theatrical group. Tickets are on sale now and may be reserved by phoning 235-8611, ext. 371.

The plot concerns the upcoming marriage of a Philadelphia socialite and a wealthy coal magnate who has his eye on the White House. Events become complicated when the socialite's first husband arrives uninvited on the scene, and two reporters appear to write a story about the Lord family. The cross fires of love and the whirl of high society bring the family and audience to a climax which is both hilarious and touching.

GARDEN NOTES

Joyce Loughman, Editor

Can you think of anything that smells better or fresher than grass right after it has been cut? And all of the sights and sounds that are around as you are fighting the mower? Ah, Spring! You are wonderful.

Did you notice that big anthill out by the peony bushes—certainly have to do something about that this weekend. And the spirea bushes need trimming, and the walk, and around the steps. Oh well, it's grand to be able to just be outside even though it is cold.

When you started mowing around the patio did you take a good look at the roses? There is a project for this weekend — peatmoss must be spread and don't forget the fertilizer (sorry — rose food). Oops, there is that pile of "stuff" that you raked up the other day. That big rock sure didn't do the mower any good.

Wondering if you can move that big rock in the middle of the brook? Sure you can, but you'd better do it right now or it will still be there next year. Better have a wedge though that means walking clear back up the bank — now let's see maybe that old limb that you forgot to burn will do it—sure it will. Oh, oh better go over on the other side. No, don't jump. Use the bridge. Remember what happened the last time?

Well, here you are, still standing here making a complete fool of yourself — screaming at the top of your lungs and frightening the new neighbors just because of that silly snake. You know that it wasn't three feet long but it sure did look like it. And, now as if you hadn't had enough here is the man with the tractor to plow the garden . . . what does he find that is so funny? He can't speak a word of English so how do you tell him NOT to plow up the strawberries? Oh well, better put some stakes around them.

Well, better get the mowing finished before the sun goes down. Darn mower—why can't it start the way it should —out of gas? Naturally. You can't expect to wean the crazy machine. What am I going to do this weekend? Mow to dothis weekend? Mow the grass, of course. Ah, Spring sure glad you came.

Epsilon Sigma Alpha sorority with 40,000 women bound together by the belief that women must not allow education to cease when academic doors close behind them, is being honored this week with the proclamation by Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner, acknowledging local recognition of Epsilon Sigma Alpha International Week.

One of the oldest and largest sororities of its kind in the world, ESA in each of its 1,500 chapters follows three facets, educational, philanthropic and social.

This week, special emphasis is laid upon the philanthropic which involves the chapters raising more than $1 million annually for the comfort and welfare of the needy.

Founded in 1929 in Jacksonville, Tex., by a group of energetic women meeting the challenge of first recognizing and then assuming roles and responsibilities in a fast-moving world, the sorority became international in scope during World War II.

In Columbus eight Epsilon Sigma Alpha chapters function in active support of philanthropic projects.

Berry Asks Public Support Of CAP

With the future of the war on poverty in Columbus—and in the nation — being weighed in Congress, Theodore Berry, assistant director of Sargent Shriver's Office of Economic Opportunity, urges Ohioans not "to be struck mute" in their support of the program.

The U. S. director of Community Action Programs addressed an audience of 300 at the second annual meeting of the Columbus Metropolitan Area Community Action Organization held at St. John's Parish Center Saturday.

STATING that the 14 Ohio Republican members of the House had voted against original CAP legislation, he reminded his audience that five of the 10 Democratic representatives supporting CAP lost their seats to the GOP last year.

Although Berry credited Ohio (along with Michigan, Missouri and New Jersey) with being well ahead of the nation in the effectiveness of its Community Action Programs, he claims the state faces a unique problem with "its invisible poor."

With only 13 percent of Ohio's residents' income falling below $3,000 annually, Berry maintains it is difficult to make the more prosperous aware of the needs of the less fortunate.

REFERRING TO the local program whose start he categorized as "shaky and controversial," Berry attributed its current success to the "Rule of Reason" taking hold and to the leadership of Will Hellerman, president of the CMACAO board of trustees, and its "young and seasoned" director, Curtis Brooks.

According to Berry, community action, under one name or another, is "here to stay," in spite of the skeptics and those who exploit the unfavorable and ignore the good of what he calls the greatest program of "social dynamics" the world has ever known.

He also predicted that more funds will be made available for professional planning as CMACAO moves ahead to work hand-in-hand with other federal agencies such as the one involving creation of "model cities.

FINALLY BERRY urged the community to tap available local sources for funds to supplement federal grants.

Will Hellerman was re-elected president of the trustees. He had accepted nomination for the post on the condition that other 1966-67 officers continue to serve with him. This led to Msgr. C. B. Applegate and Rev. William Hansen, vice-presidents; Rev. Phale D. Hale, secretary, and Harry Mayfield, treasurer accepting second terms.

Hellerman: Get Rid Of Term 'Inner City'

Although Theodore Berry was the star of the CMACAO's annual meeting Saturday those involved locally gave convincing support of the success of the program.

Will Hellerman, the Nationwide Insurance executive who serves as president of the CMACAO Board of Trustees, especially praised the dedication of the staff.

HE PARTICULARLY pointed out as an example of this dedication the energy devoted to the preparation of the progress report presented at the meeting prepared on a week's notice.

"At Nationwide, this report would have involved six vice-presidents and three months' activity with a seventh vice-president calling for another month for further study," he stated.

Claiming that Columbus is setting the pace for Community Action Organizations around the country, he called for immediate abandonment of the term "inner city."

HE BELIEVES "old city" is a more accurate term for the heart of the city which he urges be made "new and modern" to match the outlying areas which ring it.

Pleading the case for "human renewal" which he feels vastly more important than regional planning, urban renewal or mass transit, Hellerman rued only the fact that organizations are "falling over each other" to "get a piece of the action."

Toward remedying this situation, he proposed a "summit meeting" (or many such meetings) to jointly work out how the people may best be served.

CURTIS BROOKS, LOCAL CMACAO director, credited the progress made to two ingredients—the people involved and the lack of political interference.

He also pledged continuance of the policy of refraining from "downtown dictatorship" which would separate the local war on poverty from the very people it is meant to serve.

Wayne O'Dell recounted the accomplishments he has seen as a volunteer working with the Franklin County Service Center at Urbancrest.

AFTER LISTING measurable benefits such as the growth of the Darbydale Youth Club, the Pre-School, School and Youth Clinic and employment services which have helped some to "live decently for the first time in their lives," he touched upon the intangibles of racial understanding.

Admitting his past personal prejudices, he stated that both Negro and white are beginning to recognize each other's problems.

He also praised a staff who "worry and sweat" about those who seemingly — didn't care about themselves.

THE YOUNGEST speaker and perhaps the least articulate (a question open to debate) received a standing ovation.

He was Mike Lewis, a member of the Urbancrest Youth Club who is looking forward to entering Ohio State University next fall.

Claiming that the job he has obtained through the County Center has furnished him with a ticket to OSU and opportunity, he claimed the mature have benefited as well as youth.

"I'VE SEEN people helped whom I've known all my life that I thought couldn't be helped," he said.

He also made an appeal for a blase public not to regard a spirit of devotion to a cause or a job as "misplaced sentiment."

If so, the following might interest you. Every square inch of skin contains: 78 nerves, 600 sweat glands, 10 or 20 blood vessels, 78 sensory apparatuses for heat, 13 sensory apparatuses for cold, 1300 nerve endings to record pain, 19,500 sensory cells at the end of nerve fibers, 160 to 165 pressure nerves for the sense of touch, 95 to 100 oil glands, 65 hair and muscles, 19,500,000 cells.

SERGE DIAGHILEV
This great man was the creator of modern ballet. What has the ballet to do with hairdressing? Ballet is the living dance. Hairdressing is a living art. It is also a plastic art like ballet. Long years of practice and discipline are necessary to perfect both. Art anywhere seldom makes the artist rich but when we lose the capacity to stand and admire the art of the coiffure we are poorer for it. Encourage the young artist who is struggling toward the perfection of his art. Voice appreciation will mean more than the tip you slip into his pocket.

COLOR SHAMPOOS
These are known as semi-permanent colorings. To further simplify them perhaps we can understand them as consisting of a shampoo base to which has been added coloring. They cannot be expected to make hair lighter, as ro tints. Their function is to make the hair look brighter and more attractive by the addition of a little amount of color. This again is not a safe do-it-yourself job since the porosity of your hair and the density of the color desired must be considered.

UNDER THE DRYER
A small boy can be described as a restless noise with dirt on it.

Although many hunters fish and many fishermen hunt — there the parallel seems to end. There certainly must be a far different drive behind the hunter than the fisherman.

For instance, the fisherman will be quite content with a smattering of blue gills for a whole day's efforts whereas the hunter would not think of calling a hat full of meat a successful day.

PAUGH

MOREOVER, the angler is content to return day after day to same spot on the bank until he does land a fish that "he knew was there."

If a hunter tramps a stubble field and kicks up no legal game, he'll throw gravel a block in his speed to hunt elsewhere.

Another variance between the hunter and fisher is the distance he travels to find his sport. There are a great many more out of state hunters than fishermen.

COULD BE that more exotic fishing holes haven't advertised enough. For instance, I've found the most exotic fishing camp imaginable where you may boat literally thousands of pounds of fish each day—if you wish.

It's called Club De Pesca de Panama. The accommodations are priced right. It's just that Panama is so far away, the travel down there thins out all the poor men.

But this couldn't be the whole story since I know three men who are giving up some every-day niceties and socking away $50 each month so that—in ten years—they can go on an African Safari.

YET, I never hear of fishermen who, having heard of places like Club de Pesca de Panama— have a burning desire to go there. I might be all wet but to me, a day of boating twenty or more sailfish is equal to downing one day's limit in African game.

I have not been to the Club but a fishing buddy Bob Rankin, Outdoor Editor of the Cincinnati Enquirer, flew down last fall. He boated so many marlin and sails he just gave up and took pictures the rest of the day.

In their contests they allow more points for catching and releasing than they do for catching and keeping. After all, what could you do with 20 sailfish?

I AM certainly not touting for the Club but if there are readers who like fishing enough to set back a little egg money each week, they could

I heven't heard figures but I would guess that the trip could be made from Columbus or Cincinnati at a price of $1,000 (everything included).

Bob tells me the food is a gourmet's delight with tropical fruits and fabulous seafoods featured. The clubhouse and lodgings are a rival to the finest Polynesian supper club. Their own aircrafts bring you to the club from Panama and not find a more productive family-type resort in the world, their charter boats are truly yachts.

This is one of the places I have on my list to see — some day.

IF YOU haven's been out to pick those great big sponge mushrooms by now, chances are you've missed them. They only show up for about ten days. If you've never eaten them, you are indeed missing one of the finer parts of our wonderful outdoor world.

Dienst 'Cap Paces Beulah Race Card

The eighth running of the Robert J. Dienst Memorial Handicap will highlight the racing at Beulah Park this week with the $7,000 mile and a sixteenth event scheduled for Saturday.

A fine group of 11 has been named for the Dienst and indications are that most of them will be under colors. Probably best known of the runners is A. F. Polk's Grand Central who was second in last year's running.

Expected to be leading contenders in this renewal of the Dienst are Oak Hill Farm's Federal Man, Harold Queen's Gasmegas and H. C. Miller, Jr.'s Marty Thunder.

Three features are scheduled for the final week of the spring meeting which ends Saturday, May 13. The Primary Stakes for two-year-olds is down for decision a week from today.

For the final program, Beulah will offer the $7,500 Chateaugay Handicap at six furlongs and also the Beulah Park Special.

PIN NEWS

Keglers' Korner

By NORMA KIRKENDALL

Romania will be the first Iron Curtain country to take up tenpin bowling as the result of an order obtained by the international group of American Machine and Foundry Co. to outfit a 12-lane center at Mamaia, a Black Sea resort.

Merlin E. Nelson, vice-president and AMF international executive in London, said Romania also is the 37th outside of the U. S. to which AMF has brought bowling as a new game. AMF began launching the tenpin game in new countries abroad in 1960.

WINNERS OF the BPAA National Youth Bowling Eliminations, held at Reynoldsburg Lanes, were: boys (scratch) — Tom Parks (Aero Lanes) 585; boys (handicap) — Tom Daye (Graceland) 497-51 — 548; girls (handicap) — Pam Hopkins (Lockbourne) 465-90 — 555.

They'll compete in the state eliminations May 20 at Westerville Lanes.

Congratulations to Lil Miller who finished as runner-up in Ohio State Ladies Singles Tournament in Massillon with a 191 average, winning $370. Also to Ed Thomas who topped the Ohio Major Bowlers Association in Dayton with a 218 average and $500 to take home.

WATCH A group of golf pros practice and you will be impressed by the ease with which they swing and the distance they hit the ball. The same goes for bowling pros. They stride to the foul line sort of lazy like, relaxed, effortless, yet they get more than medium speed on the ball.

Unless you understand what spinning action they apply with the fingers as they release the ball with an unhurried arm lift, you'll be confounded at the way they make the pins dance into the pits on thin, high or pocket hits alike.

Pros have what average bowlers and golfers lack — timing and rhythm. They get the most out of their swings by letting them gather their own speed for maximum power at what is called the "explosion point."

IN GOLF the clubhead moves into high speed about a foot behind and through the ball. In bowling the explosion occurs where the ball passes the sliding left foot.

You, too, can add to your golf yardage and accuracy, and to your bowling ball spin and accuracy if you concentrate on getting to the power point without hurry.

Bowling footwork begins by pushing the pins, in perfect timing with a slow, short, shuffle step with the right foot in standard four step stride. Reverse for left handers.

HERE IS the simple movement by which the pros get their rhythm: Like the golf club being pulled downward with the left arm, the bowling ball must drop lazily into its downswing of its own weight. Only then, without any physical help whatsoever, will the swinging ball pick up momentum in unchanging amount to the explosion point.

Balance will be perfect and the ball will swing on and through to the picture, spin producing arm lift the pros have.

Of course, it calls for hard practice, patience, and perhaps some fretful hours. But it will be so rewarding physically, mentally and scoringly that no amount of effort put into it is too great.

IF THERE'S an instructor available — by all means — get his help.

RRI Board Meets; Elect Keller President

The Reynoldsburg Recreation, Inc., launched its formal organization with the election of officers and appointment of committee chairmen in the first Board of Trustees meeting on Tuesday evening, April 25.

The officers are: president, Dwight Keller; vice-president, Mrs. Phyllis Daugherty; secretary, Sonja Herd, and treasurer, James Thompson.

The trustees also discussed the suggestion of Mayor Ewyford that the city purchase the Parkview Presbyterian Church building for use as a recreation center. The board agreed that the building was not adaptable for their purposes.

The group reiterated their intent to provide teenagers a recreation center in cooperation with but separate from the city's recreation commission.

Chairmen appointed for the various working committees are: Joe Ogg, Building and Planning; John Loudner, Charter and By-Laws; John Thompson, Student Coordinating, and James Thompson, Local Government Liaison. Robert Schrader, who was elected to the Board of Trustees, is acting as chairman of the fund raising committee until another is appointed.

Two vacancies existed in the Board of Trustees as Rev. Charles Kirsch and Rev. Vernon Martin declined appointments. Rev. Kirsch declined due to heavy pressure from other commitments, and Rev. Martin declined for health reasons. Mrs. Jeanine Stinson was appointed temporarily to one of the vacancies.

Those appointed to trusteeships thus far are, Kenneth Tofoya, Arthur Barr, Robert Schrader, Vince Lombardo, Robert Heischman, Mrs. James Karga, John Thompson, James C. Thompson, Sonja Herd, Dwight Keller, Wanda Keller, Marshall, and Father Michael Phyllis Daugherty, Mrs. Frank Donovan.
